(From the Christian World.) MARGARET TORKINGTON

Wife," St. Beetha's," de.

Ladies .asogosa samonia FURS. "You have been here almost two hours," was Gilbert's rejoinder. "I saw you scramble down, and I watched for you to re-ascend; but, finding you still stationary, and the light waning so fast, I thought it better even to run the risk of startling you hahepe I'did not frighter you much?" "Oh, no! I was only a little afraid, and that Mink Canes, Tiermoments of tod "But you are looking very pale, Margaret."
"I am not well. I came out for a solitary ramble, in the hope of curing distracting head-"Yes. Gussie told me that you were gone out alone, and the why and the wherefore; and for certain reasons I had, I presumed to follow you. Also, Gussie told me what I wish—if I may ask so much to hear confirmed from your own lips. She told me that there is no truth in this report, -this assertion, I should say, -of your engagement to your cousin Tom ?" There is no truth in it!"

"Thank God for that! How could I be so blinded & But, Margaret, Tom Crofton fold me, from the very first, that you and he understood each other; that you had been attached for some months, only you had not till very fately obtained the parental sanction. I never thought a man would lie so utterly. Besides, Mrs. Crofton gave me a very similar view of the case when one cvening we were speaking of you. She told me, distinctly, that the marriage was all but finally arranged; that she had disapproved very much at first; but that she could not bear to stand in the way of the happiness of two young creatures, whose lives seemed bound up in one; and agreat deal more she said that is not worth repeating. There is, then, Margaret, no engagement no at-such a marriage. But to-day, nearly borne down with threats, persuasions, and a power with which it seemed as if it were in vain to cope, I began to think I must yield. But while I sat here, I' decided that, come what would. I would be steadfast, I would still persist in refusing to become the wife of a man whom not only I must fail to love, but to respect !"

"You are quite certain, Margaret, that you never will repent of this decision?"

"Quite! Come what may, I shall be free shall not hate and despise myself for having made a marriage of expediency. My uncle, and Mrs. Crofton, and I dare say Tom himself, some day will be glad that I would not succumb to influences."

"Margaret! I am not sure that I have a right to ask you; but it seems to me that you need some protection now. I did hope, before Tom told me this made-up story of your mutual attachment, that in time I might win you for myself .-Of course, when he evidently with intention told me the alleged state of things, I could only strive to banish from my mind all such aspira-tions. Honour forbade me to think of you, save as my early friend and playmate; but I am afraid I did think notwithstanding?

"I have been imprudent, Margaret,-I see it row; little Gussic opened my eyes; but I declare to you that I thought Sibyl Crofton was bent, not on uniting herself to me, but on supplanting me."

"I really do not understand."

"I thought—and, indeed, I half think it still—Sibyl wishes to make a conquest of Mr. Saunderson what a monstrous idea! Why, he is as old—nay, older than her father!"

"Where a million of money is concerned, age, infirmities, and temper are too often ignored."

"Still I believe it is you, not Mr. Saunderson, for whom Sibyl cares, and I had quite convinced myself that you were devoted to her."

"Margaret, nothing would tempt me to marry Sibyl Crofton. By Mr. Saunderson's express de-Sibyl Crofton. By Mr. Saunderson's express desire, I accompanied them in all their expeditions, and somehow it seemed arranged that in any division of our party Sibyl should fall to my share. But I should infinitely have preferred Gussie 4 Sibyl is a very beautiful woman, I suppose; but then she is worldly, insincere, and uncertain in her temper; besides, she is so old!"

"I fancied she had been thirty; she looks quite elderly when she is not pleased."

"She wears badly, I suppose. Now, Mrs. Druce is as charming as ever."

"Never mind Mrs. Druce—never mind Sibyl;
but just tell me, Margaret, if I may take to myself the right of protecting you, so far as I can,—it I may think of you as the companion of all my

Theed not recount my answer, nor all that passed after we had agreed that we loved each other; and that Sibyl and Tom, and all other people about us, were but as shadows in the beautiful new world into which repeople about us, were but as shadows in the beautiful new world into which we had just entered. And we sat there in the little rocky hollow, forgetful of the falling shades of evening, heeding not the chill breeze that was sweeping up the coast, now that the sun had set and the sultry gloom had passed away. We might have lingered there till the stars were shining, if the sound of a distant church clock had not faintly reached us, and reminded as that we must conform ourselves to the ordinary proprieties of life, and go home to tea. Our hour of romance was over; home to tea. Our hour of romance was over; the bright fairy-land, on whose borders we had been standing, suddenly receded. We had to come back to the actual, to the present; and the return was not agreeable. And still that hour stands out in memory—bright, vivid, blissful.—Still, as I look back from the sober sense of middle age to the entried experience of womanhood, that twilight hour in the bollow of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon me as fair as ever—a heartiful grant or in the sole of the cliff shines upon the sole of the upon me as fair as ever—a beautiful greep oasis is the and desert that atretches behind it and before it.

As we walked home—oh, how different from last evening's walk!—we began to discuss our plans. How were we to proceed? Where should I betake myself? For that I should remain a member of the Crofton family was obviously, for reasons plural, impossible. And, finally, what would Mr. Saunderson say to his protege for presuming to choose for himself?

To the final proposition Gilbert replied, gravely enough, that he was afraid he would be furious. And I, remembering certain previous symptoms of personal disfavour and disapprobation, entertained the same fears. I was quite certain that Mr. Saunderson would never regard me as his adopted daughter, however thoroughly he might recognise Gilbert as his adopted son.

1 hastened to say, "Gilbert, I would not for the world interfere with your prospects—anything but that."

It seemed at first so grand a thing to be placed by a wealthy men like my patron, but "

work hard, Margaret : and though I have toiled manfully at my studies, there has not seemed in books and languages scope for my strong energies; besides, I yearn after the sea-1 long to undertake a voyage. (To be Continued.)

| Shelburne Herrings, | Shelburne | Shelbu WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH, QUINSY, and the numerous as well as dangerous diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, prevail in our change able climate at all seasons of the year; few are fortunate enough to escape their baneful influence. How important then to have at hand a certain antidote to all these complaints. Experience proves that this exists in Wistar's Balsam to an extent not found in any other remedy; however severe the suffering the application of this southing, healing and wonderful Balsam at once vanquishes the disease and restores the sufferer to wonted health.

Mr. JOHN BUNTO, OF BALDWIN, CHEMUNG COUNTY, N. Y .- writes :

"I was urged by a neighbor to get one bottle of the Balsam for my wife, being assured by him that in case it did not produce good effects, he would pay for the bottle himself. On the strength of such practical cyclence of its merits, I produced a bottle. My wife, at the time was so merits, I produced a bottle. My wife at the time was so low with what the Physicians termed Seated Consumption as to be unable to raise herself from the bed, coughing constantly and raising more or less blood. I commenced giving the Balsam as directed, and was so much rleased with its operation that I obtained another bottle, and continued giving it. Before this bottle was entirely used, she ceased coughting and was strong enough to sit up. The fifth bottle entirely restored her to Health, doing that which several Physicians had tried to do but had failed."

The Mason & Hamtin Cabinet Organs were introduced four years since, and are a great improvement upon the Melodeon, Harmonium, and other reed organs, greatly excelling them, especially in the excellent quality and variety of their tones; in power and quickness of action, and canacity for expression.

celling them, especially in the excellent quality and variety of their tones; in power and quickness of action, and capacity for expression.

Their success has been entirely beyond precedent, and proves how greatly such an instrument was needed. Again and again the manufacturers have been compelled to double their manufacturing facilities, until they have increased six fold. From the most eminent of the musical profession, the most distinguished pianists, organists, composers and musical directors, the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs have received an amount and degree of commendation never before bestowed upon any similar musical instrument. More than two hundred and fifty of the most eminent musicians in the country have given written testimonials to the value of the improvements contained in them, and that they excel all other instruments of this class.

Fifty-five Gold or Siver Medals, or other highest Premums, have been awarded to Mason & Hamfin for the important improvements effected by them, and for the superiority of their instruments to all others.

Constantly exhibiting their instruments in competition with others, they have been awarded the highest premium in every instance, but three or four.

For churches, sunday schools, &c., the MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS are the instruments long wanted,—of the very best quality, abundant power, not too expensive, nor hable to get out of order.

For private use, in drawing rooms, &c., they are not less desirable, and are finding a place in the musical families of the principal cities.

They are adapted to a wider range of music than the Piano, being better flued for all sacred music and for much secular music, while their quickness of action is such that the most lively, rapid music can be played on them. Then their cost is greatly less, as well as their liability to get out of order.

BRIEF EXTRACTS FROM OPINIONS OF DISTINGUISHED MUSICIANS:

I should think they would become very much sought after as parlor instruments as well as for public performance.—Sigismond Thalberg, the world-renowned Planist. Sure to find its way into every household of taste and refinement which can possibly afford its moderate expense.

* * * Far superior to everything of its class I have seen.—L. M. Gottschalk, the eminent Planist. Such pure musical tones, promptness and smoothness of action and fine variety of effect, I have not found in any other instrument of the class.—S. B. Mills, the eminent Planist. Really so excellent that there can hurdly be much difference of opinion respecting them.—William Mason, the eminent Planist. The best instrument of its class with which I am acquainted, and worthy a place in every drawing-room.—Harry Sanderson, the eminent Planist. In every respect far superior to everything I have ever seen of the kind, whether in Europe or America.—George Washbourne Morgan, the eminent Organist, N. Y. I can only reiterate what so many in the musical profession have said, that for equality, promptness and exquisite tone, they are unequalled.—John H. Wilcox, the eminent Organist, Boston. Surpasses everything in this line I have ever seen, whether French or American.—John Zundel, the eminent Organist, N. Y. The best reed instruments in the world are made in the United States, and your Cabinet Organs are greatly superior, and by far the best made here.—Max Maretzek, Musical Conductor, N. Y. Far surpasses all other similar instruments which have come under my observation.—Carl Zerrahn, Musical Conductor, Boston. Exceeds in my estimation every other instrument of this general class.—Thos. Hastings. I can recommend them with confidence.—Lowell Mason. As soon as the public become acquainted
