Paetry.

Wanted-A Minister. We have been without a pastor
Some eighteen months or mon
And though candidates are plet
We've had at least a score—
All of them " fip-top" preachers
Or so their letters ran—
We're just as far as ever
From settling on the man.

The first who came among us By no means was the worst, But then weddon't think of him, Because he was the first; It being quiet the custom To sacrifice a few, Before the church in earnest

There was a smart young fellow With serious, earnest way, Who, but for one great blunder, Had suresy won the day; Who lett so good impression, On Monday, one or two, Went round among the people To see if he would do.

The pieus, godly portion,
Had not a fault to find;
His clear and searching, preaching
They thought the very kind;
And all went smooth and pleasant
Until they heard the views
Of some influential singles. Or some influential sinners Who rent the highest pews.

On these his pungent dealing
Made but a sorry hit;
The coat of gospel teaching
Was quite too tight a fit
Of course his fate was settled— Attend, ye parsons all / And preach to please the sinners If you would get a call.

Next came a spruce young dandy—
He were his hair too long:
Another's coat was shabby, And his voice not over strong And one New Haven student Was worse than all of those-We couldn't head the sermon For thinking of his nose!

Then wearying of candidates. We looked the country through, 'Mid doctors and professors, To find one that would do And after much discussion On who should bear the ark, With tolerable agreement We fixed on Dr. Parke.

Here, then, we thought it settled, But were amazed to find Our flattering invitation Respectfully declined.
We turned to Dr. Hopkins
To help us in the lurch,
Who strangely thought the college
Had claims above our church.

Next we dispatched committees By twos and threes, to urge The labora for a Sabbath
Of the Rev. Shallow Splurge. He came—a marked sensation,
So wonderful his style,
Followed the creaking of his boots
As he passed up the ailse.

His tones were so affecting, His gestures so divine, A lady fainted in the hymn Before the second line; And on that day he gave us, In accents clear and loud, The g eatest prayer ever addressed To an enlightened crowd.

He preached a double sermon And gave us angel's food. On such a lovely topic— "The joys of solitude: All full of sweet descriptions Of flewers and pearly streams, Of warbling birds, and moonlit greves, And golden sunset beams.

Of faith and true repentance. He nothing had to say: He rounded all the corners, And smoothed the rugged way: Managed with great adroitness
To entertain and please,
And leave the sinner's conscience Completely at its ease.

Six hundred is the salary We gave in former days— We thought it very liberal, And found it hard to raise; But when we took the paper,
We had no need to urge,
To raise a cool two thousand
For the Rev. Shallow Splurge.

In vain were all the efforts-We had no chance at all-We found ten city churches Had given him a call; And he, in praverful waiting, Was keeping all in tow, But where they paid the highest It was whispered he would go.

And now, good Christian brothers, We ask your earnest prayers, That God would send a shepherd To guide our church affairs, With this clear understanding A man, to meet our views, Must preach to please the sinners, And fill the vacant pews.

Death of Mrs. Livingstone.

On the 27th April, on the Zambesi, Africa, of fever, the wife of Dr. Livingston, The deceased joined the doctor on the Zambesi just as he reached the coast from his adventurous journey up the Shire to the Lake Nayassa. Her arrival was a very welcome one to him, a comfort and an assistance. For three months he had her society. Of course, she was attacked by fever-none ever escape in that region-but as she observed in an unfinished letter, had "got nicely over it," giving hope that her constitution and the usual remedies, with the blessing of God, would bear her up until her husband could put his new iron steamer together, and leave the inhospitable coast for the higher and more healthy regions of the Shire and lake. Providence had decreed otherwise. She was seized again; quinine failed in her case; for some days she lingered, then became unconscious, and died peacefully on Sunday, the 27th April. Her husband had attended her night and his loss most most keenly. His faithful wife, the mother of his children, taken so soon after joining him once more. The deceased lady was the daughter of the Rev. Robert Moffat, one of the most enterprising of African missionaries.

Mamma will do it Right. Don't, sister Ella, don't, mamma will do it right," said a little girl to her sister, who was nervously trying to pin dolly's dress. So they waited till mamma came, and when she looked upon the loving, upturned faces, all rose-tinted with health and innocent child-happiness, as she took dolly from the waiting hands, and with nimble fingers quickly arranged the trou-blesome dress, she thought not that the "angel over the right shoulder" was noting the smile of satisfaction now resting upon the faces of her busy darlings, nor did she know that she had strengthened their faith in goodness.

In all their little lives a mother's heart of love had never failed them, nor had her willing hands refused to smooth away their little difficulties; and they, in their turn, had crowned her with unquestioning confidence. Then, no enterprise would have seemed too mighty for her unfailing pow-

As these little ones could draw near their mother, and make known their wants, in the assurance that she would do the right, even so should we draw near unto our Heavenly Father, who is more ready to give, than we to ask for blessings; who is the source of love, and has given proof of his love to us, poor sinners, in comparison with which the untiring love of this fond mether fades out of remembrance.

Our Father, too, does all things well. Earthly parents may err even from excessive fondness, but he cannot err, who seeth all things from the beginning .- Sunday School Times.

"Time Enough."

There is time enough !" Do you think so? Remember, if you make a mistake in your calculations, your sincerity in the mistake will not avert the inevitable calamity, any more than your mistake in car time would prevent the cars leaving you. Do you soberly think you can afford any delay in becoming a christian? Look at the matter ere you carelessly say, "Time enough." Glimpses into the future are often deceptive. A large mirror, placed at the end of an apartment, causes the I will give him every assistance in my reom to appear double its length; you try to walk into the mirror itself. The last half is an illusion. Such, sometimes, nay, often, are our views of the future. It seems to stretch away a long, long distance before us, but alas! we are looking at an illusion-the real end is but a few paces in

You are not sure, therefore, how much time is before you. Is it not safest to seize the present? Now look with me past yonder guide board, at the point where two roads separate. A blind man has, by mistake, taken the one which you know will constantly lead him away from the place he wishes to reach. You shout to him and tell him of his error, and that he must turn back and take the other road but he carelessly exclaims, "Time enough." Do you not think him foolish as well as blind to proceed, when every step must be retraced? The sooner he makes a pause, the better, for his return will be easier. Friend do you not hear the voices of many, exclaiming "You are on the wrong road," and bidding you to turn. Can you turn too soon? Do you remember in early life, when coasting, how the sled, at first starting at a gentle speed, accelerated till at length it seemed almost to fly over the ice and snow? If, just as you were staring from the brow of the hill, a friend had given warning of some danger below, how readily you could have turned the sled and escaped injury. Suppose you had said, "I shall have time enough to turn when I get further down," when at length you come in sight of the danger, your sled is whizzing at a furious speed. You are liable now to turn into danger as much as out of it, for you can see nothing distinctly. You turn with difficulty, and at the risk of great difficulty, and at the risk of great injury. Friend, the broad road is slippery. It is trodden hard by thousands that have gone on before. Our evil nature passes down its slippery surface with accelerating swiftness. It is easier to turn now than even a month hence.

The Culture of Flax in Canada. To the Editor of the Montreal Gazette.

SIR,-In my last letter I reached the point of showing that the flax crop, to the farmer, is as easy to rise as any crop, say barley or wheat, and that the plan of allowing the flax to rot under the snow in winter obviates all the difficulty of steeping. All that has been stated is founded on fact and an exday, and was with her as she opened her mouth to breathe, and shut it to breathe no more, so quietly did her spirit depart. He has had many troubles, but this is the heaviest. He writes in the fulness of his heart, crushed for the time. The strong man is howed down; yet he tries to comfort. man is bowed down; yet he tries to comfort or miller purchasing it when it is driven to low her as she followed Christ, that they The flax dresser would, therefore, require to may join her in Heaven." "A grave was dug the next day," writes the brother, under the large Baobab," mentioned by the 500 cart loads, for all the flax would come officers of Captain Owen's expedition, and about 150 yards from Shupangu House, and there we buried her. It was a sad ing the whole year through. He would day for us all, and, of course, more parti-cularly for the bereaved doctor. He feels fair business and make it worth while. He ought to advertise that he is prepared to purchase from the farmers in 1863 all the flax they will bring forward in good order, either rotted under the snow or in water if they prefer it, at the rate of say £5 per ton of 2000 lbs., to make a beginning, and I think the farmers will be induced to begin to grow, and if found profitable will follow it up. But the difficulty is to make a beginning on a sufficiently large scale to induce the flax dressers to prepare for the trade. Half acres will never do; it ought to be in plots of from two to ten acres; so as to induce the grower to take good care of his crop—and to bring him in a sum of money. If farmers confine themselves to half acres they will get disgusted with it. Farmers ought on their part to advertise that they will sow so much each; so as to amount to 400 acres. If they do so am convinced the trade will be established at once, and instead of one, flax mill at Montreal, we shall have many; for the stuff can be carted as far as hay, and could come up the river from Vercheres, &c. in barges. It will pay the farmer from £10 to £15 per acre, and the flax miller will have a fair profit also. There are many details which I need not trouble you with, for if the project is followed up a pamphlet ought to be written with instructions and calculations for all concerned. The next question is to procure good seed. We should not be asking too much, to enable us to carry out our first year's experiment, if we asked the Board of Agriculture to import 200 bushels of Russian, and 200 bushels of Dutch seed, which would cost from 20s to 25s per bushel, and to sell it out to the farmers at the rate of 10s per busnel. Good new seed, and not spurious, is a most important matter; and if imported by the Bureau of Agriculture, the farmers would not be imposed on. It is always got fresh in Liverpool in March, and if imperted by first-class houses, genuine seed may be obtained. Messrs. Gillespie, Moffatt & Co. imported for me, in 1852, someseed of excellent quality, some of which is in the country to this day, and not much deteriorated. One importation of 400 bushels would supply us with seed for many years. Now, at the risk of being egotistical, and to show that I have every confidence in the trade, to make a beginning, I will engage to sow six arpents of flax in 1863. and ten or twenty in 1864; and as Mr. Converse proposes erecting scutching machinery at his Ropewalk at St. Gabriel, power, and I would recommend Mr. C. to advertise that he will be prepared to purchase all the flax that is brought to him in good order, either water rotten or under the snow, at £5 per ton of 2000 lbs.; and if the farmers will advertise to sow 400 acres, and the Board of Agriculture supply them with Russian and Dutch seed at 10s per bushel, I think our organization would be complete; and this business, when once known and found profitable will extend allover Canada, overthat part of Upper Canada where the climate is similar—that is, having snow on the ground from December to April.

It might be worth while to apply to the Belfast spinners to say what is the best scutching machinery to employ. There are two requisites,-first, to turn out a quantity, and next to do it well and not waste the flax. But there is no difficulty about the scutch mill. The most important thing is for the farmer to prepare the stuff properly for the flax dresser, and in quantity.

I am, Sir, &c. W. J. K.
