Nathan Jackson's Thanksgiving. A STORT FOR BOYS. (Concluded.)

ALC MARKEN CALL AND THE REAL

The question, what to do with his dollar, was one of considerable consequence to him. Had his father been like some men, he would have taken the money and put it into his pocket, and this would have been the end of it. He pursued no such course. He felt that the money belonged to Nathan, and so he wished him to decide for himself. He began by saying : " Esquire Bidwell gave it to me. Now ought I to keep it to remember him by, or would it be right for me to spend it ?"

What did Esquire Bidwell say about that ?" " Nothing, sir. He only said, " Here, Nathan, take this."

" I don't see, Nathan, as there is any objection to spending it, but I would not spend it foolishly."

"I don't wish to. How had I better spend it ? What can I buy with it ?

"You can get a good sheep with it, and you can let out that sheep to some one to keep. He will feed it, and at the end of four years give you two sheep as good as that one is. This is the common rule among the farmers. If I were you I would lay out the money in this way."

Nathan followed his father's advice. He asked him to select the sheep for him, because he knew his judgment was better than his own.

He returned to Stockbridge, and rode up to Mr. Bidweil's office, that he might see that the horse was in good trim.

Mr. Bidwell came to the door and said, "You have got back, Nathan, at the time you said you would,"

" Yes, sir."

" Have you had a good time ?"

"First rate, sir, bat-(and here he hesitated) I have spent the dollar you gave me."

" What, so quick ?"

"I hope you will not be offended, sir, because

I have spent it." " Offended ? No, I gave it to you to spend.

What did you do with it ?"

"I bought a sheep, sir."

What in the world are yon, a boy twelve years old, going to do with a sheep ?"

" Father advised me to buy one, sir."

"Well, if Colonel Jackson advised you to, I presume it is all right, but I should not want to be bothered with a sheep.'

"I shall not be bothered with it, sir. I have let it out to a farmer to double in four years."

" I understand. You paid a dollar for a sheep, and at the end of four years you are to have two. Tweaty-five per cent. interest, eh? That is pretty well for a boy. You will have mutton to sell one of these days."

" Then you are not offended, sir ?"

"O, no. You can put the borse in the barn." In due time the boy became a man. Owing to the largeness of his father's family, he was thrown upon his own resources. He spent some time in Boston ; then lived in New London, and at length found his way to New York. He had still kept his sheep.

After the flock became large, he divided it into portions, and let them out, to double once in four years.

Lots were advertised for sale in what was then the upper part of the city. He thought it a favourable time to make an investment. He had now kept the sheep forty years. They now numbered ten hundred and sixty-four. Thus had his Thanksgiving sheep multiplied more than a thousand fold. He sold them, and received the sum of fifteen hundred and ninety-six dollars. He put more with this, and purchased ten lots, for which he paid twenty-five hundred dollars. These in two years he sold for twelve thousand dollars.

C. N. SKINNER,

His attention was called soon after this to the wants of Williams College. He expended between five and six thousand dollars on a building which is called Jackson Hall. Afterward he gave the College above twenty thousand dollars more.

Many generations will rise up to bless the name of Nathan Jackson. By wisely saving, and properly investing his first dollar, he laid the foundation for a large fortune. A portion of this he has so employed, that he has been a public benefactor.

Every son of Williams College will bless the man, who, though he had only a common school education, has done so much for the cause which he loves.

We can see how great results may spring from small causes. Esquire Bidwell did not foresec, when he gave the boy a dollar, that he would so use it as to bless the race.

Had he spent it foolishly, no such results would have attended his Thanksgiving present.

Little Things in Farming.

The whole success of a farmer hinges upon timely attention to little things. This, mainly, makes the difference between thrift and poverty. The philosophy of success is expressed in that old adage, "For want of a nail a shoe was lost, for want of a shoe a horse was lost, for want of a horse a man was lost." It is a little thing to keep accounts of the pecuniary transactions upon the farm. A half hour Saturday evenings would enable most farmers to know just how they stand with the world. Yet, we suspect half of the men who cultivate the soil never make an entry in a book, and for want of this, the account runs up fearfully at the store, and many articles of luxury are purchased for which they are unable to pay at the end of the year. Debt accumulates, the farm is mortgaged, and finally lost, for want of a httle paper and ink. It is a little thing to put up a tool in its place when not in use. Yet many have no tool-house, or place of shelter for any implement or vehicle. Things are left where last used, the plow in the field, the cart in the yard, the chains in the stable, the harness in the wood house, the axe at the wood-pile, and the rakes in the corn-crib. Many do not even house the expensive implements they have bought, and reapers and thrashers are treated like old plows and harrows. The parts made of iron and steel grow rusty, and the wood decays. A machine that is good for thirty years with good care is used up in five by abuse. It is a very little thing to turn a nut when it is loose. Yet for want of the tightening the nut is lost; the belt comes out; and the loaded wagon breaks down on the road to. market, and a whole day's time for man and team is lost. It is a little thing to keep a horse prop-erly groomed, yet for want of clean fetlocks the skin cracks and the horse is lame, and the owner loses the use of him for months or weeks. Ven tilation is a small affair, yet for want of it the health of stock in stables suffers severely, and disease sets in. It is a small affair to provide good seed at the beginning of the year, but the whole success of the season depends upon it. It is an easy thing to deal fairly with your neighbours, a name that is better than "precious ointment." Many cheat on small occasions ; de not deliver what they sell, and get a reputation for meanness that stands in the way of their success.—American Agriculturist.

MILETSG.—Let our farmers remember, that to have their cows milked indiscriminately by any of the members of the family is a loss. Keep a reg-ular milker for each cow, or one for all, if not too many. Do not change. Milk as fast as possible.
