SUMMER.

"The Summer—a beautiful time of the year, When clover fields blossom, and swallows are here—
When hill side and valley are mantled in green,
And the bright sky of June over-arches the scene.

The glad Earth is smiling with verdure and bloom—
Even the church yard no longer is shrouded in gloom:
For the magical fingers of Summer have spread
A covering of green o'er the graves of the dead.

Now flowers the bosom of nature adorn,
And my thoughts, on the pinions of memory borne,
To the days of my youth retrospectively fly—To the days when no sorrow had clouded the sky.

Oh! then was the time I delighted to rove, As gay as the robin that sung in the grove, While my spirit rejoiced in the brightness of life, Unhaunted by care, and untroubled by strife.

The increase of years may enfeeble me now, And the frosts of old age may have whitened my brow;
But those days and those scenes I can never forget;
For they bloom in the green field of memory yet.

Though fond hopes I once cherished are faded and fled,
And the friends, whom I trusted, are faithless or dead,
Yet the Summer's sweet loveliness still can impart
The sunshine of joy to my care-stricken heart.

No bird in the wild wood can warble her lays—
No blossoming rose-bush its beauty displays—No dew-drop in beams of the morning can shine,
Which thrills not with gladness this bosom of mine.

For my thoughts wander backward to youth's happy hours,
When my future appeared to be covered with flowers,
And seem'd in the distance a scene of delight,
Like a landscape of Eden, revealed to my sight.

These illusions, like visions, forever have flown;
For the trials of life I have bitterly known;
But when Summer comes back with its birds and its flowers,
Again I am dreaming of youth's sunny hours.

Family Circle.

Don't Depend on "Father."

Stand up here, young man, and let us talk to you; you have trusted alone to the contents of "father's purse," on his fair fame for your influence of success in business. Think you that "father" has attained to eminence in his profession, but by unwearied industry? or that he has amassed a fortune honestly, without energy and activity? You should know that the faculty requisite for the acquiring of fame or fortune, is essential to, nay, inseparable from the retained of either of these!
Suppose "father" has the "rocks" in abundant; if you never earned anything for him, you have no more business with these "rocks" than a goblin has with a tortoise! and if he allows you to meddle with them till you own industry, he perpetrates untold mischief.
And if the old gentleman is lavish of his cash towards you, while he allows you to while away your time, you'd better leave him; yes, run away, sooner than be an imbecile, for something worse through so corrupting an influence.
Sooner or later you must learn to rely on your own resources, or you will not be anybody.

If you have become idle, if you have eaten father's bread and butter, and smoked father's cigars, eat a swill in father's buggy, and tried to put on father's influence and reputation, you might far better have been a poor canal boy, the son of a chimney sweep, or a boot-black—and indeed we would not swap with you the situation of a poor, half-starved motherless calf! Miserable objects you are, that depend entirely on parents, playing gentleman (dandy loafers). What in the name of common sense are you thinking of?
Wake up there! Go to work with either your hands, or your brains, or both, and be something! Don't merely have it to boast of that you have grown in "father's house"—that you have vegetated as other green horns!— but let folks know that you count one!

Come, off with your coat, clinch the saw, the plough handles, the scythe, the axe, the pickaxe, the spade—anything that will enable you to stir your blood. Fly round and tear your jacket, rather than to be the passive recipient of the old gentleman's bounty! Sooner than play the dandy at dad's expense, hire yourself out to some potato patch, let yourself be entitled to a resting spell, but let it on your own hook. If you have no other means of navigating fun of your own, buy with your earnings an empty barrel and put your head into it and holler, or get into it and roll down hill; don't for pity's sake make the old gentleman furnish everything, and you live at your ease.

Look about you, you well-to-do, smooth-faced, do-nothing drones. Who are they that have worth and influence in society? Are they those that have depended alone on the old gentleman's purse? or are they those that have climbed their way to their position by their own industry and energy? True, the old gentleman's funds, or personal influence, may secure you the forms of respect, but let him lose his property, or die, and what are you? A miserable flogging—a bunch of flesh and bones that needs to be taken care of.

on being led, and you have no idea how the discipline will benefit you. Do this, and our word for it, you will seem to breathe a new atmosphere, possess a new frame, tread a new earth, wake to a new destiny—and then you may begin to aspire to manhood. Take off, then, that ring from your lily finger, break your cane, shave your upper lip, wipe your nose, hold up your head, and, by all means, not depend on father.

A Prompt Answer.

The following anecdote respecting old Hickory is at the same time perfectly new and perfectly authentic. It is given in the autobiography of Peter Cartwright, a Methodist Minister, a volume issued by Carlton & Phillips. None of Gen. Jackson's enemies could ever deny that the General on all occasions stood up firmly for the cause of Christianity, both in its doctrines and in the person of its advocates. Mr. Cartwright says:

I had preached one Sabbath near the Hermitage, and in company with several gentlemen and ladies, went, by special invitation, to dine with the General. Among this company there was a young spring of a lawyer, from Nashville, of very ordinary intellect, and he was trying hard to make an infidel of himself. As I was the only preacher present, this young lawyer kept pushing his conversation to me, in order to get into an argument.
It tried to evade an argument, in the first place, considering it a breach of good manners to interrupt the social conversation of the company. In the second place, I saw that his head was much softer than his heart, and that there were no laurels to be won by van-quishing or demolishing such a combatant, and I persisted in evading an argument. This seemed to inspire the young man with more confidence in himself; for my easiness he construed into fear. I saw General Jackson's eye strike fire, as he sat by and heard the thrusts he made at the Christian religion.
At length the young lawyer asked me this question:

"Mr. Cartwright, do you believe there is any such place as hell, as a place of torment?"

I answered promptly, "Yes I do."
To which he responded, well, "I thank God I have too much good sense to believe any such thing."

I was pondering in my own mind, whether to answer him or not, when General Jackson, for the first time, broke into conversation, and directing his words to the young man, said with great earnestness:

"Well, sir, I thank God there is such a place of torment as hell."

"This sudden answer, made with great earnestness, seemed to astonish the youngster and he exclaimed:

"Why, General Jackson, what do you want of such a place of torment as hell?"

To which the General replied, as quick as lightning:

"To put such skeptical rascals as you are in, who oppose and vilify the Christian religion."

I tell you this was a poser. The young lawyer was struck dumb, and presently was found missing.

This reminds one of the somewhat similar reply made by one of the old Fathers, when he was repeatedly importuned to say what God had been doing before he created the heavens and earth. "Why," said the old man at last, "He was building hell for curious and inquisitive persons."

A YOUNG MAN'S CHARACTER.

No young man who has a just sense of his value, will sport with his own character. A watchful regard to this early youth, will be of inestimable value to him in all the remaining years of his life. When tempted to deviate from strict propriety of deportment, he should ask himself, Can I afford this? Can I endure hereafter to look back upon this?

It is of amazing worth to a young man to have a pure mind; for this is the foundation of a pure character. The mind, in order to be kept pure, must be employed in topics of thought which are themselves lovely, chas-tended, and elevating. Thus the mind hath in its own power the selection of its themes of meditation. If youth only knew how durable and how dismal is the injury produced by the indulgence of degraded thoughts: if they only realized how frightful were the moral depravities which a cherished habit, of loose imagination produces on the soul, they would shun them as this bite of a serpent. The power of books to excite the imagination is a fearful element of moral death, when employed in the service of vice.

The cultivation of an amiable, elevated, and glowing heart, alive to all the beauties of nature and all the subtilties of truth, invigorates the intellect, gives to the will independence of baser passions, and to the affections that power of adhesion to whatever is pure, and good, and grand, which is adapted to lead out the whole nature of man into those scenes of action and impression by which his energies may be most appropriately employed, and by which its high destination may be most effectually reached.

THE WIDOW'S LAMP.

Some years ago there dwelt a widow in a lonely cottage on the seashore. All around her the coast was rugged and dangerous; and many a time was her heart melted by the sight of wretched fishing boats and coasting vessels, and piteous cries of perishing human beings. One stormy night when the wind was making her loneliness more lonely, and her mind was conjuring up what the next morning's light might disclose, a happy thought occurred to her. Her cottage stood on an elevated spot, and her window looked out on the sea; might she not place her lamp by that window, that she might be a beacon light to warn some poor mariner off the coast, she did so. All her life, during the winter nights her lamp burned at the window and many a poor fisherman had cause to bless God for the widow's lamp; many a crew was saved from perishing. The widow woman "did what she could," and if all believers kept their light burning as brightly and standardly, might not many a soul be warned to flee from the wrath to come? Many Christians have not the power to do much active service for Christ; but if they do live as lights in the world, they would do much. If those who cannot preach to the old or teach the young, would walk worthy of Him who hath called them to His kingdom and glory, how much would the hands of ministers and teachers be strengthened!

THE NEWSPAPER.

In promotion of this desirable object—the union of the intellectual with the useful—the newspaper is an auxiliary. It is more. It is the typical of the community in which it is encouraged and circulated. It tells its character, as well as its condition; its tastes as well as its necessities; the moral, as well as the physical stamina of population and soil. It is the map whereon is traced out tendencies and destinies. The chart to direct the traveller and the settler, to divert them from the shoals and quicksands of social degradation. At home, it brings to our firesides, it imparts to our household, it inculcates on our children its sentiments of propriety, or its tone of con-temptation. Abroad, it is regarded as our oracle, and speaks volume for or against us.
In its business features may be discerned the indications of our prosperity, in a worldly sense, or otherwise; but in its general complexion will be discovered our moral and spiritual healthfulness or disease. It is the portrait of our imperfections as well as the chronicle of our advancement.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

UNION HOTEL, Union Street.

Between Charlotte and Sydney Streets, (South side.) THE Proprietor of this Establishment, thankful for favours received during the period he occupied the New Brunswick Hotel, and convinced of the necessity of more and better accommodation for the public, has erected a large and substantial building in Union Street, capable of accommodating from 70 to 80 boarders. This House is well ventilated, the sleeping rooms are large, and every flat is well supplied with water, and also lighted with gas. The proprietor is determined to leave no means untried to merit the patronage of the community. Travellers arriving late at night will find the house always open, and ready to receive them; while the conveniences and moderate charges will render it emphatically the home of the stranger. The tables of the house will be supplied with the best market produce, and the Proprietor is determined to adhere strictly to the Total Abstinence principle. Two large Stables have been erected on the premises, capable of accommodating 60 or 70 horses. Good hostlers always in attendance.

and Receiver General, Canada.

THE FOLLOWING IS THE CERTIFICATE
To the Editor of the Daily Times.

We deem it due to our neighbours, and to Messrs.
Stearns & Marvin in particular, to state that our books and papers were in one of their SATES, which stood in the fourth story of our store, No. 38, Murray Street, and which with its entire stock of goods was consumed on the 9th inst. The safe fell through to sub-cellar, where it remained over 30 hours before it was possible to recover it! At the end of that time we had the pleasure of taking out our books and papers in an entirely legible condition; and feel that after passing successfully through such an intense heat, too much cannot be said in praise of their Sates.

Respectfully,

Ford's Waterproof OIL.
An Eminent Solution of INDIA RUBBER, Castor Oil, and TANNIN, for rendering Boots and Shoes waterproof, and for softening all kinds of Leather, particularly Trunks, Horse, Carriage Taps, Harness, &c. &c. &c.

Thus celebrated Chemical Compound has been found on trial, not only valuable in rendering all kinds of leather, but it also penetrates the stiffest and hardest kinds of Leather, a steaming, strengthening, and restoring it to its original state. For Lumbermen, Firemen, Seamen, Fishermen, or Mechanics, who require work in the water, this Oil will be found invaluable, as they may stand in the water a whole day without the slightest inconvenience from wet feet.
It will also prevent the cracking, splitting, or blistering of the leather, thereby increasing its durability doubly. It will be found very useful for India Rubber and Patent Leather Boots and Shoes.

VICTORIA HOUSE

SPECIAL NOTICE.
ENCOURAGED by the liberal share of patronage received during the past five years, and particularly since our removal to Prince William Street, we have made arrangements to extend our retail trade. In addition to our regular Spring and Summer Stock of Goods, we shall during the winter as well as in the summer months import per steamers via Hall-fax, such Goods as are required to keep our Stock well assorted. Our system of doing business is the same as it has been; heretofore, adopting for our motto, not as much as we can get, but as little as we can take. We therefore mark every article in plain figures, from which no abatement can be made. Our Goods are equal in point of quality to any in the market; and as we buy on the most advantageous terms we cannot be undersold by any house in the Province. Thankfully acknowledging past favours we shall endeavor, by the extent and variety of our Stock, as well as by the quality and value of every article sold, to make the VICTORIA HOUSE as popular as possible, and respectfully solicit a continuance of that support which we have hitherto received.
