had five thousand, men across the Tennessee, and ers in our hands, and have ruthlessly destroyed our established on its south bank, and commenced the resources, than they do for their own soldiers. And construction of a pontoon bridge about six miles truth demands us to say that when the issue of starfrom Chattanooga. The rebel steamer Dunbar was vation between our own soldiers or the people and repaired at the right moment; and rendered effective aid in this crossing, carrying over 6000 men. aid in this crossing, carrying over 6000 men. By nightfall Gen. Thomas had seized the extremity of Missionary Ridge, nearest the river, and was point is reached, the Yankee prisoners will be the intrenching himself. General Howard, with a Brigade, opened communication with him from Chattanooga, on the south side of the river. Skirmishing and cannonading continued all the day on the left and centre. General Hooker scaled slopes of the Look-out Mouutsin, and from the valley of Lookout Creek, drove the rebels around the bend ; he captured some 2000 prisoners, and established himself high up the mountain side, in full view of Chattagoona. This raised the blackade, and now steamers were ordered from Bridgeport to Chattanooga. They had run only to Kelley's ferry, whence ten miles of hauling over mountain roads, and twice accross the Tennessee on the pontoon bridges, brought us our supplies. All night the point of Missionary Ridre, on the extreme left, and the side of Lookout Mountain, on the Aylesford, Nov. 26th, 1863. extreme right, blazed with the camp fires of loyal troops. The day had been one of dense mist and rain, and much of Gen, Hooker's battle was fought above the clouds, which concealed him from our view. but from which his musketry was heard. At nightfall the sky cleared, and the full moon, ' the traitor's doom,' shone upon the beautiful scene, until 1 A. M., when twinkhng sparks upon the mountain side showed that picket skirmishing was going on. Then it ceased. A brigade, sent from Chattanooga, crossed the Chattanooga creek and opened communication with Hooker. Gen. Grant's headquarters during the afternoon of 23d and the day of the 24th were in Wood's redoubt, except when in the course of the day he role along the advanced line, visiting the headquarters of the several commanders in Chattanouga Valley. At daylight on the 25th the stars and stripes were descried on the peak of Lookout. The rebels had evacuated the mountain. Hooker moved to descend the mountain, and, striking Mission Ridge, at the Rossville Gap, to sweep on both sides and on its summit. The rebel troops were seen as soon as it was light enough, streaming regiments and brigades along the narrow summit of Mission Ridge, either concentrating on the right to overwhelm Sherman, or marching for the railroad, and raising the seige. They had evacuated the valley of Chattanoo-ga. Would they abandon that of Chickamauga? The twenty pounders and four and a quarter inch rifles of Wood's redoubt opened on Mission Ridge, Orchard Knob sent its compliments to the Ridge, which rifled Parrotts, answered, and the cannonade thus commenced continued all day. Shot and shell screamed from Orchard Knob to Mission Ridge, and from Mission Ridge to Orchard Knob, and from Wood's redoubt over the heads of Generals Grant and Thomas and their staff, who were with us in this favorable position, from whence the whole battle could be seen as in an amphitheatre. The headquarters were under fire all day long. Cannonading and musketry were heard from General Sherman, and General floward marched the 11th corps to join them, Gen. Thomas sent out skirmishers, who drove in the rebel pickets and chased them into their intrenchments, and at the foot of Mission Ridge Sherman made an assault against Bragg's right, intrenched on a high knob next to that on which Sherman himself lay fortified. The assault was gallantly made. Sherman reached the edge of the crest and held his ground for it seemed to me an hour, but was bloodily repulsed by reserves. A general advance was ordered and a strong line of skirmishers followed by a deployed line of battle, some two miles in length. At the signal, of leaden shots from the headquarters at Orchard Knob, the line moved rapidly and orderly forward. The rebel pickets discharged their muskets and ran into their rifle pits. Our skirmishers followed" on their heels. The line of battle was not far behind, and we saw the gray rebels swarm out of the hedge line of rifle pits, in numbers which surprised us, and over the base of the hill. A few turned and tired their pieces, but the greater number collected into the many roads which cross obliquely up its steep face and went on to their top. Some regiments passed on and swarm-ed up the steep sides of the ridge, and here and there a color was advanced beyond the lines. The attempt appeared most dangerous, but the advance was supported, and the noble line was ordered to storm the heights upon which not less than forty pieces of artillery, and no one knew how many muskets, stood ready to slaughter the assailants. With cheers answering to cheers, the men swarmed upward. They gathered to the points least difficult of ascent and the line was broken. Color after color was planted on the summit, while musket and cannon vomited their thunder upon them. A well directed shot from Or-chard Knob exploded a rebel caisson on the summit, and the gun was seen galloping to the right, its driver lashing his horses. A party of our soldiers intercepted them, and the gun was captured, with cheers. A fierce musketry flight broke out to the left, where, between Thomas and Sherman, a mile or two of the ridge was still occupied by the rebels. Bragg left the house in which he had held his headquarters, and rode to the rear as our troops crowded the hill on either side of him. Gen. Grant kins, D'Oileys, Furuitare Phisb, &c. proceeded to the summit, and then did we only know its height. Some of the captured artillery was put into position. Artillerists was sent for to work the The rebel log breastworks were torn to pieces and FEATHERS. carried to the other side of the ridge and used in forming barricades across. A strong line of infantry was formed in the rear of Baird's line hotly engaged in a musketry contest with the rebels to the left, and a secure lodgment was soon effected. The other a secure toognight was not the centre gained the summit, and the right of our centre gained the summit, and the right of our centre gained the summit, and the right of our centre gained the summit, and the right of our centre gained the summit, the oker, coming in favorable position, swept the right of the ridge, and captured many prisoners. Bragg's remaining troops leit early in the night, and the bat the of Chattanooga, after days of maneuvring and tighting, was won. The strength of the rebellion in the centre is broken. Burnside is relieved from the the centre is broken. Burnside the centre is broken. Burnside is refleved from the danger in East Tennessee. Kentucky and Tennessee are rescued. Georgia and the Southcast are threat-ened in the rear, and another victory is added to the chapter of "Unconditional Surrender Grant." To chapter of cantures is several thousands of night the estimate of captures is several thousands of prisoners and thirty pieces of artillery. Our loss, for so great a victory, is not severe. Bragg is bring the railroad as he retreats towards Dalton. Sherman is in hot pursuit. To day I viewed the battle field, which extends for six miles along Missionary Ridge, and for several miles on Lookout Mountain. Probably not so well directed, so well ordered a battle has been delivered during the war. But one assault was repulsed—but that assault by cailing to that point, the rebel reserves, prevented them repulsing any of the others. A few days since Bragg sent to Gen. Grant a flag of truce, advising him that it would be prudent to not move any non-combatants who night be still in Chattanooga. No reply has been returned, but the combatants having removed from this vicinity, it is probable that non-combatants can remain without imprudence. M. C. MEIGS, Quartermaster General.

means, divide our 'half-rations,' but when the dying first to meet that alternative.'

One of Gen. Banks' staff officers writes to a friend \mathbf{F} at Washington that a large quantity of cotton was captured near Brownsville, and expeditions had been sent up the Rio Grande to gather in all they could find. It is thought that 250,000 bales will be thrown into the market by the occupation of Texas

SUPERIOR TO "ADAM BEDE!'

"BROKEN COLUMNS!" A NOVEL.

ONE VOLUME 12MO., PRICE, $1 50.

Peter Bayne the Essayist, says of it :-- "I have complied with your request and read 'Broken Columns,' car fully through. I do not hesitate to prononce it, in my judg-ment, superior to 'Adam Bede.' The plot is admirable, and the execution is a singular nearness to perfection. I am confident where it is read and known it will have an extensive sale.

Dr. A. C. Kendrick, Professor in Rochester University says :-- "I have now read it (Broken Columns) carefully through. Although I soon saw that it was written with a good deal of ability I could not fairly judge of it until I read it to the end. It is on the whole a very able and even powerfully written story. Its nioral tone is in the main unexceptionable and very impressive. I should advise its publication most decidedly. I shall be much surprised if it does not prove # great success."

Burnside has been in great danger, but Wilson with a large body of troops was marching to his relief. The army of the Potomac has met with some severe skirmishing in its advance. General French encountered Ewell's corps, a fearful conflict ensued, and the Federals lost from 1,000 to 15,000 killed and wounded, besides a good many prisoners. Meade is pressing on determined if possible to strike a fatal blow.

Charleston still holds out. All attempts to destroy Sumpter have as yet proved abortive, and the efforts to burn the city with shells have up to this shared a similar fate. But the Southerners have the impression that sooner or later the city will be destroyed. How can it be otherwise ? The barbor may remain impregnable, but that terrific Greek fire must ultimately wrap the place in flames.

&c. &c. One Volume 12mo. Price $1 50.

Marion Harland, author of "Alone," "Nemesis," &c., says of it:--"I predict for PETER CARRADINE a wider popu-larity than has been achieved by any other of Miss Chese-bro's books; good and noble as they all are. You are geminded, all the while, that she writes with a purpose, as well as a power, that the earnest, God fearing soul of the philauthropist has travelled here for the good of her kind, tot the mere 'sensation' romancist written for the enter ment of an idle hour. ' "All of Miss Chesebro's work are good in method, style, and purpose, and this is one of her best It is, as a story, admirably told, and is full of that spirit and wisdom which is from above."—Christian Intelligencer. "A novel of unusual interest and attraction, original in its plan and treatment, and bringing out fresh and piquant passages in rural life."-N. 1. Ouserver.
