THE WAR.

The first battle was fought at Montebello .-Austrians, 15,000 strong, retreated. Allies lost 600 to 700.

The Austrian loss, by french accounts, is 2000. The battle of Montebello took place on the 21st. French accounts say that the Austrians under Gen. Stadion, attacked advanced posts of Marshal Baragnay d'Hilliers, and were driven back by Gen. Ferey's division, after a fierce combant of four hours' duration.

The Allies, including some Piedmontese caval-ry, carried Montebello, but did not pursue Aus-trians. The loss of the latter is stated by French at from 1500 to 2000 : and that of French at 600 to 700. Many officers were killed. Two hundred Austrians, including a Colonel were captured.

Aostrian account simply says that General Stadion pushed forward a reconnaissance by forced marches towards Liglio and Montebello, but after a hot fight with French force of superior strength, retreated. Report says the enemy,s force was 6,000 to 7,000, besides a regiment of Sardinian cavalry.

Sardinian bulletin announces that extreme left of Sardinian army, under Gen. Garibaldi, had forced a passage over the Sesia, putting Aus-trians to flight.

Other triffing engagements are reported. Gen. Garibaldi held Geneva with 6000 men his object being revolutionary. Prince Napoleon and a small French force had arrived at Leghorn.
