OTHER PEOPLE'S TROUBLES.

" Because you are not strong. It is your free life among the hills and woods, and your long walks, that keep off those dreadful pains in the head you used to have when you sat in your stu dy and wrote books. The doctor has said su many times. If I were only ten years older I could begin to keep a school at once. I wonder if Mrs. Crofton would send me Gussie and Rosa." " But as you are not ten years older, but s week or two the junior of Gussie, it cannot be, my earnest little daughter. Now, do not vex yourself about me ; 1 am far better and stronger than ever I hoped to be, and God will give me strength to do all that is needful : so cheer up, passy, You surely did not think you were to have all the courage and all the labour yourself ? And, Mary, you will not be too anxious ?"

She laid her head on his shoulder, and the satiny, raven curls, and the tawny locks and beard were intermingled, and her voice was just a little unsteady, and I could see her hand trembling as she replied, " Only if we have to leave this dear home, William, -- if we must go away from Ashe End.'

" My darling, our home will be just where our Father chooses it shall be. So long as we are together and our children are with us, we must not murmur if we are reminded that here we have no abiding city. Perhaps, dear, we have made this too much our resting-place, -- perhaps it has been too entirely our palace of content : we have been so satisfied with our pleasant earthly home that we have forgotten that we are only strangers and pilgrims in a foreign land. Courage, my wife ; all will yet be well. We cannot, must not, doubt it, since it is our Father who will order all things for us."

I almost forgot my own troubles in sympathising with my triends' anxieties ; but when I began once more to dwell upon all that was so sorely perplexing me, I thought I could better bear the position of the Norths than my own. Coine what might, the father, mother, and children would endure it together; they might lose their earthly all, but nothing could make them bankrupt in mutual love and reverence; nothing, 1 believed could shake their trust in the God who gave and who took away, and while they kept this perfect faith in their heavenly Father and in osch other, nothing, it seemed to me, could give them lasting pain. And so I wished that their troubles were mine, because it would be so much easier to bear.

Ah! the old mistake,-the willingness to run any other race than that which is set before us, the readiness to carry any other cross than that which is laid upon our shoulders. But the grabeneficent Father, has patience with his foolish, wayward children, and loves us through all our folly and our wilfalness, and so we have to run. our own race, and to bear our own cross, which

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

This remedy has long been cherished by the community for its remarkable efficacy in relieving, healing and curin; the most obstinate, painful and long-standing cases o Cough, Cold, Influenza, Sore Throat, Bronchit s, Whoopin Cough, Croup, Asthma, Inflammation of the Lungs ; while even Consumption Itself has yielded to its magic influenc' when all other means have failed. Its whole history proves that the past has produced no remedy of equal value, as : cure for the numerous and dangerous pulmonary affection. which prevail all over the land.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY.

From ANDREW ARCHER, Esq., of Fairfield, Me.

"About eight years since, my san, Henry A. Archet new Postmaster at Fairfield, Somerset County, Me., wa-attacked with spitting of blood, cough, weakness of Lung, and general debility, --co much so that our family physicias declared him to have a "SEATED CONSUMPTION." He we under medical treatment for a number of months, but ree ceived no benefit from it. At length, from the solicitation of himself and others, I was induced to purchase one bottle of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, which ben efitted him so much I obtained another bottle, which in . short time restored him to his usual state of health. I think I can safely recommend this remedy to others in like com lition, for it is, I think, all it purports to be-THE GREAT LENG REMEDY FOR THE TIMES! The above statement, gentlemen, is my voluntary offering to you in favor of you? Balsam, and is at your disposal."

in the end turns out to be the very race for which we were best qualified-the very cross we needed.

The afternoon shadows were falling before I had made Mrs. North understand something of my own difficulties; and the only advice she could give me was to cast my burden on the Lord, to ask His direction daily, and to be very prudent. Her last words were, "Take courage, Margaret, it will all be made plain in time; only trust, and commit your course to Him, and by and by you will reach the haven where you would be.

I started at those words, for they were an echo of Gilbert's; but I made no rejoinder, for the twilight shades were deepening, and I feared the lamps would be lighted before. I reached the town. Mr. North was not very well, and I would not suffer him to accompany me ; and, indeed, I felt I could not just then take him from his wife and daughter. So I hurried on down the hill, till I reached the broad London-road, and I was inst at the outskirts of Cotswoldbury when a party of young men, with their guns in their hands, overtook me. And with that inimitable impudence in which the creatures of a certain genus glory, one of them accosted me, and another, drawing my arm within his, informed me that he would take me to his club to dine. I was greatly terrified ; for they were all slightly excited with might be insulted.

I was addressing them in a most indignant tone, and holding myself in a very haughty attitude, when some one dashed down the hill behind us and over the stile, exclaiming, " What the deuce! I am sure I know that voice. Who have you got there, Clavering ?".

I knew that voice-knew it for my cousin Tom's ; and in another minute he had sent the man he called Clavering reeling against the wall, and I was under his protection.

"I didn't know I was poaching on your preserves, old fellow," said Clavering, half anused and half sulky.

" This lady is my cousin," said Tom, with a great deal more dignity than I had ever known him assume, -- " my cousin ; and a member of my father's family. Next time you want to fright-

my latter's lamity. Next time you want to tright-en a girl, choose a daughter of the people, pleuse; not a gentlewoman." "Whew !" said Clavering, " what charming morality I It is just possible that the young semp-stress of servant maid may be as virtuous and squeamish as the young pecress," I thought so myself; but Tom, after he had scolded me for being out so late alone, remarked that of course Clavering and his set, in the dusk, and seeing me unaccompanied, took me for a tradesman's daughter, and they meant no harm. He seemed quite smazed when I replied that the "tradesmau's daughter" had equal claims with myself as regarded the points we were dis-cussing. Alas, for the chivalry of the nineteenth century !

MORE ADVICE.

Of course I was well lectured for the impradence I had committed, though the lecture was mild enough, compared with what it would have mild enough, compared with what it would have been a few weeks before. Moreover, I felt that I really did descrve reproof, since the London road and the High-street of Cotswoldbury were cer-tainly not places where young ladies of eighteen were expected to walk in the twilight without due escort ; and I resolved most fervently that nothing should induce me to expose myself to the like uppleasantness in future. And, seeing that Clavering and his set were in the circle of Tom Crofton's chosen friends, I did not feel much ad-miration for my cousin's social taste, nor much confidence in his principles. But, as I said, I was only mildly lectured, for the world in which I lived was thrued so topsy thrvy that I began to think I might really com-mit petty naughtiness like other people, without Melodeou, Harmonium, and other reed organs, greatly ex-celling them, especially in the excellent quality and variety of their tones; in power and quickness of action, and ca-pacity for expression. Their success has been entirely beyond precedent, and proves how greatly such an instrument was needed. Again and again the manufacturers have been compelled to dou-ble their manufacturing facilities, until they, have increased six-fold. From the most emiment of the musical profes-sion, the most distinguished planists, organists, composers and musical directors, the Mason & Hamilin Cabinet Organs have received an about and degree of commendation nev-et before bestowed upon any similar musical instrument. More than two hundred and fifty of the most emiment mu-siciens in the country have given written testimonials to the value of the improvements contained in them, and that they excel all other instruments of this class. Fifty-five Gold or Siver Medals, or other highest Premi-ums, have been awarded to Mason & Hamilin for the im-portant improvements to all others. Constantly exhibiting their instruments in competition with others, they have been awarded the highest premium in every instance; but three or four. For churches, sunday schools, &c., the MASON & HAM-LIN CABINET ORGANS are the instruments long wanted, --of the very best quality, abundant power, not too expen-sive, nor liable to get out of order. For private use, in drawing rooms, &c., they are not less destrable, and are finding a place in the musical families or the primeipal ritles. They are adapted to a wider range of music than the Pr
