ENGLISH AND FOREIGN.

The daily papers, says the London Freeman, contained long accounts on Friday of the splendid and imposing ceremonial by which Dr. Manning, late of Oxford, was consecrated Archbishop of Westminster in the place of Cardinal Wiseman. The crowd was very great of persons of all creeds, and the sermon preached on the occasion appears to have been delivered in good English style by Dr. Amburst, Bishop of Northampton. The Daily News says that amongst the many priests who stood round the altar there were not less than a hundred who had either been in orders in the Church of England or had been fellows of English colleges. Dissenters, one would think, instead of injuring such universities, are rather needed as a counterpoise, if they could be so, to their anti-Protestant tendencies.

The Prince of Wales, who is, like his father, a Fishmonger, was entertained at a splendid banquet by his Company on Saturday. The Chancellor of the Exchequer represented her Majesty's Ministers, but of course avoided politics, though he gave a election. Lord Brougham, now in his eighty seventh in the venerable statesman's speech were an exhortation to the country not to disgrace itself by bribery in the eyes of foreign nations, in which he repeated his wish to make bribery felony-and an earnest exhortation to the people of America, -numbering himself with their best friends .- that "those who by great military skill, courage, and perseverance, had obtained a victory, would use their triumph so as to temper mercy with justice, and not stain their cause by shedding blood on the scaffold." He spoke well of President Johnson, as a man who had educated himself, if not to the scholarship of his friend, Mr. Gladstone, yet to be a well-informed man on all ordinary questions.

The week has been marked by two of the most appalling railway accidents on record, at least, in this country. One between Liverpool and Birminghain, in which fourteen persons were killed, and about fifty have been seriously injured; the other at Staplehurst, in Kent, in which ten persons were killed on the spot, and many injured. The cause in both cases was the same-the line was undergoing repairs, and the workmen and their superintendent had not properly warned the coming trains. The jury has passed severe censure in regard to several points of the management of the line in the first case, arrived in Washington with 40 boxes of capthough they declined to return a verdict of manslaughter against any one. In both these cases it is but too clear that the accident was entirely due to preventible causes, and that the carelessness was Rebel Army of the Tennessee, under Bragg, Johnson, gross, though of course it could not be called wilful. and Hood. Also the books of Rebel Treasury De-Suill "Accidental Death" only half expresses the partment. truth.

END OF THE COTTON FAMINE. - A very simple ceremony, says the Christian World, on Monday marked the formal close of a great and memorable passage in the history, not only of this country, but even of the world. Mr. Farnall announced to the Central Relief Committee at Manchester his recall by the Poor-Law Board from the post of Special Commissioner in the Cotton District, which he has now held for three years, and the Committee adjourned sine die. This proceeding amounts to an official recognition of the end of the great Cotton Famine, and it implies the breaking-up of the entire system of relief throughout the cotton district. The wages which were being lost to the operatives during its prevalence amounted to no less than £170,000 a week, or nine or ten millions a year. Whence were the funds to come which could even partially supply the place of this enormous revenue, and where was the machinery to administer it? Both the one and the other started into instantaneous existence with the rise of the he was sent to negatiate for the colonization of demand. Not only in this country did a benevolence | emancipated negroes, are set at rest by his official beyond all precedent pour apparently inexhaustible report. When the time comes for the practical ensupplies into the distressed districts, but the four fercement of the Monroe doctrine, the succesful results quarters of the globe united in this unanimous charity. | of this important mission will be known. Asia contributed £132,625.; America, North and South, £75,480.; Australasia no less than £64,740., while even Africa sent more than £10,000. Domestic liberality bore more than a due proportion to these international contributions, and no enumeration of the funds dispensed by the Relief Committees, by the Guardians, and in public works, would give an adequate conception of the whole amount expended.

Atzerott and Harrold went down Ninth street together. Atzerot said to Harold, "We must not disturb Mr. Johnson." Harrold laughed and wanted the key of the room. It was refused by Atzerott, who expressed himself as fearful that harm would be done Mr. Johnson.

Harrold left to go to see Booth, and Atzerott went to Oyster Bay. Harrold came after him, and said Booth wanted to see him. Atzerott did not return to the Kirkwood House that night. Booth told Atzerott that Surratt was in the city.

Atzerott did not see Booth after leaving him at the Hermion House, and he roamed about the streets nearly all night. He first heard of the murder about 101 o'clock while passing up the Avenue. The cavalry was rushing by at the time in pursuit. He threw away his knife that night and parted with his pistol next morning to a friend in Georgetown.

John Stewart, a soldier of the Regular Infantry, at Fort Independence, was recently arrested at that post on a warrant issued by Justice Worthington, of Dedham, charging him with the murder of Isabella N. Joyce and John S. Joyce, in Bussey's Woods, West Roxbury, on the 12th of June last.

Stewart was born in Ireland, has a mother living near Pittsburg, Pa; and was stationed at Camp Cadwalader, from which place he deserted. He says he was on on board the sloop-of-war Pensacola two years pleasant picture of what had passed since the last and afterward enlisted in the 4th New Hampshire Regiment. There are facts of circumstantial evidence year, replied for the House of Lords. The chief points held in reserve, which will probably go far to fix the crime on the prisoner.

> Southern Virginia correspondence represents society and industrial affairs in that section still in a very crude condition, owing to the planters and freedmen not yet fully understanding their altered relations. Planters in many cases insist upon their authority to punish the negroes for disobedience. Many of the negroes desert the plantation. The loyalty of the whites, as a general thing, to the Government is not of a genuine type. They still cling to semi-civilized ideas of chivalry, regarding labor as dishonorable.

Gen. Sheridan had notified refugees from Texas that the United States troops were now in possession of that State, and that they can return to their homes with security, and resume possession of their property. He also announces that no home guards or armed bands, for self-protection, will be permitted in the State, as the military authorities of the United States are sufficient to protect persons and property. All the acts of the rebel Governor and Legislature of Texas are declared illegitimate.

The confession of the assassin Atzerott is published from which it appears that George Andrew Atzerott was born in the Kingdom of Prussia in 1835, and came to this country with his parents 1844. He arrived at Baltimore, in which place he resided with he moved to Westmoreland county, Virginia. His father farmed and carried on his business, that of a blacksmith, at the Court House. Atzerott was placed at the business of coach making. He remained at the Court House until 1856, when he went to Washington, and worked fordifferent employers as a coach painter. Surratt induced him to join in the conspiracy for abducting the President. Atzerott's knowledge of the men and the country in the vicinity of Port Tobacco, and, in fact, of all the counties bordering on the Potomac, gave to the conspirators a valuable assistant. He was well acquainted with Harrold, whom he was-not long in finding out, and who was also engaged in the conspiracy.

The first meeting of all the conspirators actually engaged was at a saloon on Pennsylvania avenue, called Geteer's. At this meeting O'Laughlin, Arnold, Booth, Surratt, Harrold and Atzerott were present. The first atempt to abduct the President was to be on the 7th street road. This was to be about the middle of March, when they expected the President to visit a camp. O'Laughlin, Aroold, Payne, Surratt, Booth and Atzerott were present. Harrold left with the buggy with the carbines for "T. B." The plan was to seize the coach of the President, Surratt to jump on the box, as he was considered the best driver, and make for "T. B" by way of Long Old-field's to the Potomac river, in the vicinity of Nar-gomey creek, where they had a boat waiting with men to carry over the party. The boat was capable of carrying fifteen men. It had been bought by Booth for the purpose, from two men named Branner and Smoot. This plan failed, the President not com-ing as they desired. Harrold went next morning to

The next plan was to visit the theatre on the night the President was expected to be there. It was arranged that Surratt and Booth were to go to the box. Arnold, O'Laughlin and Payne were to act some important part in getting them out. Harrold and At-zerott were to have charge of the horses, and an actor was to be secured to put out the gas. Booth re-presented that the best assistant he had was an actor. In this plan buggies and horses were to be used. A rope, which was to be prepared and be at Keyd's, was to be stretched across the road to impede the cavalry in the pursuit. The route at this time was to cavalry in the pursuit. The route at this time was to be the same as before, except that they were to cross the eastern branch bridge. This whole affair failed, and Booth said " It is all up," and spoke of going to Richmond and opening a theatre, and promised Atze-rott employment in it in some capacity. Atzerott was waiting for Booth to arrange his going to Richmond when the affair was renewed again. He had taken a room at the Kirkwood House. Harrold called on him and left his knife mistols and coat in the group and
