"Come unto me all ye that labour,"-Matt. . 23, 30.

Come, ye weary, heavy laden, Come, your suffering Saviour calls: Come, ye youths and gentle maidens. O'er thee, o'er all, my mercy falls !

Hide your heads in my fond bosom, Come to me and be ye blest! Haste ye, haste ye, ye are losing Moments of eternal rest !

For my yoke falls lightly o'er you, Easy burden 'tis to bear : Clearing mists which dim the bright views Of the landscape fresh and fair.

Children of a world of sorrow. Lay your worn hearts on my breast ! Wait not lingering for the morrow, Come to me and be at rest !

Thorns and thistles tear and wound you, As ye, wandering, onward roam ; Dry your tears, ye broken hearted, Follow me! I'll guide you home.

Ages past, I died on Calvary, All for you and you alone Broke your chain of sin's sad slavery. In return, now seek my throne !

Sons of sorrow, read my story-Read my story. sons of sin! Follow me, I lead to glory ! Fight !--- be faithful !--- you shall win !

KITTY AND HER BLUSH ROSE-TREE. Little Kitty May's mother had given her as a irthday present a beautiful rose-bush, which ore the loveliest and most delicate pink roses. think some bright spirit must have whispered pying words to the hearts of these roses, which made them blush so becomingly. Be this as it hay, they were certainly very beautiful, and Litty took great pleasure in watching their rowth and helping to promote it. One morning lowever, she discovered to her dismay that her reasure did not look as beautiful and vigorous is it had formerly done. There were a great nany yellow leaves to be found keeping comany with the green ones, and her mother told er that Jack Frost, the cruel fellow, who seems to take such delight in pinching with his icy ingers all the life out of the beautiful flowers, ad been making her rose-tree a visit, and tipped some of the leaves to death. Kitty shook er head, as much as to say, "I'll be up to you ret, Mr. Frost ;" but I presume if Jack saw her se only whistled away good-humoredly, and the very next time she went out to walk pinched her ose, to pay her for cherishing any revengeful belings toward him. After a few days a great hany of the leaves dried up and fell off, and left he bush almost naked. A little sunshine and cood care gave birth to new and tender leaves : uch fresh, young, green leaves they were, Kitty elt repaid for her former loss by this new But by-and-by, as the summer came, and ack Frost had taken a northern trip, so that here was nothing to be feared from him, what b you think came to work mischief in his place? Why tiny green insects, that nearly covered the paves, and after a little persevering labor on heir part, stripped the bush entirely. Kitty has almost discouraged, but she didn't throw he bush away-oh, no! she was a good friend o it in its day of adversity, and seemed to feel hat the more it lost the more it needed her care. I hink she loved the unfortunate little leafless Junk even more tenderly than ever she could ave done the flourishing bush. When crowned outh its glory of roses, therefore, she continued latching it and giving it the warm sunshine, and pmetimes gentle showers fell upon it, as if to ssist Kitty in bringing back its lost verdure, nd after a long time she had the pleasure of seehg it again blooming with roses. She felt then mply repaid for her persevering care.

A MOTHER'S LOVE.

Children, lock in those eyes, listen to that dear voice, notice the feeling of even a single touch that is bestowed upon you by that gentle hand! Make much of it while you yet have that most precious of all good gifts-a loving mother. Read the unfathomable love of those eyes ; the kind anxiety of that tone and look, however slight your pain. In after life you may have friends-fond. dear, kind, friends-but never will you have again the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but a mother bestows. Often do I sigh in my struggles with the hard uncaring world, for the sweet deep security I felt when of an evening, nestling to her bosom, I listened to some quiet tale suitable to my age, read in her tender and untiring voice. Never can I forget her sweet glances cast upon me when I appeared to sleep ; never her kiss of peace at night! Years have passed away since we laid her beside my father in the old churchyard ; yet still her voice whispers from the grave, and her eye watches over me as I visit spots long since hallowed to the memory of my mother .- Macaulay.

KIND HEARTS.

Let but the heart be beautiful. And I care not for the face, I heed not that the form may want Pride, dignity, or grace. Let the mind be filled with glowing thoughts And the soul with sympathy, And I care not if the cheek be pale, Or the eye lack brilliancy.

At this busy, swarming time of May, our city is anything but attractive. "Dust in the air.

> dirt in the streets, confusion everywhere," may be taken as our motto. If there be a lower deep, may we be kept from it. Meantime, above the pinnacle of happiness to which we have been raised by the sewing machines, a still more elevated point has been reached. Think not that I am proving false to that dear friend, with arm of metal true,-no, my beloved Grover & Baker, (the machine, not the gentlemen,) still claims the post of honor among the Lares and Penates of my sewing room. Neither has my Herrick's carpet-sweeper failed to be treated with regard. But neither of these relieved the awful gloom that hung over black Monday. Well, the pall seems to be in process of removal. I am anxious that you should let my suffering sisters in affliction know the fact, for it is one, that at 10 o'clock this very day, I, myself, took down my week's washing to the office of the Cataract Washing machine. Pause, now, to take in the grand idea!-I there had it washed, rinced twice. blued, hung up, and was back to my astounded family by 11; since which time I have almost seemed to tread on air with delight. I must give you some idea of the principle on which it acts. The machine is a hollow cylinder, of galvanized iron, lined at intervals with wooden ribs ; within this rotates, in a contrary direction, a wooden ribbed cylinder ; a crank turns this latter, and the machine being half-filled with boiling water and soap, half a bar to four gallons and a half, a double current of suds is forced through the soiled clothes. I should have added that a lid encloses all. For the cleaner clothes, three minutes turning is sufficient ; for dirtier ones, six is reapl 19 required. They are then removed to a rincing ub, and the machine is either filled again or emptied, by opening a faucet in the box in which it rotates. The cost varies from $12 to $16. The former suits a family of eight or ten persons. I must say adieu for the present. When a wringing and mangling machine appears, I shall be among its earliest purchasers.

The Judge took the case under advisement.

THE STUDY OF CHILDREN'S FACES.

It is interesting to study human nature in ildren's faces-to see the effect of different odes of education upon diverse developments mind and body. Many children look sour, Ilful and ugly; some sad, even ; while others look reet, pleasant and happy, as children should. Much as perfect, or diseased physical natures, oper or improper diet, may have to do in proicing these appearances, home discipline and ample, as a general thing, have more. Mothers not realize that they fasten their own feelings, far as expressed in their offspring. She who wis and frowns habitually, must not expect her ild to look joyful, but gnarled or surly. Like other, like child; only she who "sows the ind" in the heart of her daughter, may expect see the whirlwind gather and burst forth, as r harvests are generally more plentiful than the he will stick to it. He will, I feel sure.

It soon must lose its bloom; The eye's bright lustre soon will fade In the dark and silent tomb; But the glory of the mind will live, Though the joyous life depart, And the magic charm can never die Of a true and noble heart.

The lips that utter gentle words Have a beauty all their own, And more I prize a kindly voice Than music's sweetest tone; And though its sounds are harsh or shrill, If the heart within beats free, And echoe's back each glad impulse, 'Tis all the world to me.

WOMAN'S QUALITIES.

The characteristic qualities of woman, when true to the type of her being ; her delicacy, modesty, reserve, and chastity in thought and feeling, word, and action ; her sweetness, gentleness, patience, sympathy, tenderness, dependence, devotion ; her sensibility to beauty and grace, order, fitness and propriety in speech, dress, behavior, everything ; her intellectual faculties, more receptive than productive, thought resting more on feeling than feeling on thought, making her more susceptible of culture and refinement than apt for grasping the abstruse and rugged in science and practical life ; all these are her charms for man, through which man gets unspeakable good to his own nature ; while man's harder tex. ture in body and mind, his strength, courage, self- reliance, his grasp, force, and productive power in the world of thought and action, draw woman to him. Thus each finds in the other what each one needs. The womanly woman feels herself strong and brave when she leans on man, and man's manly courage grows stouter, and at the same time the rugged hardness of his nature is softened by tender reverence, as with one arm he supports, and with the other he protects the gentle one clinging to his side. In everything, in short, in which they are made different in order that they may become one. Out of this very difference springs the closest and richest union, the union of mutual love, whereof marriage is the outward representation. Only in this true married union, and in the home of love that builds itself up out of it, can the fullness and perfection of the individual life, dignity, and worth Rheumatic Powders of each be found and realized .- Docior Oldham.

SCROFULA, OR KING'S EVIL

SCROFULA, OR KING'S EVIL Is a constitutional disease, a corruption o the blood, by which this fluid becomes vi inted, weak, and poor. Being in the cirru ation. it pervales the whole body, and may burst out in disease on any part of it. No organ is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not destroy. The scrofu-lous taint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unacelliby food, impure air, fills, and fitty kabits, the depressing vices, and, above all, by the venereal infection. Whatever be its origins, it is bereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children unto the third and fourth gene-ration;" indeed, it seems so be the rod of Him who sny, '' I will visit the laiguities of the fathers upon their chil-dren."

* I will visit the laiguities of the fathers upon their children." Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of corrupt or ulcerous matter, which, in the lungs, liver, and in ternal organs, is termed tubercles; in the glands, swellings; and on the surface, eruptions or sores. This foul corruption, which genders in the blood, depresses the energies of nic, so that serofulous constitutions net only suffer from seroful-ous complaints, but they have far less power to withstand the attacks of other diseases; consequently, vast numbers perish by disorders which, although not scrofulous in their nature, are still rendered fatal by this thint in the system. Mostof the consumption which decimates the human tamily has its origin directly in this scro nlous contamination; and many destructive diseases of the liver, kidneys, brain, and indeed of all the organs, arise from or are aggravated by the same cause.

One quarter of all our people are scrofulous; their per sons are invaded by this turking infection, and their health is underminded by it. To cleanse it from the system we must renovate the blood by an alternative medicine, and in-vigorate it by healthy food and exercise. Such a medicine

The popular belief in "mpurity of the blood" is founded in truth, forscrofula is a degeneration of the blood. The Particular purpose and virtue of this Sarasparithers to purify and regenerate this vital fluid, wit out which sound heatth is impossible in contaminated constitutions. AVER'S CATHARTIC PILLS.
