Chapter IV.

MIRIAM.

"So she says, and, indeed, we found that when we were undressing her; all her linen, m delicately fine, and beautifully made, was mark "Miriam Downing.' The mother's things wi also marked 'M. D.,' but the child says I name was Mary."

"And what did they come to England fo "Miriam scarcely knows: only she is sure mamma wanted to find out a brother of her or a Mr. King, a rich merchant, but whether Southam or of London the little girl could tell. There was evidently a family misund standing; I should think Mrs. Downing married to displease her family, as people say, for Miriam knows nothing at all about this Uncle Cuthbert or about any of her mamma's relations. And the poor lady, who seems to have been in declin-ing health ever since her husband's death, said ing health ever since her husband's death, said that Uncle Cuthbert was displeased with her; but she thought he would forgive her after all these years of absence, and take care of her only child in case anything happened to herself. She was very ill all through the voyage, Miriam says, and was constantly saying that, if English air did not revive her, nothing else would." "Poor Mrs. Downing ! And is Miriam—Miss

Downing, to stay with us?"

"Certainly she is for the present. God brought the helpless orphan to our very doors; we cannot, if we would, send her away. Of course, we must try to find out this Uncle Cuthbert."

"That will not be difficult, I should think ?" "We do not know. There have been no com munications evidently between Mrs. Downing and her own family since her marriage, which took place at least twelve years ago, as there was a little brother, older than herself, Miriam says, who died in infancy. Mrs. Downing had certain-ly no idea where this Uncle Cuthbert was to be found. Miriam has a confused notion that she meant to look for him either at Southam or in-London, a wide field enough. She is quite clear that her mamma was very poor, and, in her childish way, she explained how she had realised all the little property she possessed, in order to come to England."

"Who was Mr. Downing, and what did he die of ?"

"That I do not know. We shall probably find out more in time. Meanwhile, we must take great care of little Miriam, and be very kind to her. Poor child! she has not a relation in the world but this Uncle Cuthbert, whom she has never seen, and of whom she stands in dread, because, as she says, 'he was very angry with mamma, and mamma was always good.' And England is to her a foreign country; she has scarcely set foot upon its soil, for she was carried in early this morning from the wreck."

GREAT PROTECTIVE AND INVIGORANT is concerned, it is proposed to gratify them. All the physicians admit that the greatest difficulty they encounter in their practice is in conveying to the seat of the disease the medicament that will counteract and neu-tralize it. Electricity has been tried for this purpose, but it is now generally admitted that the electric fluid is too subtle an agent to be made the vehicle of medication. It shocks the nerves, but cannot distribute through the sys-tem anything except itself. Medicated electricity is, in short, an exploded humbug. But a liquid stimulant, as everybody knows, can be charged with the essential pro-perties of any and every substance in the Materia Medica, and there is to berbial extract which it will not hold in so-lution, with all its preventive and curative virtues unim-"Who carried her in, mamma?" "Old Lobb. He found her just as the wave threw her and her mother on the shore. Some of his mates brought in poor Mrs. Downing, but Lobb himself carried little Miriam in his great strong arms, and the tears were streaming down his weatherbeaten cheeks when he gave her into my charge. He knew that the mother could not my charge. He knew that the mother could not be recovered."

"Good old Lobb! he always was a darling, mamma. Some people say he smells all sea-weed, but I rather like it. But where are Alice, and Bertha, and Gilbert ?"

"Alice and Bertha went home before you were awake. Bertha is pretty well again, but Alice seemed very feeble. I wanted to keep her, but Mrs. Trodgold earnestly requested that they both might return home at once. As for Gilbert, he has had quite an adventure !"

"Ah! what was it, mamma ?"

"He refused to stay here and be made comfortable after his long toil and drenching. He only lingered just to snatch a piece of bread and drink some hot wine, and then he was out on the beach again. He said he might be of some use, since he felt quite strong again, and no one knew the shore better than he did. So he went off to the wreck with the others."

"And what came to pass? I see he did something brave by your eyes, mamma ?" "He did, 1 believe, what scarcely anybody else would have dared to do. The ship was all to pieces, but there still were some persons clinging on to spars and planks; and, as the water became lower, he ventured out himself among those dreadful rocks, and fought with the waves, -for he is a wonderful swimmer, you know,and he succeeded in saving one of the wrecked passengers, who was just sinking from cold and exhaustion. He brought him safe to land."

"It was a man, then, who was saved by Gilbert ?"

"Yes, an elderly gentleman, a Southam merchant, who was returning from Marseilles. His servant, who was also on board, had a very narrow escape, for he was washed ashore as poor Mrs. Downing and Miriam were, and he is so much bruised and beaten, that paps feels very uncertain about his recovery."

"Where is the old gentleman, mamma ?" "He is at the Royal Hote! at St. Eldred's, and he insisted that Gilbert should go with him. Your papa saw them both early this morning, and he left Mr. Warden with them."

"Is Gilbert any the worse ?"

"He is rather the worse at present ; but both papa and Mr. Warden say that, with common care, nothing need be apprehended. The strain on the muscles and the nerves for so many hours could not fail to result in exhaustion afterwards ; also, he received some severe bruises, and one terrible cut over the right shoulder. It is wonderful how he contrived to use the arm so long after-wards; besides, he must have lost a tolerable quantity of blood, for the wound was still bleeding when Mr. Warden came to bind it up." "But, oh, mamma 1 the worst of all is, that the Little Gipsy has foundered; she went all to pieces on those dreadful rocks on the other side of the great Tor. What will the Tredgolds do !"

of the great Tor. What will the Tredgolds do ?" "Something will be done for them, I hope. Mrs. Tredgold and Alice were grieved for the boat as for a living creature whom they had loved and lost; but they were both calm and trustful. It had pleased God, they said, to send the storm, which had deprived them of the source of all their little wealth; but it must be for the best. Either they needed the Little Gipsy no more, or something better would be given them. Their quiet, simple faith was a lesson to me, Margaret." (To be Centianed.)

A Startling Contrast. A speaker at one of the London anniversaries said that in Scotland $20,000 were lately raised for the Waldenses, and the extension of their evangelical la-bors in Italy; but in looking at the newspapers, they saw that the proprietor of a London opera-house was giving $20,000 to a prime donna for her singing and acting for a brief season. The London Record states that, while the sums contributed to the different are in part composed, is charged with invaluable vegetable remedies; and these, by reason of its powerful diffusive principle, it conveys to every organ and introduces into the circulation. To use a common expression, it goes to organization as swiftly if administered pure and sim-ple, as if mixed with the juices of tonic and alterative roots, barks and herbs. But of what use would it be without their healing, strengthening, life sustaining balm? It would merely excite. It could neither protect nor cure. And herein hes the essential difference between the effect of the purest stimulant when given alone, and the same stimulant when administered in the medicinal form of lution, with all its preventive and curative virtues unim-paired.

Hostetter's Bitters

Now the pure liquid stimulant of which

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Good monongahela spirit is doubtless the mildest and most innocuous of all the varieties of liquor, but it only becomes a healthful medicine when impregnated with the vegetable elements employed in the preparation of the Bitters.

TO DYSPEPTIC SUFFERERS.

Under the general head of Dyspepsia may be classed all the varieties of Indigestion. Its symptoms are so various, and differ so much in different individuals, that it is almost impossible to classify them. In fact, some of them are in-describable. It may be safely asserted, however, that half of the diseases of mankind spring from a disordered state of the stomach; and that the other half, whatever their of the stomach; and that the other half, whatever their origin, react upon that sensitive and important organ. Among the ordinary indications of Dyspepsia are flatulence, a bloated and full feeling about the stomach and abdomen immediately after eating, a gnawing sensation, or a sense of hollowness at the pit of the stomach between meals, a dull heavy feeling in the head, feeble or unsteady appetite, occasional nausea, restlessness during the night, and a weary, unrefreshed feeling on rising in the morning, palpi-tation of the heart, depression of mind, sometimes amount-ing to monomania, loss of memory, confusion of thought, sour stomach, with raising of food, and a choking sensa-tion in the throat, dinness of the eye, pain in the diaph-ragm, feebleness and disinclination for exertion, and some-times emaciation and a corpse-like pallor. These are a few ragm, feebleness and disinclination for exertion, and some-times emaciation and a corpse-like pallor. These are a few of the direct signs of Dyspepsia, but as it is generally com-plicated with specific affections of the bowels, the liver and the nerves, its victims have many additional torments, which are technically attributed to other causes. The best advice that can be given to any one who has the alightest predisposition to Dyspepsia, is to fortify his or her digestive organs by the daily use of

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS:

The disease proceeds from a lack of vigor in the stomach, and this vitalizing preparation will tone and renovate that and this vitalizing preparation will tone and renovate that organ. If the gastric apparatus is in good working order, and can perfectly dissolve and thoroughly assimilate the food submitted to its operation, there will be no dyspepsia. If it cannot do this, it requires reinforcement, and the best of all reinforcing agents should be forthwith resorted to. The stomach is the commissary of the system. It supplies the elements of life to the whole body. In it is prepared the material of blood, muscle, bone and fibre, and if it fails to purvey that material in sufficient quantity and of a proper kind, the whole body suffers, and with it the mental facu-ties. Therefore protect the "Commissary Department." Don't let the enemy obtain possession of it. It is easier to prevent disease from getting into an organ, than to expel it after it becomes a chronic facture. Consider the first indi-cation of uneasiness in the stomach as a sign that dyspepsia is preparing to attack, and baffle it at once with this great repellant.

But if it is too late to prevent, remember that it is not too late to cure. It is believed that there is no case of chro-nic indigestion that can withstand the remedial operation of nio indigestion that can withstand the remedial operation of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This belief is grounded on twelve years' experience of the efficacy of the preparation. The first instance of its failure to give relief is yet unchronicled. If it ever had failed, the voluminous correspondence addressed to the proprietors from all parts of the United States and South America, would at least include one latter expressing dissatisfaction. But no, there is not one! The testimony, extending over a period of more than a dozen years, is all of the same ap-proving tenor. Certainly this is a sufficient warrant for claiming that the BITTERS are a SPECIFIC FOR INDI-GESTION, is ALL ITS VARIATIES. Prepared and sold by Hostetter & Smith,
