My choir shall be the moonlit waves, hen homeward wandering to their caves. Or when the stillness of the sea. Even more than music, breathes of Thee.

I'll seek by day some glade unknown, All light and silence, like thy throne And the pale stars shall be at night, The only eyes that watch my rite.

Thy heaven, on which 'tis bliss to look, Shall be my pure and shining book, Where I shall read in words of flame. The glories of thy wondrous name.

'There's nothing bright, above, below, From flowers that bloom, to stars that glow, But in its light, my soul can see, Some feature of thy Deity.

There's nothing dark, below, above, But in its gloom, I trace Thy love, And meekly wait, that moment when Thy touch shall turn all bright again.

Family Circle.

MIND WHAT YOU SAY BEFORE CHIL-DREN.

It is always well to avoid saying anything that is improper, but is especially so before children; and here parents, as well as others, are often in fault. Children have as many ears as grown persons, and they are generally more attentive to what is said before them. What they hear they are very apt to repeat; and as they have no discretion and not sufficient knowledge of the world to disguise anything, it is generally found that " children and fools speak the truth." See that boy's eyes glisten while you are speaking of a neighbor in language that you would not have repeated. He does not fully understand what you mean, but he will remember every wo d; and it will be strange if he does not cause you to blush by the repetition.

A gentleman was in the habit of calling at a neighbor's house, and the lady had always expressed to him much pleasure in seeing him. One day, just after she had remarked to him her happiness from his visit, the little boy entered the room. The gentleman took him on his knee, and sked :-

- " Are you not glad to see me, George?"
- " No sir," replied the boy.
- " Why not my little man !" he continued. " Because mother don't want you to come,' aid George. OMIRICAD AIG HELIONA son, and became crimson. But he saw nothing. " Indeed! how do you know that, George ?" " Because she said yesterday that she wished that old bore would not call again."

The gentleman's hat was soon in requisition, and he left with the impression, " Great is the truth ; it will prevail."

A boy once asked a gentleman who it was that lived next door to him, and when he heard the name, inquired if he were not a fool.

" No, my little friend, he is not a fool, but a very sensible man. But why do you ask the question ?" " Because," replied the boy, " mother said the

" Did she say what time, my dear ?"

" No, ma'am; sheonly said she would ask you, and then the thing would be off her mind ; that's all she said."

From the Independent. WHAT IS TO BE DONE WITH OUR CHAR-LEY?

Yes-that is the question! The fact is there seems to be no place in heaven above, or earth beneath, exactly safe and suitable, except the bed. While he is asleep, then our souls have rest -we know where he is and what he is about. and sleep is a gracious state; but then he wakes ap bright and early, and begins tooting, pounding, hammering, singing, meddling, and asking every twenty-four.

Every body wants to know what to do with him-everybody is quite sure that he can't stay where they are. The cook can't have him in the kitchen, where he infests the pantry to get flour to make paste for his kite, or melt lard in the new saucepan. If he goes into the wood-shed, he is sure to pull the wood-pile down upon his head. If he be sent up to the garret, you think for a while that you have settled the problem, till you find what a boundless field for activity is at once opened, amid all the packages, boxes, bags, barrels, and cast-off rubbish there. Old letters, newspapers, trunks of miscellaneous contents, are all maged, and the very reign of choos and old night is instituted. He sees endless capacities in all, and he is always hammering something or knocking something apart, sawing, or planing, drawing boxes and barrels in all directions to build cities or lay railroad tracks, till everybody's head aches quite down to the lower floor, and everybody declares that Charley must be kept out of the garret.

Then you send Charley to sch. o', and he pe you are fairly rid of him for a few hours at least; but es home noisier and more breezy than ever having learned of some twenty other Charleys every separate resource for keeping up a commotion that the superabundant vitality of such can originate. He canfdance like Jim Smith-he aned to smack his lips like Joe Brownand Will Briggs has shown him how to mew like a cat, and he enters the premises with a new warhoop, learned from Tom Evans. He feels large life; in fact, he is more than ever an interruption in the way of deeent folks who want to be quiet. It is true that if entertaining persons will derote themselves exclusively to him, reading and and then the old question comes back. What is to be done with him?

But after all, Charley cannot be wholly shirk ed, for he is an institution-a solemn and awful fact; and on the answer to the question, what is to be done with him? depends a future.

Many a hard, morose, bitter man has come from a Charley turned off and neglected; many a parental heart-ache has come from a Charley left to run the streets, that mamma and sister might play on the piano and write letters in peace. It is easy to get rid of him; there are and it was dressed very tastefully in its sky blue fifty ways of doing that. He is a spirit that can cloak, and white hat, around which was tastebe promptly led, but if not led aright will come fully wound a white plume. back, by-and-by, a strong man armed, when you The mother was a young, short, pale, and cannot send him off at pleasure.

to Charley now, than a terrible one by-and-by- and limited means upon her child's dress, rather There is something significant in the old English than her own. shall we do with Charly ?"

For to-day he is at your feet; to-day you can persuade, coax, and turn him at your pleasure; ful steamer. you can make his eyes fill and his bosom swell with recitals of good and noble deeds; in short, you can mold him if you will take the trouble.

But look ahead some years when that little, voice shall ring in deep bass tones; when that mall foot shall have a man's weight and tramp; when a rough beard shall cover that little round chin, and all the willful strength of manhood fill out that little form. Then you would give worlds for the key to his heart, to be able to turn and guide him to your will; but if you lose that key now he is little, you may search for it carefully, with tears, some other day, and never find it.

Old house-keepers have a proverb, that one our lost in the morning is never found all day. It has a significance in this case.

One thing is to be noticed about Charley, that, still a social little creature, and wants to be face that had nestled against her breast! where the rest of the household are. A room hears the voices in the parlor, and the play room seems desolate. It may be warmed by a furnace and lighted with gas, but it is human warmth and light he shivers for; he yearns for sitting down all alone to his dinner to-day.comprehends, and he longs to take his play- life before." things down and play by you, and is incessants ly promising that of the fifty improper things which he is liable to do in the parlor, he will not commit one if you will let him stay there.

This instinct of the little one is nature's warning plea-God's admonition. O, how many a mother who has neglected it because it was irksome to have the child about, has longed at twenty five to keep her son by her side, and he would not. Shut out as a little Arab; constantly told that he is noisy, that he is awkward and meddlesome, and a plague in general, the boy has found at last his own company in the streets, in the highways and hedges, where he runs till the day come when the parents want their son. and the sisters, brother, and then they are scared at the face he brings backs to them, as he comes all foul and smutty from the companionship to which they have dooned him. Depend upon it, if it is too much trouble to keep your boy in your society, there will be places found for him-warmed and lighted with no friendly fires, where he who finds some mischief still for idle hands to do, will care for him it you do not. You may put out a tree and it will grow while you sleep, but a son you cannot, you must take trouble for him, either a little now, or a great deal by-and-by. Let him stay with you at least some portion of every day; bear his noise and his ignorant ways. Put aside your book or work to tell him a story, or show him a picture; devise still parlor plays for him, for he gains nothing by being allowed to spoil the comfort of the whole circle. A pencil, a sheet of paper, and a few patterns questions; in short, overturning the peace of will sometimes keep him quiet by you for an society generally for about thirteen hours out of hour while you are talking, or in a corner he may tuild a block house, annoying nobody. If he does now and then disturb you, and it costs you more thought and care to regulate him there, balance which is the greater evil-to be disturbed by him now, or when he is a man,

Of all you can give your Charley, if you are a good man or woman, your presence is the best and safest thing. God never meant him to do without you any more than chickens were meant to grow without being brooded.

Then let him have some place in your house where it shall be no sin to hammer, and pound, and make all the litter his heart desires, and his various schemes require. Even if you can ill afford the room, weigh well between that safe asylum and one which, if denied, he may make for himself in the street.

Of all the devices for Charley which we have, few shelves which he may dignify with the name of cabinet, is one of the best. He picks up shells, and pebbles, and stones, all odds and ends-nothing comes amiss; and if you give him a pair of scissors and a little gum, there is no end of the labels he will paste on, and the iours he may innocently spend sorting and ar-

A bottle of liquid gum is an invaluable resource for various purposes, nor must you mind though he various his nose and fingers and clothes, (which he will do of course,) if he dees nothing worse. I had been upon the deck for, perhaps, half an hour, watching the cur we had just left as it grew smaller in the distance, until I could telling stories, he may be kept quiet; but see only the tall, slender spires, sending through then this is discou aging work, for he swallows the summer morning their sign of heav.n: and a story as Rover does a piece of meat, and looks I had at last turned from watching all these to at you for another, without the slightest consider- the blue waters of the Sound, as they lay throbation, so that this resource is of short duration, ing under the clear sky, while the prow of our steamer cut a white wound deep in their heart, as she swept proud and graceful on her way.

Suddenly a cry startled me from my reverie the soft, pleased, cooing of a little child, and turning quickly, I saw it reaching out its fat, dimpled arms, to a string of tri-colored beads which flashed in the light, as its mother held them up befere its eyes.

It was a pretty babe, probably some eight months old, with small ringlets of saffron hair, and rosy, thick, dimpled cheeks, and blue eyes;

> Somehow, I felt interested in the young mother and her child. Perhaps it was because there were but few passengers on board, and most of these were below in the saloon.

At last I approached her. "How happy your baby looks this morning, ma'am." She smiled back, pleasantly. "Yes; he is taking his first journey to-day."

In a little while, the little woman and I had grown very well acquainted. I had learned, too, something of her history; that she was the wife of a young mechanic, residing in the city we had left, to whom she had been married about two years, and that she was now on a visit of a week to her mother in New York, who was an invalid, and who had never seen the

> "Yes, he'll miss you and baby, no doubt," answered, sympathetically.

But here the pale face flushed into sudden gladness. "He'll see the flowers, anyhow!" " What flowers ?"

Why, the bouquet I made him, just before we started. I set it close by his plate, too, for l knew 'twould comfort him so. There were two white roses-they opened yesterday after the shower-and some sweet Williams, and variegated pinks, and double ladyslippers-the whole looked so pretty; and I placed them in my blue china vase; and he'll be so surprised and pleased when he comes home to dinner, and finds 'em close by his plate, and he'll know who put 'em there, won't he baby ?"

There were tears in the little woman's eyes. I think there were in my own, too, as I looked on her with a new reverence, and thought how her husband was a rich man. No matter if he did earn his daily bread by the sweat of his brow, no wealth would buy that little wife of his, with her true, faithful, loving heart; and though he had neither lands, nor gold, nor any other possession, was he not rich with her?

And then, I thought, as I went down stairs to reioin the friends I had left too long, how many women there were on earth who would never think of placing a bouquet of flowers to cheer their husband's lonely dinner-hour -wives whose homes might be adorned with every grace, and filled with every luxury, and who yet found in fashion, and display, and frivolity, their only life! and who cared not, in their mad pursuit for these baubles, whether their homes were made bright and holy with sweet affections and gentle cares. This compound will be found a great promoter of health when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which fester in the blood at that season of the year by the timely expulsion of manyof them rankling disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can by the aid of this remeey, spare the mseives from the endurance of foul eruptions and a cerous sores through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if bot assisted to do so through the natural channels of the body by an alternate medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; clense it when you find it obstructed and singgish in the veins; clense it whenever it.'s foul and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better health, and lives longer, for clensing the blood. Keep the blood healthy and ail is well; but with this paibum of life disorded, there can be no lasting health. Sooner or later something must go wrong, and the great machinery of life is disorder or or overthrown.

Sarsaparilla has, and deserves much, the reputition, of accomplishing those ends. But the world has been eggrenously deceived by peperations of it, partily because the drug alone has not all the virtue that is claimed for it, but more because many peperations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or any thirg else.

During late years the public hase been misled by lar, e bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence bitter and pain. I disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become sy nonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such

[From President Smith, of the Wesleyan University.]

MIDDLETOWN, CONN., Feb. 28, 1859.

SETH W. FOWLE & CO.—Gentlemen: I first made use of the "Oxygenated Bitters" some seven or eight years since. Having suffered for twenty years from a form of Dyspepsia, which was attended with a nervous headache, on an average of not less than one day in a week, I was induced by the unpretending recommendation of Dr. Green "to try one bettle, and if no benefit was received to discontinue its use."

The use of one bottle warranted a further trial, to the extent of some three or four, with a careful observance of the accompanying directions. The result was an almost entire relief from the usual dyspeptic symptoms, and their depressing, painful consequences. I believe these Bitters produced an entire change in the habits of my system, and upon the active energies of the digestive organs. I now deem myself as exempt from Dyspepsia as most persons. These Bitters have also been of service to other members of my family.

Very respectfully yours,

AUGUSTUS W. SMITH.
