THE CONTENTED MAN.

BY JONATHAN MARTIN MILLER. Why need I strive for wealth, It is enough for me That Heaven hath sent me strength and health A spirit glad and free; Grateful these blessings to receive, I sing my hymn at morn and eve.

On some, what fleods of riches flow! House, herds and gold have they; Yet life's best joys they never know, But fret their hours away. The mcre they have, they seek to increase; Complaints and cravings never cease.

A vale of tears this world they call, To me it seems so fair; It countless pleasures hath for all. And none denied a share, The little birds on new-fledged wing, And insects revel in the Spring.

For love of us, hills, woods and plains, In beauteous hues are clad; And birds sing far and near sweet strains. Caught up by echoes glad. "Rise," sings the lark, "your tasks to ply :" The nightingale sings "lullaby."

And when the morning sun goes forth, And all like gold appears, When bloom o'erspreads the glowing earth, And fields have ripening ears, I think these glories that I see, My kind Creator made for me.

Then loud I thank the Lord above. And say, in joyful mood, His love indeed is Father Love, He wills to all men good-Then let me ever grateful live, Enjoying all he deigns to give.

Family Circle.

THE FOUR HEARERS.

The bells of a village church, by the seaside, were calling to morning service, and bands of worshippers came flocking from scattered hamlets, to hear the Gospel of Christ, and to praise Him in his house.—There was one group of four persons known to one another, who walked in company, and they had plenty to say on the weather and thecrops, the new organ, and the " season," as sea-side residents call the time for visitors to their coast.

There was a rich, or at least a well-to do, old man, a farmer, a wealthy tradesman, and a gentleman in middle life, whose companion was a young daughter, of sweet and placid countenance, whose age could scarcely be more than fifteen years.

As they left the village a fifth joined them, and asked the shortest way to the church, which was more than half a mile distant .-- There was something so friendly in his greeting that they readily admitted him to their party, and at once they began to speak of the place whither they were wending, of its beauty, its improvements, its congregation, and its minister. Then followed a remark from the stanger on the blessings of the day of rest, and its holy duties, to which the elder man assented, and said, with something like complacency, "I have never missed but once-and that was a month of illness-going to that church, sir, for forty years past."

" That is saying a great deal," replid the stranger-" have you ever reckoned how many sermons that makes?"

" No, I cannot say I have," replied the farmer, and, after a pause, " well, I reckon about 2.076."

"You are not far wrong," was the answer. " and if the question was, how many sermons one must hear to be saved, you would stand well, but it is not; Christ says, ' Take heed how ye hear.' It is, I imagine, on that that the good of hearing hinges."

"You are right, sir," said the man, with a sigh, for he knew how he had heard for many a long year, and he was weary and heavy laden yet, having found no rest.

"We all know the parable of the sower," resuined the stranger. "It would be worth while. as we walk to church, to ask ourselves to which class we each belong." They all relapsed apto silence and took the advice.

The old man's thoughts ran thus-

" I am going down hill fast. I have heard, as the gentleman says, God's message, through the minister, upwards of two thousand times, and what the better am I? So sure as I go to church am I to be disturbed by thoughts of my crop, or my banker, or the clouds and weather. I am listening to the sermon, perhaps, and begin to feel a little warm and interested, when these thoughts come. It must be Satan sends them, and the good things are all snatched away, and the good thoughts scattered : the bad birds of the air, or of the world, come and devour them up, and I am not yet safe for heaven. Ah, I am a wayside hearer, I

"I" said the tradesmantohmself, "like to hear a good sermon as well as any one.-Yes, and I may say I often hear it with joy. I think the Bible is a wonderful book, the history of Christ's love in dying for us a wonderful history, and many a time I have wished that I lived in a religious family, so as I could be really religious myself; but then, there is so much to give up. My brothers and sisters, my father and mother. too, so often have laughed at my scruples when I have refused to break the Sabbath day, and I cannot bear a leugh. I think I must be the stony-ground bearer, for there seems no root to my desires and good feelings, and as to persecution, I know I never could stand that "

"1," said the third to himself, " am very glad that stranger does not ask us for our replies. I am sure no one can respect religion more than I, but I have no time for such strictness as some of my neighbors. I have so many friends, so many pursuits, such an increasing business, so many pounds invested here, there, and every where, that I need to look sharp. I suppose these riches are my thorns, for certainly religion liness; I must pray for God's Holy Spirit to Try it. come like the dew on the grass, by his grace to refresh my soul."

They were now at the church door, and parted. The sower sowed the seed, and the four hearers received it each in his own way. Yet the stranger's question was not forgotten ;-and it is a question which we must ask and answer, dear children, as well as they; for the day will come when every sermon we have heard shall be brought to our minds, and Christ, the Judge of all, will call us to account for the manner in which we have received his offers of reconciliation .- Mrs. Geldart.

THE LITTLE RUNAWAY.

"Oh, the sunny, sunny hours of childhood!" There are no toils then to imprison within doors the free limbs; no cares to dim the glorious sunshine; no grief to taint the perfumed air. It was one of the last days of summer-the golden time of the year-when a bright little group were making merry on a hill crowned with trees, and graced with the foliage and hanging fruit of the native grape. Swings flew lightly into the air, and the songs of the children, mingled with bird notes, were echoed from the high rocks above feast upon the grass and partook of it with that themselves, with a fair and just discount allowed by relish which only childhood knows, poor Kate buried her face in her lap and wept bitterly. Her little friends gathered around her to know "if she was hurt, or, if any one had treated her un-

"No," she replied; "I have deceived my litle sister, and I cannot be happy. She begged me to bring her, saying: 'Mattie wants to go up high where the robins live.' I told her to lie down in her crib, and to go to sleep first, and I would see about it. She believed me, and kissing me said so sweetly, 'Good, kind sissy.'-While she was sleeping, I ran away. But I can't be happy; for when she finds out that I deceived her, she will never trust me again." "I wouldn't feel so badly, Kate," said a bright eyed little maiden." , You didn't promise to bring her, so you haven't told a lie."

"No, not with my lips, Susie; but I have in my heart; for I said 'I will see about it, on purpose to deceive her. Hark, I hear a child cryng!" said Kate. The girls looked down and saw a tiny little thing making her way towards steamers. them, obbing bitterly. Her curls were sadly tangled, her white dress soiled and tattered, and her poor feet scratched and bleeding from the blackberry vines through which she had come. It was Mattie, who on rising had found that Kate had gone, and set out shoeless and bareheaded to find her. She had wandered into a marsh, and was now so unlike herself that Kate hardly knew her. But, deceived and wounded though throwing both arms round her neck hid her face in her bosom.

"Oh, you naughty little Mattie!" cried Nellie Green, " to come up here without leave. How will you ever get home? Look at your poor feet! Naughty little runaway, your mother ought to whip you !"

" She ought to whip me, for deceiving my dear little sister," cried Kate, folding Mattie more closely in her arms.

" Take me home to mamma, sissy," whispered Mattie : I'm so tired!"

for that day. Mattie was not well when she left etc, etc home, and the fatigue and the wet feet brought on a fever which threatened her sweet life. Oh! how did her fond sister repent of her cruelty, and resolved never again to deceive a litte child. The first time Mattie was able to go out, Kate and her brother carried he u , " where the robins live ;" and on the spot where the former wept for her unkindness she now rejoiced in the love of the dear child, and thanked God that he had spared her precious life.

THAT'S ENOUGH FOR ME. "What do you do without a mother to tell ail your troubles to?" asked a child who had a mother, to one who had none.

"Mother told me whom to go to before she died," answered the little orphan. "I go to the Lord Jesus; he was mother's friend, and

"Jesus Christ is in the sky. He is away off, and he has a great many things to attend to in heaven. It is not likely he can stop to mind you." I do not know anything about that," anid the orphan; "all I know, He says he will, and that's enough for me."

What a beautiful answer that was ! And what was enough for this child, is enough for us all. Are you tired of carrying about this load of sin? Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." But I am not we thy of his forgiving love. Never mind that. "He says he will, and that's enough for me.' Take the Lord Jesus Christ at his word, for the forgiveness of your sins.

"Don't be frightened into religion," some say: 'there's time enough yet to think of dying : besides, God is merciful. He will never cast the wicked down to hell."

Ah! you may do as you please; but as for me will take him at his word. "He says he will, and that's enough for me."

Small acts of kindness, how pleasant and destrable do they make dife! Every dark object these riches are my thorns, for certainly religion does not grow. What I hear on Sunday is all chocked up before the week is at an end. Yes, the seed of God's word with me certainly falls triffing kindness drives away despair, and makes at the entrance of the soul, a limit of Groceries, will be sold low by JAMES T. AYER': SARSAPARILLA.

AXER?: SARSAPARILLA.

A compound remedy in which we have labored to produce the most effectual alternative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still relative power as to afford an effective antidote for the dise uses Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is beleived that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove an immeuce service to this large class of our afflicted fellow citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cas sto be found in the following complaints—Scorfula and Scroflious complaints, Eruptions, and Eruptive Diseases, Ulcers, Pimples, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum Scalt head, Syphilis and Synhitic Affections, Mercural Diseases, Ulcers, Pimples, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum Scalt head, Syphilis and Synhitic Affections, Mercural Diseases, Dropsey, Neuralgia or Tic Dudlouroux, Debility, Dyspepsia, and indigestien, Eryspelas, Rose or St. Anthony's fire and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from impurity of the blood.

This compound will be found a great promoter of health when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which fester in the blood at that season of the year by the timely expulsion of many of them rackling disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can by the aid of this remedy spare thems lyes frem the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerons sores through which the system will strive to rid inserior for curvations, if but assisted to so through the natural channels of the body by an alternative medicine. Clense out the vitivated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting those in the structed and singgish in the voins; clense it whenever it is foul and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt people enjoy better heaith and hives longer for clesing the blood. Keep the blood healthy and all is well; but with this palbum of life diso more because many proparations, protending to be concentrated extracts of it contain but little of the virtue of Sarsa trated extracts of it contain but little of the visit parilla, or any thing clse.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of extract of Sorsaparilla for one dollar. Most of those have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only centain little if any Sarsaparilla, but often no curative proportions whatever. Hence bitter of the most of the second contains the man of the second contains the man of the second contains the man of the second contains the sick, for they not only centain little if any Sarsaparilla, but often no curative proportions whatever. Hense bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name of itself is justly despised, and has become synonymons with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obliquy while it rests upon it. And we think we have ground for beleiving it has virtues which are presistables by the ordidary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to the directions on the bottle

TESTIMONIALS. [From a gentleman well known in the vicinity of West-field, Mass.] WESTFIELD, MASS., 24th Nov. 1858, S. W. FOWLE & Co., BOSTON. — Gents.: I cheerfully give you my testimony, and, moreover, an desirous that the public should know the claims which your invaluable preparation of WISTAR'S BALSAM have to

About a year since I was attacked with a severe and distressing cough, followed by emaciation, night sweats, and other symptoms of approaching disease.

I tried many remedies to no avail, and so alarming did my case appear, that my friends entertained serious fears for my recovery.

At this juncture I purchased a bottle of WISTAR'S BALSAM, and at once began to mend, and by the time two bottles had been exhausted I had entirely regained my health and strength. I shall always keep it in my family.

CONCORD, N. II., March 2.

Messrs. SETH W. FOWLE & CO. — Gentlemen: Two years ago, a sudden and violent attack upon my lungs confined me to my bed for several weeks, and when I recovered, I was so much oppressed by difficulty in broathing, that I was often unable to sleep or rest upon a bed by night. The suffering was extreme, and judging from the inefficacy of the remedies used, I supposed the disease incurable. Being persuaded to try a bottle of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY without confidence in its efficacy, I found the difficulty almost entirely removed before one bottle was used up. Sympathy with my follow-sufferers induces me to make this public statement, and recommend the article to others similarly afflicted.

With respect, yours truly,

Dear Madam,—The reputation of the Medical Discovery in curing all kinds of humors, is so well established by the unanimous voice of all who has a ever used it, to at I need not say anything on the subject, as the most skiliui physicians and the most careful Druggists in the country are unauthmous in its praise.

In presenting the Medical Discovery to your notice, I do it with a full knowledge of its cureative powers, in releiving all and curing most of these diseases to which you are nuforturately so liable. That most excruciating disease in affectionwie mother.

NURSING SORE MOUTH. is cured as if by a miracle; your own temper is restored to its natural sweet oss, and your babe from a short and fretful haps to calm and sweet slumbers; and the Medica Discovery becomes a fountain of blessings to your husband and household.

In the more advanced stages of

creates a sinking, gone feeling, and an indifference even to the cares of your lamily.

Your stomach is RAW AND INFLAMED, your food distressed you, and you can only take certain sinds and even of that your system does not get half the nourisament it contains, as the crimonous fluid of of the canker ents it up then your complexion looses its bloom and becomes shailow and greenish and your best day is gone. For want of nourisament your syste tecomes loose and flabby and the ibers of your body become relaxed. Then follow a train of diseases which the Meut at Discovery is peculiarly adayted to.

Palpitation of the heart, pain in the side, weakness of the spine, and small of the back, pain of the hip joint when you refire, irregularity of the bowels, and also the most excruciating of diseases, the
