By the Author of "Violet Vaughan," "Sir Julian's Wife," "St. Beetha's," &c. "So He bringeth them unto their desired haven."-PSALM CVII. 30. (Continued.) OTHER PEOPLE'S TROUBLES.

" Sit down, Margaret," she said softly, " Baby has just gone off. I will lay her in her cot in a minute, and then we will talk. It is a long time since we saw you la-t."

"Yes, I have been very neglectful. But I have been very busy-strangely busy, dear Mrs. North."

Mrs. North did not answer, for she was occupied in laying the little one in her cradle-bed ; and she knelt by it, gently rocking it, more and more slowly each second, and singing a low, sweet tune so quietly that at last it died away in whispers. How beautiful a picture they madethat fair, gentle mother, and that tiny, wax-like creature, with one wee finger clasped around the raven ringlet that had to be most gradually loosened! The grave, sweet matron face and the sleep-flushed babe !-what true poetry was in the tender gaze as it bent so lovingly above the unconscious slumberer!

Now, tell me what has made you so strangely busy," began Mrs. North, when we were seated in the parlour, and her busy fingers were at work upon a little frock.

"I have left the school-room," I replied,-" left it quite unexpectedly; and, really, spending one's evenings in 'society,' as we call it, takes so much out of one that it is all one can do to find leisure for necessary duties."

Miss Hollingsworth came on Saturday to say good bye to us, and she told us how much you were engaged. William was wearying for his pupil; he could not imagine what had become

How much had Miss Hollingsworth told them? I wondered. Had she paved the way for the confidence she wished me to make?

Before, however, I could frame a question to my mind, Mrs. North introduced another subject. "Holly seemed to hint that you were in some kind of trouble, and I was thinking about it this very morning, and wondering whether I had better write to you, when the postman came, and brought us a great trouble of our cwn." "I am so sorry, dear Mrs. North. May I know what it is." " Perhaps I ought not to call it a great trouble, for far worse might have betided. It is only a money trouble, and what money mars money may mend, some day; if never, it is not so great a matter, since there are far more precious things than gold and silver that may be scattered and reft away. It might have been my dear husband; it might have been one of my children : I thank God that He has spared to me all my real trea-

"Money troubles are very fretting though, I should Ahink."

" Precisely,-they are fretting and wearying; and I-should fancy if one allowed them to get the mastery they might lower the tone of the the mastery they might lower the tone of the mind, and make one captious and irritable. It is, however, exactly that which has come upon us. The bank in which all our little income was invested, has failed, -we are just paupers, Margaret; for if they make calls upon the shareholders, all we have must be given up." And the tears, in spite of her brave tone, stole into her eyes as she glanced around the pretty room with its plain but tasteful furniture. "But we must hope for Has received a complete assortment of TRIMMED PATthe best," she continued quietly. "God, who has brought us so far on our way, will not desert us now. This is sent, I doubt not, as a trial of our faith. But there is William coming up the walk, and he must not see tears; Hetty, love, run and bathe your face, -it is such a tell-tale little visage when you have been crying.'

Mr. North came in looking tired, but otherwise very much as usual. He bent down and kissed his wife with more than his ordinary tenderness; then, sitting down by her and watching the swiftmoving fingers, he said, " Have you told friend Maggie what has befallen us?"

"Yes; and I am so grieved, Mr. North," I hastened to reply. "I wish I were a rich woman, as rich as old Miss Chamberlayne, who, as report says, does not know how to dispose of her surplus income."

" And you would fill our hands with so vereigns and bank-notes, I know, Maggie! We thank you quite as much as if you really gave them. But never wish for wealth, my child, if God see fit not to bestow it. After all, riches are very comparative: I was rich, comparatively speaking, vesterday, or, at least, I thought I was, for I had enough to live on in a quiet way—enough, that is, when supplemented by my writing. day I have literally nothing, and as a shareholder in the defunct bank, I am, or may be, seriously involved. Well, thank God for all His goodness ! It is the same hand that fills the lap and empties the store; and it is a hand that never errs. We shall do very well yet, I dare say, little woman !" The little woman looked up with a cheery smile. "Oh, yes, William! Think how much worse it might have been! If this had happened three years ago, when your health was so delicate, you never could work without bringing on those torturing headaches, it would have been infinitely more depressing; though I dare say we should have found a silver lining to that black cloud even! Poor Hetty was very much east, down at first; I really think the idea of baby not having the new trocks we had promised her distressed her most; that baby should be clothed in purple and fine linen, and fare sumptuously seems to her only in the fitness of things. How-a little fortune for herself !"

"No, no," cried Hetty, who had just returned;
"no, mamma dear, not for myself,—for you, and papa, and the little ones. The worst of it is, I am so small,—nobody thinks I am as old as I am; else I am sure that I could teach very little child-ren now. And while I taught I should learn my self. I am too old for play; I should be studying at every spare minute and picking up every bit of odd information by the way. I could get up early, and I need not go to bed at half-past eight any longer. I think I might sit up an hour later now I am turned twelve. Maggie will tell me the things I ought to study most. I sang an Italian verb to baby this morning, Maggie. I put the book on the table, and looked into it as I walked about for baby cried the minute I stood still or ceased singing; so instead of a nursery rhyme I sang, 'To ho, tu hai, egli ha,' and all the rest of it, you know, down to 'eglino aves-

" Brave child," said her mother, " to sing while her heart was so heavy." "But I did cry afterwards, mainma; I could

"There was no need that you should help it.
There is no bravery in stoicism; true courage does not consist in crushing out one's feelings, but in repressing them till the time comes when we may unselfishingly indulge them. That was just what you did, Hetty, my darling; you bore up grandly and Hetty, huskily,—the tears swimming once Everybody should call and examine before

"Why not, little maid?" interposed Mr. North aily. "Why is your paps more to be pitied han a hundred other papers?"

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. This remedy has long been cherished by the community for its remarkable efficacy in relieving, healing and curing the most obstinate, painful and long standing cases o Cough, Cold, Influenza, Sore Throat, Bronchit's, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma, Inflammation of the Lungs; while even Consumption itself has yielded to its magic influence when all other means have failed. Its whole history proves, that the past has produced no remedy of equal value, as a cure for the numerous and dangerous pulmonary affections which prevail all over the land.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY.

From Andrew Agener, Esq, of Fairfield, Me. "About eight years since, my sou, Henry A. Archer, now Postmaster at Fairfield, Somerset County, Me., was attacked with spitting of blood, cough, weakness of Lungs, and general debtity,—so much so that our family physician declared him to have a "SEATED CONSUMPTION. under medical treatment for a number of months, but received no benefit from it. At length, from the solicitation of himself and others, I was induced to purchase one bottle of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, which benefitted him so much I obtained another bottle, which in a short time restored him to his usual state of health. I think I can safely recommend this remedy to others in like condition, for it is. I think, all it purports to be THE GREAT LANG REMEDY FOR THE TIMES! The above statement, gentlemen, is my voluntary offering to you in favor of your Balsam, and is at your disposal."

MASON & HAMLIN,

MANUFACTURERS OF CABINET ORGANS AND PORTABLE ORGANS, Adapted to Secular and Sacred Music ; for Drawing-Rooms, Churches, Sunday and Day-Schools, Uniting to a considerable extent the capacity of the Piano-Forte with that of the Pipe Organ, and costing much less than either.

They occupy little space; are elegant as furniture; not liable to get out of order, and are securely boxed, so that they can be sent anywhere by ordinary freight routes, an ready for use.

Forty Styles, plain or elegant cases, ore to twelve stops; Prices, $75, $40, $110, $125, $180, $140, $150, $160, $170, $200, $225, $250, $300, $435, $500, $550, $600, and upwards. The Mason & Hamin Cabinet Organs were introduced our years since, and are a great improvement upon the Melodeon, Harmonium, and other reed organs, greatly excelling them, especially in the excellent quality and variety of their tones; in power and quickness of action, and ca pacity for expression.

Their success has been entirely beyond precedent, and proves how greatly such an instrument was needed. Again and again the manufacturers have been compelled to double their manufacturing facilities, until they have increased six-fold. From the most eminent of the musical profession, the most distinguished pianists, organists, composers and musical directors, the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs have received an amount and degree of commendation nev er before bestowed upon any similar musical instrument. More than two hundred and fifty of the most eminent mucians in the country have given written testimonials to the value of the improvements contained in them, and that they excel all other instruments of this class.

Fifty-five Gold or Siver Medals, or other highest Premums, have been awarded to Mason & Hamlin for the important improvements effected by them, and for the superiority of their instruments to all others. with others, they have been awarded the highest premium in every instance, but three or four, and the stance, but three or four, For churches, sunday schools, &c., the MASON & HAM-LIN CABINET ORGANS are the instruments long wanted, —of the very best quality, abundant power, not too expensive, nor liable to get out of order. For private use, in drawing rooms, &c., they are not less desirable, and are finding a place in the musical families of the principal cities.

They are adapted to a wider range of music than the Pi ano, being better fitted for all sacred music and for much secular music, while their quickness of action is such that the most lively, rapid music can be played on them. Then their cost is greatly less, as well as their hability to get

OUISHED MUSICIANS:

I should think they would become very mach sought after as parior instruments as well as for public performance.—Sigismond Thalberg, the world-remowned Pianist. Sure to find its way into every household of taste and refinement which can possibly afford its mederate expense.

Far superior to everything of its class I have seen.—L. M. Gottschalk, the eminent Pianist. Such pure musical lones, promotiness and smoothness of action and musical tones, promptness and smoothness of action and fine variety of effect, I have not found in any other instrument of the class.—S. B. Mills, the eminent Pianist. Really so excellent that there can hardly be much difference of opinion respecting them.—William Mason, the eminent Pianist. The best instrument of its class with which I am of opinion respecting them.—William Mason, the eminent Pianist. The best Instrument of its class with which I am aequainted, and worthy a place in every drawing room. Harry Sanderson, the eminent Pianist. In every respect for superior to everything I have ever seen of the kind, whether in Europe or America.—George Washbourne Morgan, the eminent Organist, N. Y. I can only reiterate what so many in the musical profession have said, that for equality, promptness and exquisite tone, they are unequalled.—John H. Wilcox, the eminent Organist, Beston. Surpasses everything in this line I have ever seen, whether is rench or American.—John Zundel, the emineut Organist, N. Y. The best reed instruments in the world are made in the United States, and your Cabinet Organs are greatly superior, and by far the best made here.—Max Maretzek, Musical Conductor, N. Y. Far surpasses all other similar instruments which have come under my observation—Carl Zerrahn, Musical Cenductor, Boston. Exceeds in my estimation every other instrument of this general class.—Thes. Hastings. I can recommend them with confidence.—Lowell Mason. As soon as the public become acquainted with the superior merits of your instruments, your only trouble will be to supply the demand.—Wm. B. Bradbury. I have never seen anything of the kind which interested me so much.—Geo. F. Root. Exciting much interest in musical circles, and already becoming the fashion.—N. Y. Home Journal.—The highest accomplishment of industry in this department. This is not our opinion, but the unanimous verdict of the organists.—Boston Advertiser. A glorious instrument for the temple service, so readily secured as to be available for any congregation, and effective and beautiful as to meet the desires of the most refined and fashidious.—N. Y. Observer.

The MASON & HAMEIN CABINET ORGANS must not Astidious — N. Y. Observer.
The MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS must no be confounded with other reed instruments, from which they vary essentially, their superiority being largely derived from PATENTED IMPROVEMENTS, which cannot be employed by other makers. Among them are:

The AUTOMATIC BELLOWS SWELL (patented), a most important invention, and greatly the best swell ever devised; being much more effective and easily used than any other. The variety and beauty of effect of which its capable, cannot be appreciated except from actual use. The many attempts to unitate or find a substitute for this swell, prove its values. None of them, however, approach it in excellence and simplicity.
