THE DYING MOTHER TO HER INFANT. My taby! my poor little one! thou'st come a winter flower,

A pale and tender blossom, in a cold, unkindly hour: Thou comest with the snow-drop, and like that pretty thing, The power that call'd my bud to life, will shield its blossoming.

The snow-drop hath no guardian leaves to fold her safe and warm, Yet well she 'bides the bitter blast, and weathers out the storm. I shall not long enfold thee thus-not long; but

The everlasting arms, my babe, will never let The snow-drop—how it haunts me still!—hangs down her fair young head,

So thine may droop in days to come, when I have long been dead : And yet the little snow-drop's safe !-- from her instruction seek, For who would crush the motherless, the lowly, and the meek ?

Yet motherless thou'lt not be long-not long in name, my life; Thy father soon will bring him home another, fairer wife; Be loving, dutiful to her; find favour in her But never, oh, my child! forget thine own poor mother quite.

But who will speak to thee of her? the gravestone at her head Will only tell the name, and age, and lineage of the dead; But not a word of all the love, the mighty love for thee, That crowded years into an hour of brief maternity.

They'll put my picture from its place, to fix That picture, that was thought so like, and yet so passing fair!

Some chamber in thy father's house they'll let thee call thy own, Oh! take it there-to look upon when thou art

To breathe thine early grief unto-if such assail my child: To turn to from less loving looks, from faces not so mild. Alas! unconscious little one! thou'lt never know that rest. That holiest home of all the earth, a living mother's breast! I do repent me, now too late, of each impatient thought,

That would not let me tarry out God's leisure as I ought; I've been too hasty, peevish, proud, I long'd to

And now I'd fain, live on for thee, God will not let me stay.

Oh! when I think of what I was, and what I might have been, A bride last year, -and now to die! and I am scarce nineteen.

And just, just opening in my heart a font of love, that have failed me too? The bliss it would have been to see my daughter at my side! My prime of life scarce overblown, and hers in

To hear it said how beautiful! and good as she

And then to place the marriage crown upon that fair young brow!

Oh no! not that—'tis full of thorns,—alas! I'm wandering now! This weak, weak head! this foolish heart! they'll cheat me to the last; I've been a dreamer all my life, and now that life

I've heard that little infants converse by smiles and signs With the guardian band of angels that round

Unseen by grosser senses—beloved one! doest Smile so upon thy heavenly friends, and commune with them now?

about them shines,

And hast thou not one look for me? those little restless eyes

Are wandering, wandering everywhere the whilst thy mother dies, And yet, perhaps, thou'rt seeking me-expecting me, mine own! Come, death, and make me to my child, at least in spirit known!

Good RESOLUTIONS .- A little girl of six years old was a little while ago called home to God. About a year before her death she had a small writing desk given her. After death her mother unlocked it and found this writing; it looked like her first writing : The minute I wake up in the morning I will

I will mind my father and mother always. I will try to have my lessons perfect.

I will try to be kind and not get cross. I want to behave like God's child. Five very precious rules for a little child to make his or her own.

FORGET-ME-NOT .-- " Grandmother," said little Philip, "why do you call this beautiful flower growing by the brook, a Forget-me-not?" " My child," said his graudmother, " I once went with your father, who was going on a long journey, to this brook. He told me, when I saw this little flower, I must think of him; and so I have always called it the 'Forget me not.'" Said happy little Philip, "I have neither parents, nor sisters, nor brothers, from whom I am parted; I do not know whom I can think of when I see the Forget-me-not."

"I will tell you," said his grandmother, "some one of whom this flower may remind you; Him who made you. Every flower in the meadow says, 'Remember God;' every flower in the garden and the field says to us of its Creator, Forget-me not."

WINE DRINKING.—Not long ago, in a meeting of ministers, a clergyman of Boston, (who, we are glad to say, is not a Baptist,) exclaimed, " I drink my wine, and by the grace of God will continue to do so;" a venerable divine present responded; "That's right, brother." Who does not say that a reformation is needed even among the clergy of this Puritan Metropolis. Our min-isters must set the example of total abstinence and our churches must follow the example. We

A COMMON SENSE VIEW OF THE MODE IN WHICH

Hostetter's STOMACH BITTERS

ACT UPON THE HUMAN SYSTEM.

THIS is an age of inquiry. People want to know the why and wherefore of all statements submitted to them as facts, and as far as this 3

GREAT PROTECTIVE AND INVIGORANT concerned, it is proposed to gratrly them. All the physicians admit that the greatest difficulty they counter in their practice is in conveying to the seat of the disease the medicament that will counteract and neu-tralize it. Electricity has been tried for this purpose, but it is now generally admitted that the electric fluid is too subtle an agent to be made the vehicle of medication. It shocks the nerves, but cannot distribute through the system anything except itself. Medicated electricity is, in short, an exploded humbug. But a liquid stimulant, as everybody knows, can be charged with the essential properties of any and every substance in the Materia Medica, and there is to herbial extract wrich it will not hold in so lution, with all its preventive and curative virtues unimpaired.

Now the pure liquid stimulant of which

Hostetter's Bitters

are in part composed, is charged with invaluable vegetable so new,
So deep!—could that have run to waste? could that have failed me too?

That have failed me too? spot, taking with it just what is wanted there. The Essence of Rye would undoubtedly diffuse itself through the organization as swiftly if administered pure and simoots, barks and herbs. But of what use would it be with out their healing, strengthening, life sustaining balm? It all its pride;
To see her with my finest things, with all I've rich and rare;

would merely excite. It could neither protect nor cure. And herein hes the essential difference between the effect of the purest stimulant when given alone, and the same stimulant when administered in the medicinal form of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Good monongahela spirit is doubtless the mildest and most innocuous of all the varieties of liquor, but it only becomes a healthful medicine when im regulated with the vegetable elements employed in the preparation of the Bitters.

TO DYSPEPTIC SUFFERERS. Under the general head of Dyspepsia may be classed all the varieties of Indigestion. Its symptoms are so various, and differ so much in different individuals, that it is aimost impossible to classify them. In fact, some of them are indescribable. It may be safely asserted, however, that half of the diseases of mankind spring from a disordered state of the stomach; and that the other half, whatever their origin, react upon that sensitive and important organ. Among the ordinary indications of Dyspepsia are flatulence, a bloated and full feeling about the stomach and abdomen immediately after cating, a guawing sensation, or a sense of hollowness at the pit of the stomach between meals, a dull heavy feeling in the head, feeble or unsteady appetite, occa-ional nausea, restlessness during the night, and a weary, unrefreshed feeling on rising in the morning, palpi-tation of the heart, depression of mind, sometimes amount ing to monomania, loss of memory, confusion of thought, sour stomach, with raising of food, and a choking sensation in the throat, dimness of the eye, pain in the diaphregm, feebleness and disinclination for exertion, and some mes emaciation and a corpse-like pallor. These are a few of the direct signs of Dyspepsia, but as it is generally com plicated with specific affections of the bowels, the liver and the nerves, its victims have many additional torments, which are technically attributed to other causes: The best advice that can be given to any one who has the slightest predisposition to Dyspepsia, is to fortify his orher digestive organs by the daily use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. The disease proceeds from a lack of vigor in the stomach, and this vitalizing preparation will tone and renovate that organ. If the gastric apparatus is in good working order, and can perfectly dissolve and thoroughly assimilate the food submitted to its operation, there will be no dyspepsia If it cannot do this, it requires reinforcement, and the best of all reinforcing agents should be forthwith resorted to. The stomach is the commissary of the system. It supplies the elements of life to the whole body. In it is prepared the material of blood, muscle, bone and fibre, and if it fails to purvey that material in sufficient quantity and of a proper kind, the whole body suffers, and with it the mental facul ties. Therefore protect the "Commissary Department." Don't let the enemy obtain possession of it. It is easier to prevent disease from getting into an organ, than to expel it after it becomes a chronic fixture. Consider the first indication of uneasiness in the stomach as a sign that dyspepsia is preparing to attack, and buffle it at once with this great

But if it is too late to prevent, remember that it is not too late to core. It is believed that there is no case of chronic indigestion that can withstand the remedial operation of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This belief is grounded on twelve years' experience of the efficacy of the preparation. The first instance of its failure to give relief is yet unchronicled. If it ever had failed, the voluminous correspondence addressed to the proprietors from all parts of the United States and South America, would at least include one letter expressing dissatisfaction. But no, there is not one! The testimony, extending over a period of more than a dezen years, is all of the same approving tenor. Certainly this is a sufficient warrant for claiming that the BITTERS are a SPECIFIC FOR INDI-GESTION, IN ALL ITS VARIETIES.

and our churches must follow the example. We pray God to be delivered from a wine-drinking clergy, who preach spiritual sermons under the inflence of spirits, not from above.

Not the Right Word.—While the late Rev. Dr. Elmendon, the excellent pastor of the North Dutch church, Brooklyn, was dying, his wife said to him, "Courage, my dear, it will soon be over." He quickly replied, "Courage is not the word now; the victory is won, and I lie waiting for the crown."

ous patronage of the past year.

In the preparation of prescriptions, &c., he has had a long experience—a most important matter—as new features are constantly being presented. He is most careful in keeping none but the finest quality Medicines, and imports direct from the celebrated house of Treacher & Co., London. He has taken the precaution of keeping medicines for prescriptions in cases separate from the retail department—Toisons having a distinct place. It always has been his endeavor to give satisfaction in this branch of his business, at the the public may send their prescriptions with entire o that the public may send their prescriptions with entire confidence that they will be justly prepared.
