The Family Circle.

LITTLE HARRY'S RICHES.

A TRUE INCIDENT.

One day our little Harry spent the forenoon with his young playmate Johnny C——. Johnny's mother had died when he was a baby, but his father was still living. He was an only child, and he dwelt in a fine house, and on Sundays rode to church in the grandest carriage to be met with in all the country round. He had lots of toys, and a real watch that would go all day without stopping; and as for candies and cakes, why the physician who attended the family said that Johnny had enough of such things given him to supply a whole regiment of little boys. He was a funny doctor, and liked to make queer speeches; but for all that, he would often shake his head very gravely when he felt Johnny's pulse, and then he would look sternly at the great big gold watch he held in his hand to count the pulse-beats, and mutter, "Too many good things are bad things for youngsters." Johnny would try for awhile to puzzle out the strange sentence, but as he generally was sick on these occasions, he would soon give up the attempt in despair, and close his eyes, longing to get well so that he might eat plum-cake and pop-corn balls again.

But I must return to my story. Johnny was not always sick; and, as I said before, he had lots of beautiful things; so of course this visit promised to Master Harry a world of enjoyment. But, alas! when the poor fellow returned home in the afternoon, his brow was clouded, and he had a dismal look in his blue eyes, and the least bit of a pout on his cherry lips.

Something was wrong, I knew, and at last out it came.

"Mother, Johnny's got money in both his pockets!"

"Has he, dear?"

"Yes, ma'am, and he says he could get ever so much more if he wanted it."

"Well, now, that's very pleasant for Johnny," I returned, cheerfully, as a reply was evidently expected. "Very pleasant, don't you think so?"

"Yes, 'um; only—"

"Only what, Harry?"

"Why, he has a big pop-gun and a watch and a hobby-horse, and lots of things." And Harry looked up at my face with a stare.

"Well, my boy, what of that?"

"Nothing, mother," and the tell-tale tears sprang to his eyes, "only I guess we're very poor, ar'nt we?"

"No indeed, Harry, we are very far from poor. But we are not as rich as Mr. C——'s family, if that is what you mean."

"Oh, mother," insisted the little fellow, "I do think we're VERY poor: anyhow I am!"

"Oh, Harry! I exclaimed, reproachfully.

"Yes, ma'am, I am," he sobbed; I hav'n't scarcely anything at all—I mean anything that's worth money—except things to eat and wear, and I'd have to have them any way."

"Have to have them?" I echoed, at the same time laying my sewing upon the table, so that I might reason with the young gentleman on this point; "do you not know, my son—"

Just then Uncle Ben looked up from the paper he had been reading, and called the disconsolate little fellow to his side.

"Harry," said he solemnly, "you know I'm a doctor, and if you'll give me a chance to try some experiments, you can earn quite a handful of money."

"Can I?" asked Harry, looking up quickly through his tears; "I'd like that ever so much; but what is a 'speriment, Uncle?"

Uncle Ben explained, and then proceeded to business.

"In the first place," he resumed quietly, "I want to see the back part of somebody's eyes, so that I can find out how they are made, you know; and I'll buy yours of you for one dollar apiece. Come here, bub, I'll take them out for you as quick as a wink."

"Take out my eyes, Uncle!" exclaimed Harry, turning pale at the very thought, "for two dollars? I think not!" and the electrified youth shook his head defiantly.

"Well, five, ten, twenty dollars, then?" but Harry shook his head still.

"No, sir! I wouldn't let you for a thousand dollars. Why, what could I do without my eyes? I couldn't see mother, nor the baby, nor the flowers, nor the horses, nor nothing," added Harry, waxing warmer.

"I'll give you two thousand," urged Uncle Ben, taking a queer-looking instrument out of his pocket. (Harry rushed frantically over to my chair, and shouted that he never would do any such thing.)

"Very well," continued his Uncle, with a serious air, at the same time writing down something in his note-book, "I can't afford to give you more than two thousand dollars, Hal, so I shall have to do without the eyes; but," he added, "I'll tell you what I will do; I'll give you twenty dollars if you will let me put a few drops out of this bottle into your ears. It won't hurt, but it will make you deaf. I want to try some experiments with deafness, you see. Come quickly now! Here are twenty dollars all ready for you."

"Make me DEAF!" shouted Harry, without even looking at the gold pieces temptingly displayed upon the table. "I guess you won't do that either. Why, I couldn't hear a word if I was deaf, could I?"

"Probably not," replied Uncle Ben, dryly. So, of course, Harry refused again. He would never give up his hearing, he said, "no, not for three thousand dollars!"

Uncle Ben made another note in his book, and then came out with prodigious bids for "a right arm," then "left arm," "hands," "feet," "nose," etc., finally ending with an offer of ten thousand dollars for "Mother," and five thousand for the baby.

To all of these offers, however, Harry shook his head, his eyes flashing, and exclamations of surprise and indignation bursting from his lips. At last Uncle Ben said he must give up his experiments, for Harry's prices were entirely too high.

"Indeed they are," shouthed the boy exultingly, and he folded his dimpled arms, and looked as if to say, "I'd like to see the man who could pay for them!"

"Why, Hal, look here!" exclaimed Uncle Ben, peering into his note-book, "here is a big addition sum, I tell you; come help me do it."

Harry looked into the book, and there, sure enough, were all the figures, though he had not the slightest idea how to add them together. Uncle Ben read the list aloud:

EYES,	$2,000
EARS,	3,000
RIGHT ARM,	2,500
LEFT ARM,	1,500
HANDS,	3,000
FEET,	4,000
NOSE,	500
TEETH,	500
TONGUE,	1,000
MOTHER,	10,000
BABY,	5,000

He added the numbers together, and they amounted in all to thirty-two thousand dollars.

"There Harry," said Uncle Ben, "don't you think you are foolish not to take up some of my offers?"

"No, sir, I don't," answered Harry resolutely.

"Then," said Uncle Ben, "you talk of being poor, and by your own showing you have treasures that you'll not take thirty-two thousand dollars for. What do you say to that?"

Harry didn't know exactly what to say—so he [illegible] for a second, and just as a big tear came rolling down his cheek, he threw his chubby arms around my neck.

"Mother," he whispered, "how good God is to make everybody so rich!"

Harry is an older boy now, and he knows that his Heavenly Father has also given him treasures far beyond those upon which he put so high a value—priceless treasures, not belonging to earth alone, but which he may carry with him even to the golden shore.—Independent.

HINTS ABOUT CHILDREN.

The moral teachings should commence with the earliest infancy; the physical as soon as there is bodily locomotion; the mental, meaning thereby the literary, not earlier than the completion of the sixth year, not even to the extent of learning the alphabet or repeating by "rote;" mere mechanical memorizing. This brain education is specially advised in reference only to children whose situation in life allows them to study until they are twenty-one. The children of the poor—those who must go to work and earn something—can with safety begin at the age of three or four years, for three reasons: They are out in the open air nearly all the time during daylight.—Their food is plain and not over abundant. The early necessity that they should do something for a living does not allow time for special brain disturbance; and any slight tendencies in that direction would be counteracted and repaired by the constant muscular activities necessary to their condition. But those children who will have nothing to do but "get their education," up to the day of entering their twenty-first year, ought to do nothing for the first third of that period but to eat, and sleep, and play out of doors from morning until night, all the year round, except when rain, sleet or snow are falling. It is the exercise daily, "regardless of the weather," which works so many almost miracles in the renovation of human health. The vanity of parents is fed by the "smartness" of their children; but early ripe, early ruined, may be said of all precocities. If not actually ruined, there is almost in all cases a sudden "giving out" of the mental powers, and the prodigy of yesterday is the mediocre of to-day, and the non compos mentis of to-morrow.—Hall's Journal of Health.

WELL TO KNOW.

Never go to bed with cold feet if you want to sleep well.

A loosely fitting boot or shoe, while travelling in winter, will keep the feet warmer without any stocking at all, than a tight pair, over the thickest, warmest hose.

Never put on a pair of new boots or shoes on a journey; rather wear your easiest, oldest pair; otherwise you will soon be painfully disabled.

It is better to have no button or string about any garment worn during the night. A long, loose nightgown is the best thing to sleep in. Many a man has facilitated an attack of apoplexy by buttoning the shirt collar.

If a person faints, place him instantly flat on a bed, or floor, or earth, on his back, and quietly let him alone at least ten minutes, if it is simply a fainting fit, the blood, flowing on a level, will more speedily equalize itself throughout the system; cold water dashed in the face, or a sitting position are unnecessary and pernicious.

If you wake up of a cold night and find yourself very restless, get out of bed, and standing on a piece of carpet or cloth of any kind, spend five or ten minutes in rubbing the whole body vigorously and rapidly with the hands, having previously thrown the bed clothing towards the foot of the bed, so as to air both bed and body.

If you happen to get wet in cold weather, keep moving on foot with a rapidity sufficient to keep off a feeling of chiliness until you get into a house, and not waiting to undress, drink instantly and plentifully of hot tea of some sort; then undress, wipe dry quickly, and put on warm dry clothing.

If you find that you have eaten too much, instead of taking something to settle the stomach, thus adding to the load under which it already labors, take a continuous walk, with just enough activity to keep up a slight moisture or perspiration on the skin, and do not stop until entirely relieved, but end your exercise in a warm room so as to cool off very slowly.

Never put a pin in the mouth or between the teeth, for a single instant, because a sudden effort to laugh or to speak may convey it into the throat or lungs, or stomach, causing death in a few minutes, or requiring the windpipe to be cut open to get it out; if it has passed into the stomach, it may, as it has done, cause years of suffering, ceasing only when it has made its way out of the body through the walls of the abdomen or other portion of the system.

SUNLIGHT IN HOUSES.—The following fact has been established by careful observation:—That where sunlight penetrates all the rooms of a dwelling the inmates are less liable to sickness than in a house where the apartments lose its health invigorating influence. Basement rooms are the nurseries of indisposition. It is a great mistake to compel human beings to reside partially under ground.

There is a defective condition of the air in such rooms, connected with dampness, besides the decomposing paint on the walls, and the escape of noxious gases from pipes and drains. All school rooms especially, should be open to the sunlight; yet, as a general rule, they are darkened like a parlor.

THE ART OF LAUGHING.—The man that laughs is a doctor without a diploma; his face does more good in a sick room than a bushel of powders, or a gallon of bitter draughts. People are always glad to see him—their hands instinctively go half way out to meet his grasp, while they turn involuntarily from the clammy touch of the dyspeptic who speaks on the groaning key. He laughs you out of your faults, while you never dream of being offended with him; and you know not what a pleasant world you are living in, until he points out the sunny streaks on its pathway.

HOW TO LOAD YOUR HORSES.

To load a horse properly requires judgment and care. Many a good horse has been ruined by carrying overweight, or being trusted to the care of an inexperienced person. The load should be just what the horse is able to take along comfortably, without fretting or sudden pulls. If it is too small, time is wasted in travelling over the route oftener than need be; if it is too large, strength and health are wasted in the animal, and its constitution broken down. A horse carefully used in this respect will live longer, perform his work better, and retain his good spirits, good temper and good looks. Nothing has so wrought upon our feelings as to see some thoughtless brute whipping an overloaded, strained, knock-kneed horse, to get more work out of him than there is in him. Such policy is short-sighted as well as cruel. There is a point beyond which the strength of the horse ought not to be tried, unless it is for the saving of human life, or some great purpose. Yet teamsters habitually neglect the golden rule, and urge their exhausted creatures over the road, puffing and sweating from every exertion, every muscle strained to the utmost, every nerve quivering with agony or excitement. Such things ought not to be. Many men err from lack of judgment, and overload a willing horse because they do not know how much he ought to draw. All drivers should remember that it is better to err on the right side, and to carry too little than too much.

Queen Insurance Company.
CAPITAL—ONE MILLION STERLING.
RETURN OF FIRE INSURANCE DUTY FOR 1861.
(Ordered by the House of Commons to be printed, July 8, 1861.)
THE usual Annual Return, just published by the Government, shows that the Increase of Duty paid by the "Queen Insurance Company," 1861 over 1860, exceeded that of thirty-eight other Fire Offices, some of which have been in operation for upwards of half a century. While the return shows a falling off in the amount paid by six offices, it also shows that the increase of the Queen exceeded that of all the London offices but two, and all the Scotch offices but one (which, during the year, had absorbed the business of another office.) The increase of the Queen also exceeded all the Provincial offices but two, and was nearly five times that of both the Irish offices put together. Taking the gross amount of duty for the last two years, the return shows that the Queen was the only office which, in that period, had doubled the amount paid. These facts, based upon the highest authority, prove that the eminent position thus occupied by the Queen Insurance Company, is doubtless owing to the high character of its proprietary, and the distinguished liberality of the Directors in the settlement of losses. Gratified by the remarkable confidence heretofore reposed in the Queen, it will be the constant endeavour of the Management to sustain the high reputation the Company has already obtained.

Public Speakers and Singers.
Few are aware of the importance of checking a Cough or "slight Cold" in its first stages; that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs. Brown's Bronchial Troches are a most valuable article, especially so at this season of the year, when Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness and Sore Throat are so prevalent. The Troches give sure and almost immediate relief.
From Rev. J. McMurray, Halifax, N. S.
Having suffered several years with Throat Affection, to which clergymen are especially subject, and having used various remedies, I have pleasure in giving my testimony as to the relief I have had in the discharge of my Sabbath labors from the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. They have been a great relief. Others to whom I have recommended them have used them with advantage.

With Fifty Thousand Marginal References.
TO WHICH ARE ADDED,
Ancient Chronology, by Abraham Calovius; a Summary of the whole Scripture; an accurate Copperplate-Map of Palestine; a beautiful engraved Family Record, &c. &c.
Each Chapter commences with an Illuminated Letter.
This is, without doubt, the Cheapest and best Family Bible in the market. It is destined, if we can form an opinion from the Notices of the Press, as published herewith, to have an unprecedented circulation in every section of our country. This useful book will, no doubt, in a few years, become
THE FAMILY BIBLE OF THE PEOPLE.
The whole printed upon superior paper, and substantially and elegantly bound in one quarto volume of FIFTEEN HUNDRED PAGES.
The Text, together with the Marginal References, is printed from the standard edition of the American Bible Society.
OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
From the Hierophant, Edited by the late Professor Bush.
THE PICTORIAL BIBLE.—"The title defines its object so fully as to render any particular detail unnecessary. The engravings are executed in a fine style of the art, and the paper and type are all that the most fastidious eye could require. We are not ourselves any great admirers of fancy sketches in the Bible, whether by great or little masters, and we could dispense with a portion of those in the work; but we would rather they should be retained, than omitted at the expense of being deprived of a great many others of authentic character and real worth, going to throw important light upon the topography, costumes, antiquities, and various eastern monuments, alluded to in the Scriptures. These are many of them drawn from the English Pictorial Bible, by Kitto, and of which, it should be understood, that this is not a reprint, being destitute of note or comment, though provided with a large apparatus of marginal references. It has merely adopted a considerable portion of its more valuable pictorial illustrations. By retaining these and omitting the notes, the publisher has been able to furnish, at a very low price, an exceedingly attractive edition of the Bible, and one that would be cheap even without a single engraving."
From the Boston Christian Reflector.
"Its size is a neat quarto, and it is illustrated with about One Thousand Engravings. The type is fair and handsome, and the engravings are select and executed remarkably well. They are so numerous and good, as to be in themselves a commentary."
From the New York Baptist Advocate.
"This is the common version, with references, printed on handsome paper, with good type. It receives its name from the embellishments and illustrations. They are numerous, appropriate, and striking. It makes a beautiful book that can be read and examined with repeated pleasure."
From the New York Evangelist.
"We have seldom seen a more attractive work, and have no doubt that the cost of the enterprise will be sustained by a large sale."
From the New York Brother Jonathan.
"The engravings are of the valuable and authentic character, elucidating the obscure portions of the text, throwing light upon those parts which are understood with difficulty, by those not well acquainted with the habits, manners, and customs of the people, described in the holiest of books."
From the Boston Daily Mail.
"This is by far the most attractive copy of the Bible ever published, while the engravings are from the authentic sources, and convey an extremely accurate idea of the subjects they are intended to represent. We were particularly pleased with the drawings of natural history, representations of which are indispensable to a correct knowledge of the Scriptures. When we consider the great demand now existing for books of a pictorial character, it is a matter of surprise that no illustrated Bible has heretofore appeared, and we hope sincerely that the enterprising publisher will be repaid for his great expense."
From the Boston Evening Gazette.
"A new illustrated work—the Pictorial Family Bible—just issued from the press, comes to us in a highly ornamental and attractive dress—full of choice engravings from the great masters, depicting with faithful accuracy almost every topic in the Bible where illustrations are desirable. The pictures, too, are not mere sketches, but are in the highest degree authentic, and thus add to the attraction with which the Bible is regarded by every religious mind, and may induce it to be read by those who are not alive to its eternal value. We should think this edition of the Bible well adapted for Sabbath-school teachers, as enabling to explain to their pupils many difficult passages connected with the manners and costumes of the ancient Israelites. The book is beautifully printed, and, considering the great number of fine embellishments, is one of the cheapest ever published."
From the Boston Atlas.
It is full of engravings, representing the landscape scenery refered to in the Bible—the different objects of natural history—the costumes of the priests—and the historical events, copied from the most celebrated pictures of RAFÆELLE, POUSSIN, SALVATOR ROSA and WEST."
From Brainerd's Express (Boston.)
"This is an invaluable work for parents, presenting a highly attractive Gift to their children, and inducing them to study the sacred contents of a volume whose precepts guide to temporal and eternal happiness. It is printed in a very handsome style, on fine white paper, and embellished by about one thousand engravings. Many introduced into it have a positive value as elucidating the text."

EXPLOSIVE, HAZARDOUS, AND EXTRA HAZARDOUS.—The leading Fire Insurance Companies of the United States have declared Petroleum Oil, Well Oils, Earth Oils, and sundry other Oils, as highly dangerous, liable to explode, hazardous, and extra hazardous. The Albertine Oil Company are now prepared to fill all orders, at wholesale and retail, for their genuine Albertine Oil, pure and unadulterated, manufactured from the celebrated Albert Coal. JOHN McGRATH, Agent nov. Albertine Oil Depot, 83 Prince Wm.-st.
