This useful book will, no doubt, in a few years, become

THE FAMILY BIBLE OF THE PEOPLE. The whole printed upon superior paper, and substantially and elegantly bound in one quarto volume of FINEST HONOLAND PAPER.

The Text, together with the Marginal References, is printed from the standard edition of the American Bible Society.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS. From the Herald, Edited by the late Professor Dusk. THE PICTORIAL BIBLE.—The title defines its object so fully as to render any particular detail unnecessary. The engravings are executed in a fine style of the art, and the paper and type are all that the most fastidious eye could require. We are not ourselves any great admirers of fancy Bibles, by Kito, and of which it should be understood, that we could dispense with a portion of those in the work; but we would rather they should be retained, than omitted at the expense of being deprived of a great many others of the same kind. The engravings are of a high order of merit, and we are not surprised that the publisher will be repaid for his great expense.

From the Boston Herald. It is full of engravings, representing the landscape scenery referred to in the Bible—the different objects of natural history—the costumes of the priests—and the historical events of the Bible. The engravings are of a high order of merit, and we are not surprised that the publisher will be repaid for his great expense.

the deed was done he reflected: "I have turned that boy out of school. Into what have I turned him? The streets. To the care of a mother who has no control over him whatever. What will become of him? He certainly will be ruined. I cannot give him up. I will try him again."

Once more, then, the boy was taken into that teacher's class. But he had by no means improved by his expulsion. He was as reckless, troublesome, ungovernable as before. No school could tolerate such a pupil.

What more could the teacher do? He tried a new measure. He took the little rebel after school into a small class room, and begged him to kneel by his side. The boy knelt. The teacher prayed until the heart of the boy was touched. Then the teacher arose, and taking the hand of his pupil, told him how Jesus loved his soul and died to save it. Then the boy's heart melted. The tears poured down his cheeks, and between the intervals of his own sobs and his teacher's remarks, he said:

"I never knew this before; I never thought of that before; I never thought any one loved me; I never thought that it was wicked, and that Jesus saw me."

That precious half hour of prayer and personal instruction did the work. The young rebel was subdued. His heart was won for Christ. Henceforth he became a quiet, industrious, faithful scholar. The seeds of a strong, healthy piety grew apace within him.

Years rolled around, and that "wild boy" became an upright man, an office-bearer in the church, a christian sailor. He is now mate of a large merchant vessel, a distributor of tracts, Bibles, and religious books; the supporter of his mother and family, and the sworn friend of his former teacher. In a word, all that surplus vitality which, when guided by his self-will and fancy, made him so intractable, is now turned into channels of christian activity, and he is as earnest for Christ as he was formerly for Satan.

What if that teacher had not tried that boy again? In all probability he would have been hanged. Trying again—half hour of personal effort especially—saved him. If the reader has a pupil whom he is disposed to turn out, I hope the success of the teacher with this young rebel will induce him to try again. Yes, brother teacher, try the intractable little fellow again.

KIND ECHOES.

There is a very pretty little saying, which, if not very common, is, I am sure, very true—it is this—"If we speak kind words, we will hear kind echoes."

"How is this, and what does it mean?" I fancy I hear a youthful voice exclaim.

Well, now, I will show you. If I could take you all at once to a deep valley between two high hills, or put you in some little nook between lofty mountains, or if I could place you in a boat on the lonely waters of a quiet lake, and then bid you to shout your name with all your might, you might hear it repeated once, twice, aye, and several times, growing each time fainter and fainter, till it died quite away on your ear. You might think that you had only spoken, and yet several seemed calling. Surely it is some one mocking; but no! it is only yourself, with your own little voice doing it all; so there is no need to be offended. You see what a wonderful power you have of making yourself heard. This, then, is the echo.

If you were not to speak, you would hear no echo. God has kindly made all these wonders, and they ought to teach us a useful lesson, if we would only think about every thing we see and hear. Kindness is like a sweet, soft echo; if little children would only speak loving words to each other, loving words come back again to them; and if they do kind actions, kind actions come back again.

I suppose I must add a little tale by way of illustration; so here it is:—

There was once a little girl at school in France, a great many years ago, and she was walking out one day with her companions in some beautiful public gardens. It happened that a poor soldier was there on duty, and not being able to leave his post, he begged the young ladies to bring him a little water. The companions, however, heeded him not, except to say how exceedingly impudent it was of a common soldier to speak to them. The little girl, however, had a kind and tender heart, and could not think of leaving a fellow-creature in want, when she might assist him. She therefore ran and procured some water, her companions, meantime, deriding her for doing so.

When she brought it to the poor soldier, he could not utter half his gratitude, he was so surprised and thankful; but he asked her name and address, and then she went away.

Not many days after, a dreadful massacre took place in that city, of all the Protestants, but that little girl was saved; and how do you think? The poor soldier had not forgotten his benefactress; the kind action had gone deep, even into the heart of one accustomed to scenes of cruelty or bloodshed, and the little girl felt the glad echo amid the sad desolation and gloom of that very eventful day.

Now go and practice my story, dear children; let your lips breathe forth only gentle words and words, and be ready at all times to do an act of love and kindness towards any human being.

"Speak gently! 'tis a little word, Dropped in the heart's deep well; To love, the joy that it may bring, Eternity will tell."

—Merry's Museum.

TOMATO SAUCE.—Take one dozen of ripe tomatoes, put them in a stone jar, stand them in a cool oven till quite tender. When cold, take the skins and stalks from them, mix the pulp in the liquor which you will find in the jar, but do not strain it, add two teaspoonsful of the best powdered ginger, a dessert spoonful of salt, a head of garlic, chopped fine, two table-spoonfuls of vinegar, a dessert spoonful of Chili vinegar or a little Cayenne pepper. Put into small mouthed sauce bottles, sealed. Kept in a cool place it will keep good for years. It is ready for use as soon as made, but the flavor is better after a week or two. Should it not appear to keep, turn it out, add more ginger; it may require some salt and Cayenne pepper. It is a long tried receipt, a great improvement to curry. The skins should be put into a wide-mouthed bottle, with a little of the different ingredients, as they are useful for hashes or stews.

TOMATO PRESERVES.—Take the round yellow variety as soon as ripe, scald and peel; then to seven pounds of tomatoes add seven pounds of white sugar, and let them stand over night; take the tomatoes out of the sugar, and boil the syrup, removing the scum; put in the tomatoes and boil gently fifteen or twenty minutes; remove the fruit again, and boil until the syrup thickens. On cooling, put the fruit into jars, and pour the syrup over it, and add a few slices of lemon to each jar, and you will have something to please the taste of the most fastidious.

TO PRESERVE POTATOES FROM ROT.—A writer in the Leader gives the following method of preserving potatoes from the rot. "As soon as the potato tops are observed to die they should be cut off close to the ground and carefully removed from the hills. The fact of the tops withering betrays the presence of a poisonous bug that bites the stalk, through which the poison is transmitted to the bulb. Hence the importance of removing the top before the rot becomes affected. When the potatoes are taken out they should be placed in some dry position, and covered with hay or straw till the time arrives for putting them into the cellar or root-house, when the mound once should be carefully picked out."

TRY HIM AGAIN. "Will you let your son attend Sunday school, mam?" said a Sunday school teacher to a mother who did not cherish the fear of God in her heart.

"I do not care if he does, for I am glad to get him out of the house, especially Sundays. He is an unruly fellow, and if you can manage him I shall be glad, for I am sure I can't."

With this ungracious commendation from his mother, the teacher took the boy. But the good man soon found that this boy was more than he could manage. Though only ten years old, he soon became the plague of the class, and the Arab of the whole school. He was brim full of antics. Now he would pinch a little fellow near him till he screamed, and when charged with the offence, stoutly deny it with a face as grave and solemn as penitence. By-and-by, when the teacher's heart was most earnest, and his appeals most tender, this boy would make a grimace so overpoweringly ludicrous as to set the whole class into a roar of laughter. Vainly did the teacher rebuke and entreat. Wickedness and mischief were his delight, and he would not be reformed.

Seeing him so incurably disobedient, the teacher turned him out of school. But when the deed was done he reflected: "I have turned that boy out of school. Into what have I turned him? The streets. To the care of a mother who has no control over him whatever. What will become of him? He certainly will be ruined. I cannot give him up. I will try him again."

Once more, then, the boy was taken into that teacher's class. But he had by no means improved by his expulsion. He was as reckless, troublesome, ungovernable as before. No school could tolerate such a pupil.

What more could the teacher do? He tried a new measure. He took the little rebel after school into a small class room, and begged him to kneel by his side. The boy knelt.
