When the tasks and the lessons are ended, And the school for the day is dismissed, The little ones gather around me To bid me good-night and be kissed; Oh! the little white arms that encircle My neck in their tender embrace :

Oh! the smiles that are halos of heaven. Shedding sunshine of love on my face ! Oh! my heart grows as weak as a woman's, And the fount of my feelings will flow, When I think of the paths steep and stony,

Where the feet of the dear ones must go; Of the mountains of sin hanging o'er them-Of the tempests of Fate blowing wild, For there's nothing on earth half so holy As the innocent heart of a child!

They are idols of hearts and of households, They are angels of God in disguise; His sunlight still sleeps in their tresses, His glory still gleams in their eyes; Oh! those truant from home and from heaven, They have made me more manly and mild : And I know, now, how Jesus could liken The kingdom of God to a child.

I ask not a life for the dear ones All radiant, as others have done, But that life may have just enough shadow To temper the glare of the sun; I would pray God to guard them from evil, But my prayers would bound back to myself .-

Ah! a seraph may pray for a sinner, But a sinner must pray for himself. The twig is so easily bended, I have banished the rule and the rod; I have taught them the goodness of knowledge, They have taught me the goodness of God;

My heart is a dungeon of darkness, Where I shut them for breaking a rule, My frown is sufficient correction, My love is the law of the school. I shall leave the old house in the autumn,

To traverse its threshold no more: Ah! how I shall sigh for the dear ones That meet me each morn at the door ! I shall miss the "good-nights" and the kisses, And the gush of their innocent glee, The group on the green, and the flowers That are brought every morning for me.

Their song in the school and the street; I shall miss the low hum of their voices, And the tramp of their pattering feet; When the lessons of life are all ended, And Death says, "The school is dismissed!" May the little ones gather around me To bid me good-night and be kissed. -Charles Dickenson.

I shall miss them at morn and at even-

The Power of Faith.

Maria Menger, the daughter of a corn dealer at Assweiler, in Lotharingia, was compelled early in life to seek a home with hard-hearted relatives. Overburdened with work which far exceeded her strength, and often severely beaten and kicked by her cruel uncle, she was taken very ill in consequence of this mal-treatment, and being left without the least care and attention, she became a perfect cripple. If a little boy, whom the poor sufferer had formerly waited upon as nurse, had not secretly shared his morsel with her, she would have died of starvation. It was an affecting sight to see the sympathizing child sitting in front of the patient, and putting her frugal meal into her month. In this wretched condition Maria spent four years. Her extremities had become powerless. Her right arm was bent back upon her hip, her head rested on her right shoulder, while her feet lay crosswise over each other. In summer she sat in front of the house, and in winter in a box behind the stove. Her relatives hoping that death would soon carry her off, continued to treat her with extreme harshness. Her only comfort she found in prayer, which, with increasing importunity, she addressed to God. In the meantime her little guardian angel often read the word of God to her, particularly the narrative of our Saviour's sufferings, and thus quickened her faith during her tearful season of tribulation. The longing desire of her heart after deliverance from her misery, growing more intense, one day, in the year 1747, she eagerly sought for comfort in the word of God. Her little reader happening to select some of the miracles of our Lord, which at that moment added peculiar strength to her faith, "O my Jesus!" she exclaimed, on once more hearing the story of the man with the withered hand, "if thou wilt help me, I will live solely to thy glory!" She could not cease to pray thus, for she felt in her heart that her petition would be granted. And while her cheerful faith constrained her to pray aloud, she felt life returning to her withered members. She involuntarily commenced employing them. Trembling, she was enabled to raise herself up. Her soul, confounded and amazed, shouted for joy. "Blessed be God!" exclaimed her little reader, "now you can walk again and help yourself at meals!" This occurred on her 14th birthday. Her relatives expressed no joy at her recovery, but only began to beat her anew; still her former sufferings did not return upon her. She continued to walk in the ways of God, whose comfort and aid in her great affliction she had experienced in so wonderful a manner. In after Dividing the Fees.

A good story is told of a reverend gentleman to whom a farmer complained that ministers earned money much easier than he did. "Now," said the farmer, " when you are called upon to marry a couple, you never expect a less sum than $3, and you sometimes get $10-this only for a few minutes' service." "Pooh!" replied the Doctor, "I would agree to give you half my next marriage fee for a bushel of potatoes." "Very well," said the farmer, I'll take your offer, and send you the potatoes."

A few days afterward the clergyman was called on to splice a loving couple at D-, a place about four miles from where he lived. When the ceremony was over, the bridegroom said to the worthy minister: "Well, parson, s'pose I must fork over some-thing for your trouble. What say you to taking one of my terrier paps? The best breed, I tell you, in the country. Shocking nice to have in the barn. Worth full $5, and I suppose a figure of two would do for the splice, eh?" The Doctor took the pup with joy. The joke was too good; he hastened to the farmer, saying: "Now, friend, here is my fee; how shall we

The farmer relished the joke so well that he increased the potatoes to half-a-dozen bushels.

SEASONABLE FESTIVITIES.

Whether attending, in solemn duty, to religious service at the lecture, the concert, or at any social gathering, we find at this period that coughs and colds are very prevalent : unpleasant slike to those who suffer as well as to those who have aural demonstrations of the fact. Many an impressive discourse, many a choice selection of music, has been marred by a din of coughing that seems at times contagious. To remedy this, our readers should use and recommend Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, one of the best medicines in the world for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all throat and chest affections .- Montreal Transcript.
