(From the Christian World.) MARGARET TORRINGTON: OR, THE VOYAGE OF LIFE.

By the Author of " Violet Vanghan," " Sir Julian's Wife," " St. Beetha's," de. "So He bringeth them unto their desired haven."-(Continued.)

I glanced at them, but the stranger's back was turned to me; he was tall, of athletic build, with a gentlemanly, not to say aristocractic, air. He was evidently young, and he seemed to be talking familiarly with James Upping; and as his laugh—almost a boy:sh laugh—rang out freely but not loudly, I had a vision of St. Eldred's, of the rising tide, and of the creek where long ago the Little Gipsy generally lay.

Again I listened: the voice was deepened, and the accent was quite pure; but surely surely it was Gilbert Tredgold who was talking to James Upping! In another minute all doubt was at an end; he turned, and I saw his face—the face of my first friend. He saw me, too, and sprang forward, seizing both my hands : " Miss Margaret :

Upping and Son were both forgotten while we exchanged greetings; indeed, it was difficult now to give my attention properly to the business entrusted to me. Gilbert was staying in Cotswoldbury, for Mr. Saunderson was ordered to drink the waters; finally, he left the shop when we left it. I forgot all about Sibyl's muslin and the infissing volume from the library; and he walked home with us right up to the gate of Crofton Lawn; but I did not dare to ask him in.

He had scarcely turned away, when Sibyl pounced upon me, and saluted me with, "A pretty thing, indeed! No wonder we like the Obestnut Avenue better than the Promenade. Promenade-flirting must be done openly and above-board; we can do as we like under the limes and the chesnuts, cannot we? But this shall be attended to, Miss Torrington ; we are not going to be compromised for the sake of a country doctor's daughter, whose mother happened to be a Crofton! Such an example for Gussie, too! Ah, you prudish, demure young ladies know how to manage ! I see I see it all, Miss Margaret Tor-" WHAT DOES IT MEAN ?"

I was so confounded that I knew not what to reply, and I hastened into the house, and upstairs to my attic, that I might sit down, and think over the charges that Sibyl had brought against me. And as I thought, my brains seemed to clear themselves wonderfully, and I began to per-seive that I had done nothing which merited remyself, and not be afraid of Sibyl Crofton any longer. I had not much time to reflect upon the course I would pursue, for the bell was ranging for the school-room tea; and/I had only leisning to throw off my bornet and mantle, which I had quite forgotten to remove, before the second bell sounded, indicating that the others were waiting

I hastily smoothed my runneled thair, and looking in the glass, saw that my thecks were crimson; then I ran down, and found, as I expected. Holy at her post, and Gussic and Eliza in their usual seats. Holly looked searchingly at me as I sat down, and then I knew that she had been told—of my walking up the Chesnut Avenue with a young man whom nebody knew! She was very grave, and pre-occupied, and scarcely a sentence was exchanged between us while we were at the table. Eliza glanced at me now and then, and giggled and simpered 1 so I felt sure that she had been informed of my delinquencies: probably the hodsemand knew, and the cook, and by this time the kitchenmaid, and all the other servants, in-doors and out, including, of course, the saucy footman who had laughed at me in the morning. Gussie wore a puzzled air; she had witnessed my meeting with Gilbert Tredgold, and she had listened to every word of our conversation, chiefly about St. Eld-red's and the old times on the shore, and she really failed to perceive the enormity of my offence. struggled to be, as well as to appear, brave, and I kept telling myself that I need not be discomfited,—I had only to tell my aunt who the objectionable young man really was, and in common justice she would acquit me of all the charges Sibyl brought against me. And there was Gussie, who could testify to the unexpected recontre in Upping's shop. Ahl but could I hope for common justice? Should I not be tried and condemned without judge, counsel, or jury, with-out even being permitted to plead my innocence? There is a common saying that " One man may steal a horse with impunity, while another man is hung for looking over the hedge." And Sibyl and Leonora had had becare innumerable,—and by beaux one meant, in Cotswoldbury parlance, danglers idle, lounging young men, who walked up and down the Promenade at certain hours of the day, and flirted, harnilessly enough sometimes, and at other times harmfully, with the young ladies with whom they were on speaking terms. I have listened to such flirtations and wondered in my inmost heart how any girl could have com-mon patience with these silly, languid fops, who lisped and quizzed the passers-by, and complained how they were "bored," and called everything a nuisance, and made unconnected remarks of the most vapid nature, and paid compliments that were equally devoid of wit and gentlemanly bracking. But it was the privilege of my consins and their compeers to flirt and allow themselves to be trifled with,—they, and certain others of their class, enjoyed a monopoly of flirtings, while

I thought the matter over during that silent tea-time, till I worked myself up into a state of intense indignation and defiance; and once, when I caught Holly's half-perplexed and half reproachful gaze, I danted back a glance of furious disdain. She, too, to doubt me thus! to condemn me all unheard! I only waited for Eliza and Gussie to leave the room, before I should take the initiative, and boldly charge Holly with her uncharita-

I might not meet the friend of my youth and walk by his side without being accused of un-

But before the opportunity for which I waited came, the footman entered, and informed me that came, the footman entered, and informed me that Mrs. Grofton was desiring to speak with me in her own dressing-room. I knew by the man's look that he knew quite well the subject on which we were about to speak. Again, as I crossed the passages, I resolved to free myself from this odious bendage—to free myself at all costs, and that very quietly.

I found my aunt enthroned in her chair before the mirror. Chatterwell, her maid, was dressing

Uniting to a considerable extent the capacity of the Piano

Forte with that of the Pipe Organ, and costing much less They occupy little space; are elegant as furniture; not liable to get out of order, and are securely boxed, so that they can be sent anywhere by ordinary freight routes, all ready for use. Forty Styles, plain or elegant cases; ore to twelve stops; Prices, $75, $90, $110, $125, $130, $140, $150, $160, $170, $200, $225, $250, $300, $435, $500, $550, $000, and upwards. The Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs were introduced four years since, and are a great improvement upon the Mclodeon, Harmonium, and other feed organs, greatly excelling them, especially in the excellent quality and variety of their tones; in power and quickness of action, and ca-pacity for expression. Their success has been entirely beyond precedent and proves how greatly such an instrument was needed. Again and again the manufacturers have been compelled to double their manufacturing facilities, until they have increased six-fold. From the most eminent of the musical profes-sion, the most distinguished pianists, organists, composers and musical directors, the Mason & Hamin Cabinet Organs have received an amount and degree of commendation never before bestowed upon any similar musical instrument. More than two hundred and fifty of the most eminent mu-sicians in the country have given written itestimonials to the value of the improvements contained in them, and the they excelled other instruments of this class.

in every instance, but three or four.
For churches, sanday schools, &c., the MASON & HAM LIN CABINET OBGANS most he instruments long wanted, —of the very best quality, abundant power, not too expensive, nor liable to get out of order. One address to 1 For private use, in drawing rooms, &c., they are not less, desirable, and are finding a place in the musical families of the principal cities. They are adapted to a wider range of music than the Pitchnard apo, being better fitted for all sacred music and for much, seedlar music, while their quickness of action is such that the most lively rapid music can be played on them. Then, their cost is greatly less, as well as their liability to get but of order?

BRIEF EXTRACTS FROM OPINIONS OF DISTINBRIEF EXTRACTS FROM OPINIONS OF DISTINBRIEF EXTRACTS FROM OPINIONS OF DISTINGUISHED MUSICIANS:

Tabould think they would become very much sought after as parlor instruments as well as for public performance.—Signsmond Thilberg, the world-renowned risols.
Sare to find its way into every household of taste and refinement which can possibly afford its moderate expense.

Far superior to except high of its class I have seen.—L. M. Gottschalk, the eminent Planist. Such pure musical tones, promptness and supportings of action and fine yariety of effect. I have not found in any other instrument of the class.—S. R. Mills, the embeut Planist. Refally so excellent that there can hardly be much difference of opinion respecting their.—William Mason, the eminent Planist. The best instrument of its class with which I am acquainted, and worthy a place in every drawing-room.—Harry Sanderson, the eminent Planist. In every respect far superior to everything I have ever seen of the kind, whether in Europe or America.—George Washbourne Mortage and the definition of the control of the control gen, the eminent Organist, N. Y. I can only reiterate what so many in the musical profession have said, that for equality, promptness and exquisite tone, they are unequalled.—John H. Wilcox, the eminent Organist, Boston. Surpasses everything in this line I have ever seen, whether French or American.—John Zundel, the eminent Organist, N. Y. The best reed instrainents in the world are made in the United States, and your Cabinet Organs are greatly superior, and by far the best made here.—Max Maretzek, Musical Conductor, N. Y. As soon as the public become acquainted with the superior merits of your instruments, your only trouble will be to supply the demand.—Win. B. Bradbury. I have never seen aughtung of the kind which interested me so much.—Geo. F. Root. Exciting much interest in musical circles, and already becoming the fashion.—N. Y. Home Journal. The highest accomplishment of industry in this department. This is not our opinion, but the unantmous verdict of the organists.—Boston Albertiser. A glorious instrument for the tengle service, so readily sectified as to be available for any congregation, and effective and beautiful as to meet the desires of the most refined and fastidious.—N. Y. Observer.

The MASON & HAMEIN CABINET ORGANS must not be confounded with other reed instruments, from which they vary essentially, their superiority being largely derived from PATENTED IMPROVEMENTS, which cannot be employed by other makers. Among them are:

The AUTOMATIC BELLOWS SWELL (patented), a The AUTOMATIC BELLOWS SWELL (patented), a most important invention, and greatly the best swell ever devised; being much more effective and easily used than any other. The variety and beauty of effect of which it is capable, cannot be appreciated except from actual use. The many attempts to instate or find a substitute for this swell, prove its value. None of them, however, approach it in excellence and simplicity.
