(From the Christian World.) MARGARET TORRINGTON:

OR, THE VOYAGE OF LIFE. By the Author of "Violet Vaughan," " Sir Julian's Wife," " St. Beetha's," &c.

MY WEDDING TOUR. When I had thought about my wedding-day, as all girls do, I suppose, now and then, I had pictured to myself a glorious June morning, the roses in full bloom, flowery wreaths on all the hedges, and star-like blossoms on the mossy banks! I had fancied a blue and cloudless sky. soft sunshine on the woods and fields, and the silver-chiming waves breaking lightly on the shores in little sparkling showers of pearly spray. Yes! my wedding-day was to be warm, and bright, and beautiful; and, lo! it was cold and flowerless, and the snow lay thick and white upon the hills; keen blasts blew fiercely from the east, and the dark waves swept the weed-strewn shingle with a mournful, soughing sound.

When Susan Pratten came to call me, on the morning of that eventful 15th of January, I was already up and dressing; but my fingers were so benumbed I could scarcely make the temporary toilet in which I intended to go down and take the ordinary breakfast. But Susan brought me hot water, and helped me, and scolded me all the while for not sleeping till the proper time; but finished up by saying, "Ah, well! I suppose people feels a little queer on their wedding-morning. And no wonder! it must be something like jumping into the sea in just such weather as this, and not being sure how deep the water is! You may get a nice bracing bath, though it is a shock; or you may go over head and ears, and never come up again alive. You know I never had any great opinion of matrimony, Miss Margaret."

know, Susan: you used to favour us with some of your maxims at Kelver House, and my dear mother used to laugh at you, and say you preferred a single life chiefly because you were afraid of not having your own way in all things."

Well, Miss Margaret! and my dear and lamented mistress was not far wrong. I honoured and obeyed my father and my mother when I was a little one, as the Scriptures taught me, and I always submitted myself to 'all my teachers, spiritual pastors, and masters, as the Catechism said, and I tried to serve my masters according to the flesh, in singleness of my heart as unto Christ. as St. Paul bids servants do; but, thinks I, the Bible says, Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord.' Mark that, Miss Margaret 1- as unto the Lord! So, thinks I.again, I have been obeying and submitting atly my life long, and I am come to years of discretion, and it is time I was my own mistress. If I have a husband I must obey him, but if I keep single I need obey nobody. And really, now, if a duke was to ask me, I don't think I should say 'Yes' to him. But then every woman isn't strong enough to stand alone."

And all this while Susan was pouring out for me a delicious cup of coffee, and stirring the fire, and adjuring me to eat a good breakfast, or I should never be able to go through the ceremony, which seemed, according to her showing, to be a public execution. Presently she began again,-

"Now, Miss Margaret, you must not go for to expect too much. Men will be men you see :and naturally they are very troublesome and tiresome creatures; they'll none of em be driven but the very soft ones that are good for nothing, and some of 'em will neither be druy nor ledno, nor coaxed, they're so rampaging. There's poor Mrs. Clay, in Tower-street, she never can do anything with her husband, he's that unreasona-ble; he's always coming home in a bad temper because of the drink, and-"

"Stop, Susan, please! These reviews of married life are far from agreeable; and I do not see how the mention of Mrs. Clay's intemperate husband can affect my case. Gilbert Tredgold is a Christian man; or, much as I love him, I would not trust him; we may have troubles, and we may both disappoint each other in some things; but we both have a rule of life that will keep us from doing and saying much that might otherwise be said and done to cause unhappiness."

"Well, there is that, Miss Margaret. Being a Christian makes a good deal of difference; but not all, my dear ob, dear, no! I have known Christian men very plaguing and fractious."

HoAnd have you not known very unamiable Christian women? And do you not think they may sometimes try their husband's temper ! I fancy, Susan, in all relations of life, we must expect some imperfections, and there will be faults on both sides. You know the old adage, Bear and forbear? It is hackneyed enough, I confess; but it is singularly wise. Indeed, Susan, I will try to do my duty, and I am not afraid; we love each other truly, and I think we have God's blessing. It would not do for all the world to follow your example."

"Well, no; I suppose not. I am an old fool, I date say; but I can't help having a fling at ma-trimony every time I have the chance."

If you were younger, Susan, I should expect to hear of you doing some very foolish thing.

People are so apt to rush from one extreme to the other and K REED, Roxbury, Moses,

" I daresay ! But I shall be fifty two next month, and that's rather too late to change one's condition; and, if nobody fancied me, when I, was young and comely, it's not likely they will

But you don't mean, Susan, that no one ever fancied you?

I saw at once that I had asked an indiscreet found evidently in a little huff; but after a oment or two she replied-"There! it's the tell upon me. Miss Margaret I I never did have what you call a regular offer. Only once Jemmy Clews, that goes off his head every full moon, asked me to be his sweetheart; but he was very mad at the time, and if heart; but he was very mad at the time, and if he asked one, he asked a score of girls that afternoon to marry him, and I wasn't the first, so I don't think that can count. And once since I began housekeeping, the head waiter at the hotel would walk home from church with me one afternoon, and he says- 'Miss Pratwith me one afternoon, and he says.— Miss Pratten, I'm leaving our house, and I'm a-going to set up for myself in the public line, and I shall want a wife. Can you recommend one, not too young, with a little money saved up, and some good furniture of her own! So you are there, master," thinks I; and I says, 'No, I can't, Mr. master," thinks I; and I says, 'No, I can't, Mr. Jones; and I wouldn't if I could, for I hate all public houses, and I wouldn't have anght to do with one if it was to keep me from starving!" So he bowed, and said that was very unkind of me, and at the corner of the lane he wished me good afternoon. Now, I believe he really meant to propose, as people say, only I took him up so short; but he didn't, so I can't count him. And that's all the love-making I ever had, Miss Margaret; but it would be just the same if I had had accress of aftern. I really wish I had for the life. of offers. I really wish I had, for then I this disease by the use of the Balsam can be given.

sense. Sally's growing up just as I wish her, I am glad to say, and she'll be a comfort to me in my old age, and to be a steady-going respectable ld maid!"

Poor Susan! And I knew that at that very moment Sally had a tenderness for a young baker in the next street, and would certainly not elect to be a spinster of her own free will. And here I may as well say that the baker, being an artful man, carried his point, and wedded Sally triumphantly, and with her aunt's consent.

I felt rather depressed when Bertha and Alice came, for Susan's conversation was not exactly inspiring; and I wished it were not so freezing cold, and that the sea would look a little brighter, and the sun shine out. Decidedly it is not pleasant to be married when the snow is on the ground.

But the two girls cheered me wonderfully. Bertha's brightness infected me, and Alice's quiet caress seemed to calm and strengthen my heart, I was soon dressed, and then I begged to be left alone for a little while, till it was time to go to church, that I might once more ask God's blessing on the step I was going to take. I thought of my own parents, and I was sure that if they had lived they would have given me to Gilbert with all their hearts. If only it might be that Gilbert and I should be happy as they were, good and wise as they were, and loved and honoured half as well, our future life, whatever cares and trials might beset us, would be a blessed one .-And in their deaths they were scarcely divided.

Therein, also, I hoped we should resemble them. We were married at the old church on the hill-side, and the holly wreaths were still in all their glory; and again came over me many and vet precious memories-the day when Mirrie, and Clara, and I had been so busy among the evergreens; and the fair July Sabbath, when, for the last time, my father and mother had knelt together at the table of the Lord, when Mirrie and had watched the quiet worshippers from our hiding-place aloft. And again I thought of that prayer, which then I heard for the first time. the prayer "for the whole state of Christ's Church militant here on earth," and especially of that "thanksgiving lay," "And we also bless Thy holy name, for all Thy servants departed this life in Thy faith and fear, beseeching Thee to give us grace so to follow their good examples that with them we may be partakers of Thy heavenly kingdom." Also I thought of other days, when the bell was tolling, and a band of mourners stood at the "lych-gate," waiting till the white-robed priest should meet them with those words of holy cheer, "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord : though he were dead, yet shall he live ; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." And now that was all over ! Clara, and my parents, and Mirrie's mother, were all sleeping in their quiet graves - Clara in the solemn gloom of the ancient chancel, and my father and mother and Mrs. Downing in the fair churchyard without, lying on the snowy hill-side, under the shadow of the grey old walls I loved so well. And a new life was dawning for me-new hopes, new fears, new happinesses; but it all was like a dream: and even when Gilbert placed the ring upon my finger, and the irrevocable words pronouncing us to be "man and wife together" were spoken, it was the past that seemed most realthe present, as vet I could scarcely comprehend. But when the service was over, and the book signed, and my dear husband took my arm in his. and walked with me down the well known aisle about as pleasant and as trying to the nerves as as if he were very proud of his newly-acquired treasure, I began to feel something of the full ic and blessedness that God had given me. Hence forth there was one on whom I could lean ; one on whom I had the right to rely, so far as one may rely on earthly supports; one who would be to me all and more than they had been whom I had lost awhile. And as, going towards the gate, we passed those graves folded so softly in the pure white shroud that hid the green grass and the sleeping flowers below, the sun shone out from a rift in the grey canopy above; a ray of golden ight flashed itself across the leaden sea, and byand by, ere we reached the bottom of the hill, the clouds were rolling fast away, the waves were dancing in the clear brightness of the January morning, and every branch and spray, beautifully frosted, showed like jewelled arabesques against the intense blue sky .... The snow itself glistened as with millions of crystals, the tide came in with a full swell like the deep notes of a Jubilate, and the balls were ringing a merry peal, for Dr. Berners himself had set the ringers on.

We had no grand wedding party; we went home to the North Fort, and had an early dinner.
Yes, really a dinner! We were bold enough to call it so, though we might have styled if a breakfast, or even luncheon; and soon afterwards. Gilbert and I went away to Bristol, where we meant to spend several days before going on to Cotswoldbury to pay the Norths a visit. Nothing seemed stranger to me than to see Mrs. Tredgold" on my luggage, where "Miss Torring ton" had been in all my former journeys; however, I supposed I should get used to it, and answer to my new name in time, and take kindly to all my dignisies, privileges, and duties as a married woman. I wondered where Cecilia was ; and, when we were crossing College green on our way from the were crossing College-green on our way from the Cathedral, on the second day after our arrival. I confided to my husband that I should very much like to see an old friend of mine, if only I could find her. Also, I told him how good she had been to me in my hour of need, and how she had promised to do her utmost for me at any time, and under any circumstances, if I would only write to her or seek her; and how I fully believed in her sincerity.

So we assolved to look for her, and to that in tent we called on Mr. Churchman, and were shown into the metamorphosed drawing-room. Of course Cecilia's papa could give us her new address. It was some time before anyone appeared, and we were beginning to think the servant had not carried our message, or that the reverend gentleman, absorbed in the composition

ROGERS' MEDICINES A FTER a test of Four Years before the public, are still increasing in popularity, because they con inue to make cures unparalleled in the history of Medicines, as abundantly appears by the following, among hundreds of similar testimonials, from people of the highest respecta-bility from all parts of the Lower Provinces.

There is no longer any reason why the most hopeless ca-ses in any disease arising from impurities of the blood may not be cured, as well as General Debility, Female Weak-nesses &c. nesses, &c.
Our ALTERATIVE SYRUP is beyond all controversy unsurpassed as a purifier of the blood and invigorator of the system. This no man can doubt who will look over the

CERTIFICATES: CANCER OF THE WOMB CURED. MESSES. ROGERS & Co.—Gents: I have been cured by your wonderful Medicine of one of the worst diseases, as Messers. Rocers & Co.—Gents: I have been cured by your wonderful Medicine of one of the worst diseases, as follows, viz.:—

I had been afflicted for several years with an internal Tumor, and four years ago I was taken sick with a fever; the old complaint also revived. I had a Doctor attending me, but continued to get worse; we sent for another Doctor. He pronounced it a hopeless case, and said I could not livelong. He said the Tumor was then as large as a pint bowl, and was assuming a cancerous nature. I suffered more than tongue can tell. My friends expected me to die daily They were called in to see me die, and I was reduced to a mere skeleton. I suffered in this dreadful manner for upwards of two years. I at length, as a forlorn hope, was induced to try your medicine. The first lot seemed to make me worse, and I became discouraged; but the Rev. A. W. Barss advised me to continue. I did so, and soon began to improve, and I am now well again, and a wonder to myself and neighbours. I feel as one raised from the dead. I am a young woman of 26 years of age. I state these things for the benefit of suffering humanity, and I cannot begin to describe the severity of my case—it is widely known in the County of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

Yours, with much gratitude, Lois A. Hatfield, have much pleasure in endorsing all she says above, and much more might be said of this most extraordinary case.

ULCERATED CANCER CURED!

ULCERATED CANCER CURED! Who needs better proof than the following voluntary testimony of Mrs. Hannah Balmain, of Wickham, N. B.:

Some four years since there came a lump in my breast, and at the time I did not know what it was: but on showing it to three Doctors, they told me it was a "Cancer," and for which the knife would have to be applied; then again, I went to a female Doctor, who has been in the habit of curing Cancers by drawing them out, but she informed me that it was deep in the flesh and too long seated, and therefore could not help me. Knowing that something must be done, I concluded to try your medicine, which I saw advertised in the Visitor. Accordingly, I sent for a can of Ointment and Founders for making the Syrup, which I used without the slightest change at the time. I began to think it was a failure, but concluded to give it another trial; consequently I procured another can of Ointment and Powders, and from its use it gathered and broke in two places, and discharged very freely for about six mouths, after which time it broke again in another place, and one of the old Ulcers healed up, the remaining two still remaining, one of which ran for two and a hall years, the other healing up in about two months after it broke, during which time I used your medicine regularly. I may here state, that the last Ulcer healed up about thirteen months ago, since which time I have enjoyed good health! Yes, I may say better health than I have enjoyed for years.

I remain yours, respectfully,

Mas. Hannah Balmain.

MESSRS. ROGERS & Co.—Gents: My daughter is nicely, and you have done wonders, for I neverthought you would make a cure as you have done. Her leg appears to be quite strong, but it itches a little.

Yours, &c.. EDWARD CORBETT.

The above was a very severe case of Scrofula of four or five years standing, and after having baffled the skill of the best Physicians and almost every other Patent Medicine, and the child appeared to be on the verge of the grave, and the parents having lost confidence in every thing in the medical line, we undertook the cure for a certain sum, and if we failed were to get nothing; but we succeeded, as we do in every case of Scrofula we undertake. Nearly the whole of the bone—from the knee to the ankle—came out in pieces from time to time.
