A SMARKABLE REVIVAL.

The second volume of the "Autobiography and Correspondence" of Dr. Lyman Beecher, just issued by the Harpers, like its predecessor, abounds in remarkable and stirring passages. We extract the following as giving an inside view of the great revival at the Hanover-street Church in Boston, which inaugurated a new era of revivals. The account will be read with both interest and

From the beginning my preaching was attended with interest, I could take hold. There was very earnest hearing in the congregation. I saw it was taking hold. Deep solemnity, not mere novelty.—I felt in my own soul that the Word went forth with power. It was a happy season, hopeful and auspicious.

I kept watch from the first among my hearers. They told me of a young lady who had been awakened. I found her out, conversed with her, and she was converted. I always took it by word of mouth first, talking with single cases, and praying with them. Went on so till I found twelve, by watching and picking them out. I visited them and explained what an inquiry meeting was, and engaged them, if one was appointed, to agree to come. I never would risk a blank attempt.

I began early in this course to intimate to the Church, the probability of more interest. I grew in importunity, and roused the Church to take hold. At that time many ministers did not understand about this. I began to say to the Church, "I think there is a work begun. Fire in the leaves, not only among us, but in the community." made no attack on Unitarians. I carried the state of warm revival feeling I had had in Lichfield for years. I carried it in my heart still with great success. They came to hear; there was a great deal of talk about me, great curiosity. They would hear, and theu run me down; they would never go again. But they did come again, till they were snared and taken. Many that came to scoff remained to pray.

Finally, my soul rose to it, and I preached to the Church one afternoon, explained to them the state of interest and opposition, and what an inquiry meeting was, and that they must be ready, and gave out an invitation to a long list of persons, whom I described. There were fifteen the first week, twenty the second, thirty-five the third, and the foruth time three hundred. The vestry was filled. Lambert met me at the door, when I came to meeting with his eyes staring:

"It's a mistake: they've misunderstood, and think its a lecture. You must explain." "No," said I, "it's not a mistake; it's the finger of God!"

But I made an explanation, and only one per-

I parcelled out the room to ten individuals, to see every person, and make inquiries about their state, and bring back to me the report. O, that was glorious! It lasted all that winter. They brought back reports of awakenings and conversions. I talked with forty or fifty myself; and if they were special cases, I went and visited. I said just a word, or a few; not many. I struck just according to character and state.

It was really almost amusing to see the rapid changes in language and manner I underwent as I passed from one class to another. A large portion, on being questioned, would reveal their state of mind easily, and being plain cases, would need only plain instruction. They believed the Bible, and they believed what I told them as if it was the Bible, as it was; and therefore the truth was made effectual by the Holy Spirit as well as if more conversation was had.

Another class would have difficulties. Could not see, realize, feel anything. Did not know how to begin. To such a course of careful instruction was given.

Another class would plead inability; cannot do anything. Many of these told me their ministers told them so. Now I rose into the field of metaphysics, and instead of being simple, I became the philosopher, and began to form my language for purposes of discrimination and power. Next came the infidel and skeptical class, whom

I received with courtesy and kindness; but after a few angrestions calculated to conciliate. I told them the subject was one that could not be discussed among so many, but that I should be happy to see them at my house, and succeeded in that way many times. They had the idea that ministers scorned them, and that ministers were this, that, and the other. But it was necessary to go over with them and trip up their arguments, for until they were tripped up and crippled, logic was of little avail. So I put myself on the highest key with them, used the highest language and strongest arguments, and made them feel that somebody else knew something besides themselves; and they came, meek as lambs, and were easily gained. Sometimes I had all these in a string. There were some pretty hard cases occasionally.

White I was in the inquiry meeting the Church held a prayer meeting in a room near by, and as conversions happened every night-ten, twenty, thirty-I went in and reported to them. That was blessed. They were waiting in hope and prayer, and I went in to carry glad tidings.

The Baptists came in to see what was going on, and pretty soon they began to survive. When I first set up evening meetings not a bell tingled; but after a few weeks, not a bell that didn't tingle. The Unitarians at first scouted evening meetings; but Ware found his people going, and set up a meeting. I used to laugh to hear the bells going all round.

In this thing of revivals, you will find all these things done by showers. Each shower would increase, increase, increase; and when I saw it was about used up by conversion, I would preach so as to make a new attack on mind and conscience, varying with circumstances, and calculated to strike home with reference to other classes, and bring a new shower. The work never stopped for five years.

PREACHING A PRACTICAL SERMON. A number of years ago, Parson B., preached in a town in the interior of this state. A sound theologian was Parson B., as a published volume of his sermons evinces; but like many clergymen of the past generation, he was too much given to preaching "doctrinal sermons," to the exclusion of practical themes; at least, so thought one of his parishioners, Mr. C. "Mr. B.," said he one day to the clergyman, "we know all about the doc-frine by this time. Why don't you preach real practical discourses?" "Oh! very well. If you wish it. I will do so. Next Sunday I will preach a practical sermon." Sunday morning came, and an unsusually large audience attracted by the report of the promised novelty, were in attendance. The preliminary services were performed, and the parson announced his text. Opening his subject, he said he should make a practical application to his hearers. He then commenced at the head of the aisle, calling each member of the congregation by name, and pointing out his special faults. One was a little inclined to indulge in creature comforts; another was a terrible man at a bargain, and so on. While in mid-volley, the door of the church epened, and Dr. S. entered. "There," went on the parson, "there is Dr. S. coming in, in the middle of the service, just as usual, and disturbing the whole congregation. He does it Persons of sedentary habits, troubled with weakness, lassing to make people believe that he can't get time tade, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress acc., wi has not been called to visit a patient on a Sunday morning for three months." Thus went on the worthy clergyman. At last he came to Mr. C., who had requested a practical sermon. "And now," there is Mr. C., "he's a merchant—what does he do? Why, he stays at home on Sunday afternoon to write business letters. If he gets a look of proin New York on Saturday night, so as to have them ready for sale on Monday morning. That's how he keeps the Sabbath; and he isn't satisfied with doctrinal sermons; he wants practical ones." At the conclusion of the services, the parson walked up to Mr. C., and asked him how he liked the "practical sermon." "Mr. B.," was the reply, "preach what you please, after this. I'll never attempt to direct you again." - Christian Inquirer.

A PROSPEROUS PASTORATE.

The National Baptist says, in these days it is not often that ministers preach sermons at the close of a pastorate of twenty-five years. They may be in the ministry a quarter of a century, but seldom remain in one place for such a length

Dr. Ives, pastor of the Second Baptist Church n Sheffield, Connecticut, has recently preached a Quarter-Century Sermon." He found the church without a house of worship, meeting in the base ment of the old town house. He sees them today with a house of worship, in all respects suitable to their wants. He found them in a measure untrained, their opinions unformed, their powers undeveloped. At the close of the quarter century, they are found an intelligent, active, efficient, liberal, working church.

During these twenty-five years, the pastor has bantized eight hundred and thirty. One hundred and sixty have been received by letter. There were dismissed two hundred and eightyeight; there have died one hundred and ninety five. The number at the beginning of the quarter century was three hundred and ten; at its close, six hundred and twenty-eight-more than double.

At one time there was a work of grace which went onward with great power until there were not ten men in the regular congregation, young and old, who had not been led to give themselves first to the Lord and then to his church. The largest number baptized at any one time was thirty-nine. These were baptized by the pastor with all due care and solemnity, in less than fifteen minutes. The amount raised by the church for building purposes and current expenses, during the twenty-five years, was about fifty thousand dollars.

The history of such a pastorate is well adapted to deepen our sense of the value of stability in the pastoral office. There is in general a fuller and more symmetrical development of the church; there is more of power and of efficiency, in both church and pastor. We take pleasure in recording such facts as those above. They are honorable both to pastor and people. And they redound also to the praise of Him who gives under-shepherds to his flock.

The New York Tribune says, "the reason why Drake's Plantation Bitters are so universally used, and have such an immense sale is, that they are always made up to the original standard, of highly invigorating material and of pure quality, although the prices have so largely advanced," &c.

The Tribune just hits the nail on the head. The Plantation Bitters are not only made of pure material, but the people are told what it is. The Recipe is published around each Bottle, and the bottles are not reduced in size. At least twenty imitations and counterfeits have sprung up. They impose upon the people once and that's the last of The Plantation Bitters are now used in all the Govern-

DRAY SIE—I have been afflicted many years with severe prostrating cramps on my limbs, cold feet and hands, and a general disordered system. Physicians and medicine failed to relieve me. Some Triends in New York who were failed to relieve me. Some Triends in New York who were using Plantation Bitters, prevailed upon me to try them. I commenced with a small wine glassful after dinner. Feeling better by degrees in a few days I was astonished to find the coldness and cramps had entirely left me, and I could sleep the night through, which I had not done for years. I teel like another being. My appetite and strength have also greatly improved by the use of the Plantation Bitters. Respectfully, JUDITH RUSSELL."
