

(From the Christian World.) MARGARET TORRINGTON :

OR, THE VOYAGE OF LIFE. Author of "Violet Vaughan," " Sir Julian's Wife," " St. Beetha's," &c.

And you fancy you would be perfectly satisfied if you knew that at Christmas, your would certainly leave the schoolroom and be introduced?" "Yes; for a time I should be satisfied. Still, I am afraid Sibyl would be always trying to theart me ; and then, if I had more admirers than she had,-if even I were engaged before her ! Oh, Holly that would be glorious. And just faucy what a fuss there would be. She would be half crazy."

"And to make your sister half crazy would delight you ! Oh, Nora !"

" I confess it would. Never shake your dear old head at me, Holly ; I am incorrigible ; I am not your model pupil, although you have taken pains unspeakable with me. I am afraid you will not succeed either with Bella or Fanny. You must try your hand on Margaret : she is not a Crofton, or only a bit of one; so perhaps you may make something of her."

"Perhaps I may. But, Nora, I think Margaret already has cause of complaint against us. She is a new comer, and we are neglecting her sadly."

"So we are. I beg your pardon. Cousin Margaret, but I always think of invself first,-it is a way we Croftons have. Now, then, do tell me,-have Sybil and you already come to issue ?"

" No," I answered ; " but my uncle and your mamma have been talking to me about my prospects and about my duties here, and I felt desolate and hopeless, and, like a silly child, I cried. Bot I am not going to cry any more."

" That is right. As a rule, tears are for babies and women without sense. Do you like Sibyl ?"

" No," I replied bluntly and emphatically. "That is right also. You will be of my party ?"

Not understanding, I looked up questioningly in Nora's face. Miss Hollingsworth said gravely, " If Margaret Torrington is wise, she will have nothing to do with parties : she will only gain uncertain friends, and make certain enemies."

"Ah, well ! we shall see. If she is to be your model pupil. I suppose she must maintain a discreet neutrality. But how I do hate prudent people ! How I should have hated Bertha Tredgold !"

"Bertha Tredgold," 1 exclaimed, so astonished that I could scarcely speak. " Is it possible that you know her ?"

It was now the turn of my companions to look surprised. Miss Hollingsworth even took off her spectacles-a habit which she had when more than usually perplexed. Nora returned quietly, " Of course I do not know her ; I never saw her in my life. Is she a friend of yours ?"

"Yes: I have known her ever since she was a baby .- I know her sister Alice, and all the family : but how came you to hear of her ?"

"I have heard of her scores of times from Holly. Holly finished her, you know,-that is, with the help of masters. She is very handsome, and a great heiress ; she is fond of Holly, and writes to her every now and then."

cold water that was placed for her accommodation in an adjoining room. I used at first to reason with her, and to try persuasion, and even sought to beguile her into obedience ; but Gussie was not one to be quickly duped. She was clever enough, as 1 speedily discovered, remarkably astute and far-seeing, and endowed with perceptions alarmingly acute, her tender age considered; neither was argument of any avail, and, as for "moral sussion," about which I heard a great deal just then, either I did my "sussion" very badly, or I had impenetrable material to work upon. I am inclined now to believe that both alternatives represent the real state of the case Gussie was not of a persuadable mould, and I was not sufficiently patient by diplomatic.

s concerned at is proposed to gratify them. All the physicians admit that the greatest difficulty they procunter in their practice is in conveying to the seat of the disease the medicament that will counteract and near traize it. Electricity has been tried for this purpose, but it is now generally admitted that the electric fluid is too suble an agent to be made the vehicle of medication. It shocks the nerves, but cannot distribute through the sys-tem anything except itself. Medicated electricity is, in short, an exploded humbug. But a liquid stimulant, as everybody knows, can be charged with the essential pro-perties of any and every substance in the Materia Medica, and there is to herbial extract which it will not hold in solution, with all its preventive and curative virtues unim-

Hostetter's Bitters

are in part composed, is charged with invaluable vegetable remedies; and these, by reason of its powerful diffusive principle, it conveys to every organ and introduces into the organization as swiftly if, administered pure and sinoots, barks and herbs. But of what use would it be with out their bealing, strengthening, life sustaining balm ? It would merely excite. It could neither protect nor cure.

And herein lies the essential difference between the effect of the purest stimulant when given alone, and the same stimulant when administered in the medicinal form of

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Good monongahela spirit is doubtless the mildest and most innocuous of all the varieties of liquid, but it only becomes a healthful medicine when impregnated with the vegetable elements employed in the preparation of the Bitters.

TO DYSPEPTIC SUFFERERS.

sour stomach, with raising of food, and a choking sensa-tion in the throat, dinness of the eys, pain in the diaph-ragm, feebleness and disinclination for exertion, and some-times emaciation and a corpse-like pallor. These are a few of the direct signs of Dyspepsia, but as it is generally com-plicated with specific affections of the bowels, the liver and the nerves, its victums have many additional torments, which are technically attributed to other causes. The best advice that can be given to any one who has the elightest predisposition to Dyspepsia, is to fortify his or her digestive organs by the dfily use of

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. The disease proceeds from a lack of vigor in the stomach, and this vitalizing preparation will tone and renovate that organ. If the gastric apparatus is in good working order, and can perfectly dissolve and thoroughly assimilate the food submitted to its operation, there will be no dyspepsia. If it cannot do this, it requires reinforcement, and the best of all reinforcing agents should be forthwith resorted to. The stomach is the commissary of the system. It supplies the elements of life to the whole body. In it is prepared to purvey that material in sufficient quantity and of a proper kind, the whole body suffers, and with it the mental facul-ties. Therefore protect the "Commissary Department." Don't let the enemy obtain possession of it. It is easier to prevent disease from getting into an organ, then to expel it after it becomes a chronic ficture. Consider the first indi-cation of uneasiness in the stomach as a sign that dyspepsia is preparing to attack, and baffle it at once with this great repellant.

repellant. But if it is too late to prevent, remember that it is not too late to cure. It is believed that there is no case of chro-nic indigestion that can withstand the remedial operation of

Millinery and Fancy Goods, in great varie

"Ah! it is another Bertha Tredgold," I replied. "My Bertha is quite a child, three years younger than I am; and she has never had a governess in her life, though now, the family being better off, she goes to day-school in St. Eldred's."

" Queer, though, that there should be two Bertha Tredgolds," said Nora to Miss Hollingsworth.

" What is your Bertha like ?" asked the governess.

I described my old playmate as well as I could, dwelling particularly on her rich, black hair, and marvellous dark eyes.

Miss Hollingsworth . replied. " They must be relations : you have exactly pourtrayed my pupil as she was when I first knew her, at twelve or thirteen years of age. Yet I never heard of any cousin or relative of the same name, and I was guite one of the family, and I knew all their affairs. What sort of people are your Tredgolds !"

I told her as much as I thought proper, and Nora at once concluded that the name was a mere coincidence; there could be no kinship, she averred, between a poor fisherman and one of the proudest families in the North."

" My Tredgolds are a Cornish family," 1 said.

" Strange !" said Miss Hollingsworth. " My friends also are of Cornish descent ; in fact, Tredgold is a Cornish name, and long, long ago, the family held vast estates there, and were immensely rich and powerful. Once we travelled down to Tredgold-Austell, and saw the Court, a grand old place sinking to decay. It was formerly the seat of the Tredgold family; long since it has passed from its hereditary owner, and it is now let or sold to rich, retired tradesmen."

"Then," I cried, "the two Berthas must be related ; for my Tredgolds came from Tredgold-Austell." And on the spor of the moment I was going to divulge Gilbert's cherished secret, but luckily remembered that I had no right to chatter about his private affairs which had been revealed to me in confidence, and, therefore, I maintained a prudent reserve. Also it struck me that in that house, the less I said about Gilbert the better ; the less I talked of my old life at Kelver House, the better ; but in our mutual knowledge of a Bertha Tredgold, there existed at once a sort of tie between me and Miss Hollingsworth ; for Bertha Tredgold, of Graythwaite Tower, in Cumberland, had been her favonrite pupil and was still her much-loyed friend.

A MAGNIFICENT VOICE.

The next day I settled regularly to my duties, some of which were pleasant and easy enough : others, alas ! were so disagreeable, and seemed so impracticable, that I began to donbt whether, indeed, they could be included in the category of actual duties; also, to entertain serious misgivings respecting the truth of that oft-quoted and ex-cellent old wisdom-saw, "Where there's a will there's a way."

I am sure my will was good to live peaceably; and, if it might be, not unhappily, in my uncle's household; I am sure I strove with all my powers to tame the wild creature committed to my ers to tame the wild creature committed to my charge; I submitted to all kinds of aggressions on my rights, and even bore patiently blows and nips that were very trying to flesh and blood, as well as to one's temper. Only, I suppose, I sadly wanted experience; and, perhaps, I succumbed where I should have stoutly held my own, and stood out uncompromisingly where I should have given way; anybow, I was utterly unsuccessful, and was always baffled in every attempt I made either to force or to conciliate the formidable Guasie ther to force or to conciliate the formidable usaie. There had gone forth an edict, both medical and maternal, that warm water should not be per-nitted in the regular nursery ablutions : it was 10 LISPEPTIC SEFFERERS. Under the general head of Dyspepsia may be classed all the varieties of Indigestion. Its symptoms are so various, and differ so much un different individuals, that it is almost impossible to classify them. In fact, some of them are in-describable. It may be safely asserted, however, that half of the diseases of mankind spring from a disordered state of the stomach; and that the other half, whatever their origin, react more that sensitize, and important J. EPITHELIOMA, OR CANCER OF THE LIP Cured by Rogers & Co.'s Medicines ! MESSES, ROGERS & Co. : Gents. :-In reference to the case of Epithelioma of the Lip, in which I used your Gintment, I beg to say that the patient entirely recovered, and has continued well ever since. I have also used the Medicine in some cases of obstinate Skin Diseases, with much benefit. I believe it to be a valuable remedy in many otherwise intractable cases. H. H. READ, M. D. AND STILL THEY COME!

STORMONT, Guysboro', April 17, 1866 Gents :-- Your Medicine has made another wonderful Gents :- four mediane has made another wonderful cure. Thomas Gooper, Esq., of Lachaber Lake (store-keeper), got some for his wife, who had been afflicted with Scrofula for seven years, and nothing she got from the doctors did her any good. Mr. Cooper says her face was in a dreadful state with running sores, but is now well. As he expressed it, "It made a total cure of her."
