Never had the heart of Liberia been so much softened towards Grace Vernon. Her gentleness, her sympathy, her loving-kindness, had not been unappreciated by Liberia in her time of trial, and now fears for the safety of her young the same time, it was no small effort to the shy companion pressed heavily upon Braburn's child. young girl to go in the character of a supplicant And yet Liberia could not defend her friend from what she knew to be injustice ; her father was in no mood to hear argument-he would have listened to no reason. The only answer which the poor girl gave to the words which distressed lady might decline making any attempt to avert her was a long drawn, shivering sigh.

"Why do you sigh ?" cried Jaspar, with impatience.

about the same hour as that in which Liberia em-

Grace was exceedingly anxious to do all that lay in her power to lighten the trouble of the Braburns. She felt hearty sympathy with Liberia, and strong pity for her father. It would be a great joy to Grace could she succeed in engaging on her behalf the interest of Lady Laurie. At Grace had not by nature the buoyant, sanguine temperament of Liberia, and many fears suggested themselves to her mind. She might not find Lady Laurie at Sandown; or, if still there, the just punishment from a traitor; or if persuaded to intercede, her intercession might be utterly vain !

sentences as these :

"O Lord-gracious Lord !- have pity on my thy goodness-I have been a rebel against thee-I have broken thy laws-I deserve all this suffering and misery which have now come upon me! Q Lord God! I own my wickeness-1 confess hand to his brow; "then I am indeed too late!" my sins-do thou forgive me-and help me and comfort met Thy dear Son died for sinners -and those who came unto him he never, never cast out ! He did not spurn even the meanesthe did not despise the most vile! If none other can help me, thou canst help-my hope is only in thee ! Lighten this terrible darkness, or guide me through it, O Lord! I may not plead with my earthly king, but to my Heavenly King will I pray! I must not tell my griefs to my earthly father, but thou, my Heavenly Father knowest all ! Take this proud and wilful heart, make it what thou wouldst have it to be; by thy Spirit sub-due all my sins, make me thy faithful servant ! And O most gracious God ! whatever miseries may lie before me, give me, for thy blessed Son's

Broken as was the prayer, it was the earnest utterance of the heart-it was like the cry of Hagar in the desert, when she and her child were perishing from thirst ; and though it drew down no visible angel to point to a fountain of comfort, Liberia felt an assurance that the Lord had heard her prayer. "Be not afraid, only believe." A calm and rest, such as she never had known before, gradually stole over her troubled mind. It was as when the Lord said to the stormy waters, "Peace, be still!" In the almost sleepless night which followed that day of distress, Liberia Braburn surrendered herself, body and soul, to her God. All the good influences which had 'ever been exerted to draw her towards Heaven, now showed a power which they had never before seemed to possess. Nina Braburn's counsels, once rejected ; Grace's example-long despised ; the earnest words of Gilbert-all were pondered over now in the dark and silent hour. It was good for Liberia to be afflicted, it was well for her that the earthquake had laid low her tower of pride, and revealed the secret evil of her heart. But if sinners have reason to be thankful when the whirlwind, the earthquake, and the fire prepared for God's " still small voice" of love, how much happier they who in life's sunny morn listen to it with delight ! If affliction be a mercy when it is sent as the rugged, dreaded sheep-dog to frighten back the wandering lamb, how much happier the lamb that willingly, cheerfully follows the steps of the Good Shepherd! If there be joy for the pardoned rebel, how blessed the " faithful soldier," who, in the strength of the spirit, has early fought the good fight ! O dear reader ! consider every day as a The Subscribers have received ex Steamships lost day, till that one which sees you give yourself up without doubt, without reserve, / to Him whose service is perfect freedom, and whose gift, eternal life. Liberia rose in the morning, still weary in body, but greatly refreshed in spirit. She felt that a day of severe trial was before her, but she hoped for strength to bear her through all. " Why art thou cast down, O my soul ! and why art thou disquieted within me. Hope thon in God, for I shall yet praise Him who is the help of my countenance and my God.'

As it was too early for Liberia to visit her imprisoned father, she beguiled the weary time by fulfilling her promise to her uncle, and learning by heart that chapter to which he had drawn her tion as containing full directions for a Christian's daily practice. As Liberia examined each verse, and tried her past conduct by its standard, how she marvelled that she had ever thought it casy to exercise Christian charity 1 How shame-fully in her case, had every duty been neglected ! And the young penitent could now trace the cause " Terrible things have happened," cried Grace, raising herself on her elbow, hardly conscious that father-have pity on me! WOULD take this opportunity of returning thanks to their friends and customers who have bestowed their patronage on them during the past eighteen months they have been in business, and would inform them that their patronage on them during the past eighteen months they have been in business, and would inform them that owing to their increasing trade and the small accommoda-tion afforded to their customers, they have enlarged their Store to double its former size, and fitted up the department for GENT'S WEAR, which will be kept stocked with every description of BOOTS, in Cong, Opera, Balmoral, and Oxford styles. Fine French Call Boots will be kept always on hand in great variety of style and measure, to suit fall who will favor them with a call. In the LADIES DEPARTMENT will be found an almost end-less variety of BOOTS, in Kid and Serge, made in the latest and most approved styles, such as will gratify the taste, tit the foot, and be durable as well. To their Wholesale Customers they would say that their Manufactory is now complete, having been fitted up the past winter with new machinery of the latest and most ap-proved pattern, such as is how being used in the States, and having received large quantities of Stock, the best afforded by the English and French markets, they will con-tinue to add their long experience as manufacturers in su-perintending every branch of labor, and by employing experienced cutters and operatives, they are determined to manufacture a class of Goods that cannot be surpassed in style, quality and workmanship, and their tacilities are such as to enable them to sell at such prices as will defy competition, and which cannot fail to prove satisfactory to all who will favor them with a call. We wish our friends to bear in mind that if any Good made at this Establishmeat do not prove as recommendes they can be returned, and the money will be cheerfully refounded. may 4 -vp
