sks leading questions. The criminal himself is considered as a most important witness, and the jury may give a majority instead of a unanimous verdict which is equally decisive. The decorum of the law courts is most impressive, and the swearing of a witness is a most solemn ceremony, the form being similar to our own; the oath is administered to the witness who holds the sacred book in his hand, while jury, advocates, and spectators, rise in their places and remain uncovered in perfect silence.

The Empire of Brazil is divided into 20 provinces each having its own governor and parliament, vested with local authority, but the Imperial government, like the Congress of the United States, regulates all national affairs. Every man who is not a criminal or a slave, who is possessed of an income from real estate, of 20 pounds a year is a legal voter in all the elections of Province and Empire (so we understood the lecturer). There are two large and flourishing. law schools, one of them having 500 students, so that the Brazilians are not likely to suffer for want of Slavery exists in Brazii, but the African slave trade has been abolished, and the domestic trade along with the institution of slavery itself, is drawing speedily to an end. The Emperor declares his determination to put it down by all means in his power, and already under the mild laws, which permit every slave to buy his own freedom, one third of the former slaves have become free. Some persons predict that in two, or at most five years, slavery will be practically dead

The markets next occupied the attention of the peaker, for a few moments. He also gave some account of the flora of the country, and stated some interesting facts concerning the insect tribe. Fireflies were common, which gave a strong stoady light, sufficient to illuminate the trees, among whose branches they sported, and the lecturer declared that by the ht of one of them imprisoned under a glass shade, ne had been able to read the finest print in Harper's Magazine. Ladies often wear them in the gossamer flounces of their dresses, and the natives sometimes fasten them between their toes, and going out on the rivers or lakes in their canoes, and sticking their feet over the side, spear the fish who are attracted by these singular torches.

The Emperor of Brazil, Don Pedro II, was the last the pleasant pictures which the lecturer presented. escended from royal Austrian and Portuguese fami-Descended from royal Austrian and Portuguese families, he has risen by his real worth above the position of Emperor, and has shown himself a man. He has a splendid figure, six feet four, and ample proportions, a broad full forehead, pleasing countenance and manners, and a natural acuteness of perception, which enables him to detect pretention or deception in a moment, yet he is always willing to give attention to any project for the advantage of his people, and may be often seen at the meetings of the Royal agricultural society, or the Historical society, deeply interested in their progress and operations. Fond of literature, he is well acquainted with all the best anthors with English and American, among the authors, with English and American, among the latter, Longfellow seems to be his favorite. He speaks six languages, is a fair amateur painter, a good topographical engineer, and a very superior chemist. His noble patriotism and personal excellence is a model for the world and of the four Emperors, of Millions Rix dollars.

France, of Austria, and of Russia, Don Pedro II of France, of Austria, and of Russia, Don Pedro II of France, of Austria, and of Russia, Don Pedro II of France, in response to Brazil is the noblest of them all.

Thus ended the lecture, which was interspersed with sallies of wit and bits of quaint humor and altogether was the most pleasing and instructive lecture, which the Institute directors have furnished to us for years. Success to the Institute in this liberal policy, success to the Rev. lecturer, and success to the noble Emperor of Brazil.

On the 1st of January, 1864, and thenceforward, money-orders will be issued by all money-order offices in the United Kingdom on the colonies of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, at the same rates of charge and under the same regulations as those already in force with respect to other colonies with which money-order business is transacted. Austrian ministerial crisis terminated. Von Schmerling continued in cabinet.

French Senate finally adopted address in its en entirety. Liverpool Post gives prominence to the fol-lowing paragraph: "We consider ourselves in position to state that Lyons in despatch to Russell from Washington, announces that war will be terminated within next three months. Confederates being in greatest extremities will have speedily to propose armistice. In our informant we have fullest possible confidence. It is possible Lincoln's proclamation has reference to facts on which Lord Lyons grounded his conclusions."

The synopsis of Lincoln's message and proclamation, received per Arabia via Halifax, attracted general comment. London Times looks upon Message as warlike, and says the effect of the whole document, amnesty included, resembles that of a lost battle. The offer of peace is made on terms that cannot b accepted. The whole question still depends on the fortune of war. Times says it may be gratifying to the North to be formally assured that the Government is strong and successful enough to offer amnesty, but it is evident Lincoln anticipates no pacific result, nor does the Secretary of the Treasury, who looks forward still to two years' war expenditure. Commercial circles of New York appear to share misgivings, the premium on gold having risen under Message. Daily News awaits the arrival of full Message before giving opinion. Morning Post thinks Lincoln must be joking. It says he should have remembered that the Confederate army is encamped within one hundred miles of Washington before he ventured to dictate such terms of amnesty. Morning Herald ridicules the proclamation and de-Morning Herald ridicules the proclamation and de-nounces the vindictive spirit of proffered amnesty which it says offers nothing which could be with-held if the last Southern Town had been taken, and last Southern Regiment was cut to pieces. The real object is to establish pseudo states government wherever secure foothold can be found. Morning Star applauds, the honesty of Lincoln, rejoices at his determination to hunt down Slavery, and says his peace overtures to the South are large and liberal. It is stated that British admirality had sent agent to America sometime ago to inspect and Reported Federal Commissioner in Holstein received instructions to administer existing laws without prejudice to the rights of the Sovereign, and with as little inconvenience to inhabitants as possible. Austrian Troops continue to arrive at Hamburg. New York swarms with spies, traitors and blockade runners. They have their place of rendezvous. They have signs by which they recognize each other. They have a fund to which they resort for pecuniary relief. They have agents who send supplies to rebels in arms. Goods are shipped to California, intercepted at Aspinwall, and sent in that round about way to the Confederate armies. The last steamer that sailed for California carried out a couple of cart-loads of specie, and great quantities of provisions booked for the land of gold, but designed for the rebels. Vessel has followed vessel, laden with arms and stores for the rebels. * * * * * * Rebel bearers of despatches pass through the cities of New York, Boston, and Portland daily, leaving by steamers at these various points, and keeping up an unbroken communication with rebel agents abroad.

STATISTICS OF LIPE AND DRATH .- FIGURES DO NOT Lis.—We have faith in statistics. They give the death-blow to all false doctrine and empiricism in science, and blow sky-bigh the fine spun theories of unpractical men. Medical statistics are of special mportance. They teach us to estimate at their just value the curative powers of the drugs, which are the stereotypes of the "profession." And what is their value? Figures, which do not lie, show that in all dangerous complaints the "regular practice" of the "faculty" loses at least as many as it saves. But, then, the doctors tell us that those who die are "incurables." If this be so, how is it that so many victims of the most virulent internal and external disorders, whom the profession had given up, have recovered through a persevering use of Holloway's Pills and Holloway's Ointment? There can be no doubt about the fact, we opine, and we want sombody to account for it. To our plain mind, it appears that if chronic dyspepsia cannot be cured by the doctors, and is cured with unerring certainty by Holloway's Pills, that the latter remedy is worth the whole medicinal stock of the faculty, as a means of relieving that complaint. So again, if a "given up" case of scrofular or erysipelas becomes rapidly convalescent under the action of the Ointment, we cannot escape the conclusion that it is the true specific for external disorders, and that the "regular pharmacopoeia" contains nothing that will compare with it as a means of subduing that class of maladies.

This is good logic, we believe. If any cavil at it, we will admit their demurrers when they can show us a better basis for argument than facts.—State

Pro bono publico, is a motto, "more honored in the breach than the observance," but attached to Holloway's Pills and Ointment it is significant of their value throughout the civilized world. For the cure of asthma, coughs, colds, cutaneous eruptions, and banquet constitutions, they are the sheet anchor of the sick.

COUNTERFEITS.—Having, after much trouble and considerable expense, discovered the party who has been counterfeiting my Pills in the Canadas, and having received a complete list of all those to whom they were sold, and having had what remained of such counterfeits destroyed, and the proper steps taken to prevent a recurrence of such counterfeiting; and being well satisfied that none but the genuine are now in market, I have come to the conclusion, in order to prevent aunovance to the dealers in my long established remedies, not to change the wrappers around the packages of such remedies, but have them continue as hereforce.
