I visited some portions of the line by moonlight and can bear personal witness to the terrible ferocity of the battle. In front of some of our brigades, who had good protection from stone walls or fences, the rebel dead laid piled in lines like winrows of hay In front of Gen. Webb's the Philadelphia-brigade, they lay so thick as to literally cover the ground. Not far from here was found the body of Gen. Barks-dale, that once haughty and violent rebel, who craved as a dying boon a cup of water and a stretcher from an ambulance-boy. He is literally cut to pieces with wounds, and must die. A great and magnificent feature of this fight was the splendid use of artillery. Though our line of battle was only a mile and a half long, yet almost overy battery belonging to the Army of the Potomac I visited some portions of the line by moonlight and can bear personal witness to the terrible ferocity of the battle. In front of some of our brigades, who battle was only a mile and a half long, yet almost overy battery belonging to the Army of the Potemac was more or less engaged. Every one of the reserve batteries was brought into action, the positions for use being numerous. The enemy also used artillery largely, but not to near so great an extent as we did. From this they suffered immensely, and specially on the left, where canister was largely used. I believe we lost no artillery, unless it was two or three dis-abled pieces, though it was very wonderful we did not.

The official despatches from General Meade of this engagement, is dated Head Quarters, Army of the Potomac, 11 o'clock P. M., July 2d. The enemy attacked me about 4 o'clock this afternoon, and, after one of the severest contests of the war, was repulsed at all points. We have suffered considerably in killed and wounded. Among the former are Brigadier Generals Paul and Zook; and among the wounded, Generals Sickles, Barlow, Graham and Warren slightly. We have taken a large number of prisoners. On the following morning July 3d (8 o'clock), he telegraphs to Washington again :---The action commenced again at early daylight upon various parts of the line. The enemy thus far have made no impression upon my position. All accounts agree in placing their whole army here. Prisoners agree in placing their whole any determining their and A. P. Hill's forces were much injured yesterday, and that many general offi-cers were killed. General Barksdale, of Mississippi, mistake occur in the shape of omissions, name, or amount, is dead. His body is within our lines. We have thus far about sixteen hundred prisoners, and a small shots were exchanged. Shortly afterward the ene-my's left, composed entirely of infantry and sharp-shooters, made an attack on the right wing. So sudden and impetuously was it accomplished that our skirmishers and front line were driven back from their intrenchments, but by the aid of the batteries in the rear and the indomitable bravery of the 12th corps, rear and the indomitable bravery of the 12th corps, we regained the first position, capturing a consider-able number of prisoners. Several hours of ominous silence followed this repulse. At one o'clock the eneugy fired two shots, aparently as signals for the grandest artillery fight ever witnessed on this conti-nent. Before a moment had elapsed it is estimated hent. Before a moment had elapsed it is estimated that at least 80 guns opened upon us. Our batteries returned the compliment with interest. The air seemed literally filled with iron, and for more than an hour it seemed impossible that man or beast could live through it. Strange to say, the enemy's accu racy of range, as exhibited on the two previous days, weather an an analy in a set of the second set. was wanting on this occasion, most of their shells exploding far in the rear of our batteries. Under cover of this Lee advanced his columns of infantry and made several desperate attempts to carry the lines by assault, but each successive attempt wa repulsed with terrible havoc to the rebel ranks.

After an hour's incessant cannonading the fire grew less intense for a short time, but was again renewed for a little while with great slaughter. During this period some of our batteries, whose ammunition being expended and the men exhausted, ceased to fire, and, on the approach of the reserve batteries, withdrew to the rear. The enemy only seeing the batteries with-drawing, and mistaking this for a refreat, made a rapid infantry charge up the hill, and obtained a position in our line, cutting to pieces and almost an-ribilating the small infantry supports; but before they had time to rejoice at their imaginary suc-cess the batteries poured in a deadly fire of canister and case shot. The infantry reserves joined on either flank of the gap, charged them and added greatly to their destruction. They were completely surprised, and hundreds threw down their arms and asked for quarter. Nearly the entire brigade of Gen. Dick hour's incessant cannonading the fire and hundreds threw down their arms and asked to quarter. Nearly the entire brigade of Gen. Dick Garnett surrendered, and Garnett himself was wounded and barely made his escape. Longstreet was mortally wounded and captured. He is reported to have died in an hour afterwards. About 4.30 P. M. the artillery of the enemy slackened and had entirely ceased at 5 o'clock, the last shots they fired being far ceased at 0 o clock, the last shots they here being ar beyond their original position, and the infantry columns had withdrawn to their covers. We took upwards of three thousand prisoners. The enemy captured by few if any of our men.

Instead of fortifying passes of the South Mountain, as reported, Lee pushed for Williamsport, Harrisburg despatches, last evening, says Lee's aruny was at Williamsport, drawn up on the bank of

The battle, as will be gathered from Gen. Meade's second despatch, was resumed again on Friday the 3d. The Confederates, as usual, commenced it. The following report of it is dated Head Quarters, Army of the Potomac, July 3d. "The decisive battle has been fought today, and the enemy have been repulsed with terrific loss. The day for sneering at Spurgeon has gone by. He has undeniable power: his imagination is most tervid, and his faculty of presenting the scenes he imagines is not supas-sed by Whitfield or by Elder Knapp in his best days. The searching doctrines and the unflinching application of Spurgeon have done more real good to his hearers in one hour than centuries of attendance upon the Rev. Cream Cheese or the Rev. Milkywater would be likely to do. We commend these new sermons to all who like to see the most pungent and humbling doctrines of the gospel with re-morseless energy. The printed sermons of Whitfield are tame and powerless by the side of Spurgeon.

General Meade's official despatch reads as follows :

General Meade's official despatch reads as follows: HEADQUARTERS ARAT POTOMAC, Near Gettysburg, July 3-8.30 r. x. Major General Halleck, Commander-in-Chief: The enemy opened at 1 P. M. from about 150 guns concentrated upon my left centre, continuing without intermission for about three hours, at the expiration of which time he assaulted my left centre, being upon both occasions han isomely repulsed, with severe loss to him, leaving in our hands nearly 3000 prisoners. Among the prisoners is Brig. Gen. Armistead and many Colonels and officers of lesser rank. The enemy left many dead upon the field and a large number of wounded in our hands. The loss upon our side has been considerable. Major wounded in our hands. The loss upon our side has been considerable. Major General Hancock and Brigadier General Gibbons were wounded. After repelling the assault, indica-tions leading to the belief that the enemy might be withdrawing, an armed reconnoissance was pushed forward from the left and the enemy found to be in force. At the present hour all is quiet. My cavalry have been engaged all day on both flanks of the enemy, harassing and vigorously attack-ing him with great success, notwithstanding they encounter superior numbers, both of cavalry and infantry. The army is in time spirits. ntry. The army is in tine spirits. Signed) G. MEADE, Lines on the death of Robert Huelat, aged 8 years and 10 months, only son of William and Pheebe Main. O dear Mamma, weep not for me, Though helpless here thy darling lies, My happy spirit soon shall be, In yon bright world above the skies, O dear Paps, weep not for me. Though far away when death had come, My spirit now can gaze on thee, And see the silent tear drop down. My Mamma by my bedside stood, All my wants she did supply, And words of comfort then she spoke, To sooth my spirit when I died.

Behold the kindness of the Lord, To take me from a world like this; From scenes of trouble here below, To share the joys of perfect bliss.

My life was like the summer flower, That blooms in beaaty for a day, But when the evening blast sweeps o'er, How soon its glory fades away.

These who have listened to her vivid delineations of missionary life in the East, will be pleased to recognize in this volume the scenes to which she introduced them.
