No night shall be in heaven-no gathering gloom Shall o'er that glorious landscape ever come : No tears shall ever fall in sadnes o'er those flowers

That breashe their fragrance through celestial

No uight shall be be in heaven-no dreadful hour Of menial darkness, or the tempter's power, Across those skies no envious clouds shall roll, Te dim the sunlight of the enraptured soul.

No night shall be in heaven. Forbid to sleep, Those eyes no more their painful vigils keep : Their fountains dried, their tears all wiped away, They gaze undazzled on eternal day.

No night shall be in heaven-no sorrow's reign, No secret anguish-no corporeal pain-No shivering limbs-no burning fever there-No soul's eclipse-no winter of despair.

No night shall be in heaven, but endless noon-No fast declining sun, or waning moon: But there the Lamb shall yield perpetual light, 'Mid pastures green and waters ever bright.

No nighl shall be in heaven, no darkened room-No bed of death nor silence of the tomb; But brreezes, ever fresh with love and truth Shall brace the frame with an immortal youth.

No night shall be in heaven! But night is here-The night of sorrow, and the night of fear, I mourn the ills that now my steps attend. And sbrink from others that may yet impend. No night shall be in Heaven! O had I faith

To rest in what the faithful witness saith-That faith should make those hideous phantoms

And leave no night, henceforth, on earth to me.

BETTER THAN DIAMONDS.

I was standing in the broad crowded street of a large city. It was a cold Winter's day .-There had been rain; and although the sun had been shining brightly, yet the long icicles hung from the eaves of the houses, and the wheels rumbled loudly as they passed over the ground. There was a clear bright look, and a cold, bracing feeling in the air, and a keen, Northwest wind, which quickened every step. Just then a little child came running along -a poor, ill-clad child; her clothes were scant and thread-bare; she had no cloak and no shawl, and her little bare feet looked red and suffering. She could not have been more than eight years old. She carried a bundle in her hand. Poor little shivering | ny?' child! I, even I, who could do nothing else, pitied her. As she passed me her foot slipped, and she fell with a cry of pain; but she held the bundle tightly in her hand, and jumping up, although she limped sadly, endeavored to run on as before.

"Stop! little girl, stop," said a sweet voice : and a beautiful woman, wrapped in a huge shawl, and with furs around her, came out of a jeweler's store close by. " Poor little child," she said. " are you hurt? Sit down on this step and tell

How I loved her, and how beautiful she

"Oh, I cannot," said the little child, " I cannot wait-I am in such a hurry. I have been to the shoemaker's, and mother must finish this work to-night, or she will never get any more shoes to bind."

"To-night," said the beautiful woman, "to-

"Yes," said the child-for the stranger's kind manner had made her bold-" yes, for the great ball to-night; and these satin slippers must be spangled; and-"

The beautiful woman took the bundle from the child's hand and unrolled it. You do not know why her face flushed and then turned pale, but I, yes I, looked into the bundle, and on the maide of a slipper I saw a name - a lady's name -written, but I shall not tell it.

"And where does your mother live, little

So the child told her where, and then she told her that her father was dead; and that her little brother was sick, and that her mother bound shoes that they might have bread; but that sometimes they were very cold, and that her mother sometimes cried because she had no money to buy milk for her little brother. And then I saw that the lady's eyes were full of tears; and she rolled up the bundle quickly and gave it back to the little girl; but she gave her nothing else-no, not even a sixpence, and turning away, went back into the store from which she had just come out. As she went away I saw the glitter of a diamond pin. Presently she same back, and stepping into a handsome carriage, rolled off. The little girl looked after her for a moment, and with her little bare feet, colder than they were before, ran quickly away.

I went with the little girl, and I saw her to a narrow damp street, and into a small dark room : I saw her mother-her sad, faded mother, but with a face so sweet, so patient-hushing and soothing a sick baby. And the baby slept and the mother laid it on her lap; and the bundle was unrolled, and a dim candle helped her with her work ; for though it was not night, vet her room was very dark: Then, after awhile, she kissed her little girl, and bade her warm her poor frozen feet over the scanty fire in the grate, and gave her a little piece of bread, for she had no more; and then she heard her say her evening prayer, and folding her tenderly to her bosom, blessed her, and told her that the angels would take care of her. And the little child slept and dreamed-oh! such pleasant dreams-of warm stockings and new shoes, but the mother sewed alone, and as the bright spangles glittered on the satin slippers, came there no repining into the heart? When she thought of her child's bare, cold feet, and of the scant mersel of dry bread which had not sa hunger, came there vision of a bright room and gorgeous clothing, and a table loaded with all that was good and nice, a little portion of which spared to her would send warmth and comfort o ler humble dwelling. ?

If such thoughts came, and others of a pleasant cottage, and of one who had dearly loved her, and whose strong arm had kept want and trouble from her and babes, but who could never come back-if these thoughts did come repiningly, there also came another; and the widow's hands were clasped and her head bowed low, in deep contrition, as I heard her say, "Father, forgive me, for thou doest all things well, and I will trust to Thee." Just then the door opened softly, and some one entered. Was it an angel? Her dress was spotless white, and she moved with a noiseless step. She went to the bed where the sleeping child lay, and covered it with soft warm blankets. Then presently a fire spatkled and blazed there, such as the little grate had never known before. Then a huge loaf was placed upon the table, and fresh milk for the sick babe. Then she passed gently before the mother, and drawing the unfinished slipper from her hand, and placed there a purse of gold, and said in a voice like music : Bless thy God, who is the God of the fatherless and the widow"-and she was gone, only, as she went out I heard her say, "better than diamends-better than diamonds!" Who could she mean! I looked at the mother. With clasped hands and streaming eyes, she blessed her God, who had sent an angel to comfort her. So I went too; and I went to a bright room, where there was music, dancing, and sweet flowers; and I saw happy faces, and ladies beautifully dressed and sparkling with jewels ; but none that I knew, until one passed me, whose dress was of simple white with only a rose bud on her bosom, and whose voice was like the sweet sound of the silver lute. No spangled slipper was on the foot : but she moved as one that treadeth upon the air, and the divine beauty of holiness had so glorified her face, that I felt as I gazed upon her, that she was indeed an angel of God .- N. Y. Chroniele.

A LESSON FOR MOTHERS. A correspondent sends us the following instructive incident in real life. She says :-One morning I left my sweeping half done to soothe a crying baby. His little sister, not quite four years old, took up the broom, and after a very careful gathering of the dirt into a pile, went for the dust-pan to take it up. I smiled involuntarily, as I noticed her patient efforts with the heavy broom, and said,

Why, little sister, that was very nicely done you can help mamma, can't you?'

As she returned I noticed a bashful smile on her face which she seemed desirous to hide. I couldn't help saying, 'What is it, Nellie?-What pleases you?'

'I don't know-I don't want to tell you.' 'Do. What was it made your face so sun-

'I was only laughing,' and she turned away

Well, what made you laugh?' Why, because I was happy,' and she bent lower over her dust-pan.

Well, mamma was glad to see you happy but what made you happy, darling?' She hung her head, and almost in a whisper, replied, Why, because you laughed, mamma.' 'Because I laughed'-because I smiled simple approval on her little enteavor to below me! Does it then take so little, thought I, to make a baby happy! So little to keep away the seeds of sorrow, and fretfulness that hang so heavily on many young hearts! Truly Mam. ma will always try smiles in future, and school her face into forgetfulness of the clouds that many cares and undue labor bring over it.

Little Nellie's face was sunny all that day, Mamma tried hard to keep away the cloud spirit, and was encouraged, to see that the spirit of peevishness was so easily driven from her daugher's little heart .- Home Magazine.

INTERNAL EVIDENCE. A man of subtle reasoning asked A peasent if he knew, What is th' internal evidence That proves his Bible true? The terms of disputative art Had never reached his ear : He laid his hand upon his heart, And only answered, " Here !"

LIFE PREACHING.

A plain spoken old gentleman said the othe day, "I don't think so badly of your society as I used to do; and I'll tell you how that has happened. There are a good many people of your way of thinking in our neighborhood, and they are the right sort of folks too. So I'm giving up my old prejudices."

The publisher confidently asserts that for the amount of reading matter contained in the work, it is the cheapest book published, and can not fail to meet a ready sale from all lovers of substantial and sound reading.

It is b und in most beautiful style in beveld the sale illustrated and alterether forming one I used to do: and I'll tell you how that has hapvery little for abstract principles; but when they price $3 00, see the good fruits of a good faith, they are impressed with the idea that there is something in religion, and in that form of it which produces a holy, useful, happy life. We do not say that this is a reasonable way of looking at the subject but it is a very natural, and almost universally popular method. If you doubt it, rocall to mind and note the influence of that life for years after thas ended. Or, remark some unostentious but it has ended. Or, remark some unostentious but energetic and benevolent Christian woman, who, disregarding the calls of the fashionable world, being explicit in their same with the cash. or the more selfish pursuits that might occupy her time, spend her life in the constant discharge of duties to her family, to the poor, the sick and the ignorant. She exerts an influence more nowerful than is possessed by many of twice her mental endowments. The most irresistible of all to holiness is the example of a holy life. All cannot preach from the pulpit; but there is a kind of preaching that is permitted to all men, and oftentimes this kind is the most effectual. "LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE."

When first we are brought to know Christ this light is kindled-kindled by being brought into contact with him who is "the light of the world." Having been thus kindled, it must shine. The new life is the shining. The new feelings the new desires, the new tempers, the new words, the new walk and conversation-these are the beams of light which should stream out from us upon the dark world .- Dr. H. Bonar.

AY ER?? SARSAPARILLA.

A compound remedy in which we have labored to produce the most effectual alternative that can be made. It is a consentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other sanstances of still 2r ater alterlative power as to afford an effective antidute for the dise uses Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Stromous and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove an immeuce service to this large class of pur afflicted fellow cuizens. How completly this compand will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cas sto be found in the fellowing complaints. Scorfilla and Scroflous complaints. Eruptions, and Eruptive Diseases, Utcers, Pimples, Blotches, Tomors, Sait Rheum Scald Head, Syphilis and Syphitic Affections, iteratral Disease, Drops-y, Neuralgia or Tic Doulouroux, Debility, Dy-pepsia, and indices ion, Eryspelas, Rose or St. Authony's fite and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from linpurity. It he blood.

This compound will be found a rent promoter of health when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which tester in the blood at that season of fite year by the timely expulsion of many of them ranking d sorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can by the aid of this remedy spare thems ives frem the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerons sores through which the system will strive to ridusely of corruptions, if but ass sted to so through the nature. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. ped in the bud. Multitudes can by the act of masternal spare thems lives from the endurance of fool eruptions and ulcerons sores through which the system will strive to rid uself of corruptions, if but ass sted to so through the natural channels of the body by an alternative medicine. Clense out the vitivated blood whenever you find its impurities hursting through the skin in pimples, ernptions, or sores; clense it when you find it obstructed and singgish in the voins; clense it whenever it is foul and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt people enjoy better health and lives longer for clessing the blood. Keep the blood healthy and all is well; but with this palbum of life disordered, there can be no lasting health. Sooner or later something must go wrong and the great machinary of life disordered or overthrown.

Sarsaparilla has and deserves much the repuration, of accomplishing those ends. But the world has been egregiently decrived by preparations of it, partily because the drug alone has not all the virtue that is claimed for it, but more because many pieparations, protending to be concentrated extracts of it contain but little of the virtue of Sarsa.

partilia, or any fhing else.

trated extracts of it contains but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilia, or any Ining else.

Turing late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretonsing to give a quart of extract of Sarsaparilia for one dollar. Most of those have been frauds upon the six k, for they not only contain little if any Sarsaparilla, but often no curative proportions whatever. Hense bitter hand painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilia which flood the market, until the name of itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compour d Sarsaparilia, and intend to surply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of oblique while it rests upon it. And we think we have ground for beleiving it has virtues which are cresistables by the ordidary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete erad cation from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to the directions on the bottle.

[From President Smith, of the Wesleyan University.] MIDDLETOWN, CONN., Feb. 23, 1859.

SETH W. FOWLE & Co. — Gentlemen: I first made use of the "Oxygenated Bitters" some seven or eight years since. Having suffered for twenty years from a years since. Having suffered for twenty years from a form of Dyspepsia, which was attended with a nervous headache, on an average of not less than one day in a week, I was induced by the unpretending recommendation of Dr. Green "to try one bottle, and if no benefit was received to discontinue its use."

The use of one bottle warranted a further trial, to the extent of some three or four, with a careful observance of the accompanying directions. The result was an almost entire relief from the usual dyspeptic symptoms, and their depressing, painful consequences. I believe these Bitters produced an entire change in the habits of my system, and upon the active energies of the digestive organs. I now deem myself as exempt from Dyspepsia as most persons. These Bitters have also been of service to other members of my family.

Very respectfully yours,

AUGUSTUS W. SMITH.
