HYMN.

Bear the burden of the present ; Let the morrow bear its own, If the morning sky be pleasant, Why the coming night bemoan ?

If the awakened heavens lower Wrap thy cloak around thy form; Though the tempest raise in power God is mightier than the storm.

Steadfast faith and hope unesaken Animate the trusting breast ; Step by step the journey's taken Nearer to the land of rest.

All unseen, the Master walketh By the toiling servant's side ; Comfortable words he talketh While His hands uphold and guide, Grief, nor pain, nor any sorrow Rends thy heart to Him unknown He to-day and He to-morrow, Grace sufficient gives His own.

Holy strivings nerve and sterngthen ; Long endurance wins the crown; When the evening shadows lengthen, Thou shalt lay thy burden down.

EVENING PRAYER.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

"Our Father." The mother's voice was low. tender and solemn.

"Our Father." On two sweet voices the tones were borne upward. It was the voice of reverent children that gave them utterance.

"Who art in heaven."

"Who art in heaven," repeated the children, one with her eyes bent meekly down, and the other looking upward, as if she would penetrate the heavens into which her heart aspired.

"Hallowed be thy name."

Lower fell the voice of the little ones. In a gentle murmur they said, "Hallowed be thy name."

"Thy kingdom come."

And the burden of the prayer was still taken up by the children-" Thy kingdom come."

"Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven," filled the chamber.

And the mother continued-" Give us this day our daily bread."

" Our daily bread," lingered on the air, as the mother's voice was hushed in silence.

"And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors."

"And lead us not into temptation ; but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory, forever. Amen." All these boly words were said piously and

i. a constitutional disease, a corruption o the blood, by which this fluid becomes vi the blood, by which this fluid becomes vi-tiated, weak, and poor. Being in the circu-lation is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not do troy. The scrotu-bust faint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, filth, and filthy kabits, the depressing vices, and, above all, by the venereal infection. Whatever be its origin, it is hereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children unto the third and fourth gene-ration;" indeed, it seems so be the rod. The its origin, it is breathary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children unto the third and fourth gone-ration;" indeed, it seems so be the rod. I flim who says, "I will visit the iniquities of the fathers upon their chil-dren." Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of cor-rupt or ulcerous matter, which, in the lungs, liver, and in-ternal organs, is termed tubercles; in the glands, swellings; and on the surface, eruptions or scress. This foul corruption, which genders in the blood, depresses the energies of ille, so that scrofulous constitutions not only suffer from scroful-ous complaints, but they have far less power to withstand the attacks of other disenses; consequently, vast numbers perish by disorders which, although not scrofulous in their nature, are still rendered fatal by this taint in the system. Mostof the consumption which decimates the humanianily has its origin directly in this scro ulous contamination; and many dest uctive diseases of the liver, kidneys, brain, and indeed of all the organs, arise from or are aggravated by the same cause.

ame cause. One quarter of all our people are scrofulous; their per sons are invaded by this lurking infection, and their health is underminded by it. To cleanse it from the system we must renovate the blood by an alternative medicine, and in-vigorate it by healthy food and exercise. Such a medicine we supply in fervently by the little ones, as they knelt with clasped hands beside their mother. Then as their thoughts, uplifted on the wings of prayer, to their heavenly Father, came back again and rested on their earthly parents, a warmer love came gushing from their hearts.

Pure kisses-tender embraces-the fond "good night," What a sweet agitation pervaded all their feelings! Then two dear heads were placed side by side on the snowy pillow, the mother's last kiss given, and the shadowy curtains drawn.

What pulseless stillness reigns throughout the chamber! Inwardly the parents ears are bent. They have given these innocent ones into the keeping of God's angels, and they can almost hear the rustle of their garments, as they gather around their sleeping babes. A sigh, deep and tremulous, breaks upon the ear. Quickly the mother turns to the father of her children, with a look of earnest enquiry. And he answered thus her silent question :

"Far back through many years have my thoughts been wandering. At my mothet's knee thus said I nightly my childhood's evening prayer. It was that best and holiest of all prayers, 'Our Father,' that she taught me.

Childhood and my mother passed away. I went forth as a man into the world, strong, confident, and self-seeking. Once I came into great temptation. Had I fallen in that temptation, I would have failen never to rise again. The struggle in my mind went on for hours. I was about yielding. All the barriers that I could oppose to the in-rushing flood, seemed just ready to give away, when, as I sat in my room one evening, there came from an adjoining chamber, now first occupied for many weeks, the murmur of low voices.

I listened. At first no articulate sound was heard, and yet something in the tones stirred my heart with new and strange emotions. At length there came to my ears, in the earnest loving voice of a woman, the words, ' deliver us from evil.' For an instant, it seemed to me as if that was my mother's voice. Back, with a sudden bound, through all the intervening years. went my thoughts ; and a child in heart again, was kneeling at my mother's knee. Humbly and reverently I said over the words of the holy prayer she had taught me, heart and eyes uplifted to heaven. The hour and power of darkness had passed. I was no longer standing in slippery places with a flood of waters ready to sweep me to destruction ; but my feet were on a rock. My pious mother's care had saved her son. In the holy words she taught me in childhood, was a living power to resist evil through all my after

Ah! that unknown mother, as she taught her child to repeat this evening prayer, how little did she dream that the holy words were to reach a stranger's ears, and save him through memory of his own childhood and his own mother! And yet it was so. What a power there is in God's Word, as it flows into and rests in the minds of nnocent childhood !"

Tears were in the eyes of the wife and mother, as she lifted her face and gazed with a subdued tenderness upon the countenance of her husband. Her heart was too full for utterance. A little while she thus gazed, and then, with a trembling joy, laid her head on his bosom. Angels were in the chamber where the dear ones slept, and titude to turn away from the heavenly messenger, they felt their holy presence.

But more distinctly marked than these, she could recall two separate occasions when she knew that the Holy Spirit was pleading with her. Repulsed or neglected at the first call he departed, yet came again. A second time was heard the secret whisper, and again she had refused to listen. Days, perhaps months passed on, and the Spirit's voice was hushed, while she who once wept or prayed grew careless as before, until, in indifference or despair, she could say, "I never expect to be anxious again."

We know not what mercy may do for even its most determined rejecter. Perhaps, through God's grace, her spirit, renewed and saved, may yet sing the humble song of the ransomed. But the soul that repeatedly grieves the Spirit of God invites a fearful danger.

Hampton October 18th 1859 Mr. J. B. Pettes, —Dear Sir.—I have used your Bheumatic Powder that I obtained from J. F. Secord your agent for New-Bruns wick, in June last for a pain that I had been troubled with in my shoulders for the last five years so that I could not put my coat on without Pain, and after using one powder that I and now can use my arms without pain night or day it is in my opinion, an invaluable remedy, happily adopted to remove the deseases for which it is design-ed. wilyeop (oct 26) M S.
