Harmless, happy little treasures, Full of truth, and trust, and mirth, Richest wealth, and purest pleasures, In this mean and guilty earth.

How I love you, pretty creatures, Lamb-like flock of little things, Where the love that lights your featutes From the heart in beauty springs.

On these laughing, rosy faces, There are no deep lines of sin-None of passion's dreary traces, That betray the wounds within;

But yours is the sunny dimple, Radiant with untutored smiles; Yours the heart sincere and simple, Innocent of selfish wiles;

Yours the natural curling tresses, Prattling tougues and shyness coy, Tottering steps, and kind caresses, Pare with health and warm with joy.

The dull slaves of gain or passion Cannot leve you as they should; The poor worldly fools of fashion Would not love von if they could.

Write them childless, those cold hearted, Who can scorn Thy generous boon, And whose souls with fear have smarted, Lest-Thy blessings come too soon.

While he hath a child to love him, No man can be poor indeed; While he trusts a Friend above him, None can sorrow, fear or need.

But for thee, whose heart is lonely, And unwarmed by children's mirth, Spite of riches, thou art only Desolate and poor on earth.

All unkissed by innocent beauty, All unloved by guileless heart, All uncheered by sweetest duty, Childless man how poor thou art!

From the Methodist. A STORY FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS. BY T. TAYLOR.

> THE BLACK SPECTACLES. [Concluded.]

A walk was suggested before they went home. All agreed, and prepared to start up a hill near

by. Come on," called Rufus, "I am sure there are lots of snakes up there." "Snakes!" repeated Bella, in horror. "Snakes, did you say? O dear! I can never go then."

"Are you afraid of snakes, Rufus?" asked one of the girls. Not a bit. None of them are poisonous, unless we find an alligator or a crocodile." "Then we will go with you," they returned, laughing. "We are not afraid of crocodiles and alligators. "O dear! I should faint! I cannot go. If I had only known there were snakes in these woods. I never should have come. "Pshaw! there are snakes in all woods. Come on-who's afraid?" exclaimed Rufus, leading the

They started, leaving her with Jessie, who was pleasure." very much alarmed on hearing of snakes. They had sat down on a large rock, first spreading a blanket shawl under them, and another over their feet, so that none of the monsters of the grove should attack them. They sat still for a few moments, and then Jessie, forgetting her fears, began to talk. She had startely commenced, when Bella said, in a low soice:

"There! don't you feel something wriggling under your feet? I am sure I did-and now remember snakes always creep under rocks."

Down they jumped, and Jessie faintly said : "O Bella! there it is-I can see it now. What shall we do ? it will run after us!"

"Where is it?" asked Bella. "Oh! there-there! Don't you see?" "Pshaw! that is only a bit of twisted stick.

You musn't be so nervous, indeed you must not, Jess. Let's go sit on that log." Every little noise and rustling of the woods

"What's that?" asked Jessie, as a bird flew over their heads.

" I believe there's a squirrel's nest in that tree' and do you know they bite awfully sometimes? I heard a lady say so who kept a tame one once."

"Can they run fast?" asked Jessie fearfully. "Faster than anything else you ever saw." " How I wish the girls were back!" said Jessie, looking around her timidly.

"I wish so, too. How lonesome it is here without them. I hope they won't lose their way or forget about us, and go out of the woods another way. I could never find my way out alone —could you! Perhaps something has happened to some of them that makes them so long. Maybe a snake has bitten them, or one may have fallen down and sprained an ankle, or broken an arm. There's no telling what may not have happened, they have been gone so long. And how dark the woods are getting! It must be very late. I hope they haven't forgotten all about us. Dear me! suppose it should begin to rain now, what in this world would we do?" Jessie crept closer to Bella, more and more frightened. "Hark Lewhat is that noise ! Don't you hear ! It is a bull. Yes, I am sure it must be a bull, and we may be gored without any one to help

"What shall we do?" Jessie burst into a flood of tears, and wrong her hands. "What shall we do ?"

"Wait a minute; perhaps it isn't very near us." They listened, and heard the sound again. "I've got this red shawl, and red always makes them mad. How can I hide it?" asked Bella. "And my dress is pink-bright pink," added Jessie, sobbing.

"We can run down there in that low place behind those bushes, and hide." They ran, but it was a quagmire; and before they knew it, they were over their ankles in soft,

"We're rained! we're lost cried Bella." "We must be in the quicksand father told us about. I don't dare to move one inch: it will swallow us up, Don't stir, Jessie. Are you sinking lower and lower down !"

the girls; perhaps they will hear us, and come to our help." They both called loudly several times, and a faint whoop answered them.

"That couldn't be"— Jessie hesitated. "The bull? No, of course not," returned

"I didn't mean the bull. It couldn't be In-"Indians! What a little goose! All the Indians have been dead and buried millions of

"Ah! I am so glad," said Jessie, much relieved. "Then it must be the others coming back. I am so glad."

The party returned, somewhat alarmed by the shouts they had immediately heard, for they had not gone out of hearing distance. Rufus came running down first, crying that the snakes were after him; but not seeing the girls where he had left them, he looked around, and, finally spid them standing ankle-deep in mud.

"What are you doing there?" he cried, in asonishment. "Come out of that damp, wet

"O dear! Rufus, I don't believe we can get out. I believe this is the quicksand, and we don't dare to move an inch." "Quick, Granny!" exclaimed Rufus. "Come straight out I say, or you will catch your death of cold." And, offering each a hand, they came out much bemired and bedraggled; and when the party heard the story of the bull, they screamed with laughter. "Only think," said Rufus, when he could speak, "they must have heard that quiet old white cow lowing that we saw over in the meadow. A good joke, indeed. She must wear spectacles or have used a telescope to have seen your red shawl a good half mile through the woods. I am so sorry you called us down; we were having such fun hunting for snakes, you know, on the mountain." "We thought you had been gone so long, and it seemed so dark; it was just like twilight. "Long! we were not gone twenty minutes.

It's too late to go back now." So that fun was spoiled. And Bella thought of nothing but wet feet, colds, coughs, chills and fever for the rest of the day. Jessie took good care to secure her place far from Bella on the way home, and the party, though somewhat tired, kept up their spirits, and were checiful and happy.

"How delightful it has been," said a girl who sat next to Bella. "The woods were so cool and fresh; and it was charming up on the hill. Look at the flowers we gathered; take some if you want them.'

"Yes, the woods were very pleasant and cool, but how damp they are-

"I should think so, where you were," interrupt ed Rufus, slyly.

"The stiffness is all taken out of my dress. Feel it-see how limp it is now," continued Bella, holding out her dress.

"Take some of my flewers. Here, you could not get them where you were; they only grow in high places." Bella hesitated. "It is a purple flower, isn't it? I expect it is the deadly nightshade, and that is rank poison. I wouldn't touch it for a hundred dollars; I might never get over it, for every year, just at this time, the poison would come out in the same place.

The flowers were dropped sitently out of the waggon, and the next horse that passed that way trod them in the dust. It would have been better to have left them blossoming on the lonely,

The wagon drove up to their door, and Grace alighted safe and sound. "Take care that the horses don't start while am getting out," said Bella, imploringly. Their mother listened to the different accounts of the day from Bella and Grace. The latter had enjoyed it wonderfully-the ride, the cool, green woods, the walk on the hill, all were recounted and dwelt upon with pleasure. Bella's story, though the same, was yet quite different; she could not enjoy it all just as Grace and the others

"Ah! I see," said her mother, "she has been wearing those dismal black spectacles of hers all day, and of course everything has seemed a little gloomy. They are very bad for the eyes. I am glad you did not leud them to the others, so they did not see things as you did. Such spectacles are useless at all times, and should never be carried to a picnic or anywhere when you expect

FELLOWS COMPOUND SYRUP

To Mr. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Manufacturing Chemist, Saint John, N. B.
We, the undersigned, have much pleasure in recommending your Compound Syrup. After a fair and protracted trial of the same, we consider your preparation a very valuable nervous tonic, far surpassing many others of considerable repute, and well worthy the confidence of the profession generally.

fession generally.

We beg to remain, yours, very truly,

A. H. CHANDLEK, M. D.

H. A. JACOBS, M. D. Moncton, N. B., November 9, 1867.

Ma. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Manufacturing Chemist.

Sim—For several months past I have used your Compound Syrup in the treatment of Incipient Phthisis, Chronic, Bronchitis, and other affections of the Chest, and I have no hesitation in stating that it ranks toremost an ongst the remedies used in those diseases. Being an excellent nervous tonic, it exerts a direct influence on the nervous system, and through it invigorates the body. and through it invigorates the body.

It affords me pleasure to recommend a remedy which is really good in cases for which it is intended, when so many advertised are worse than useless.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

I am, Sir, yours truly,

S. Z. EARLE, JR., M. D. St. John, N. B., January 1868. MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Chemist, St. John, N. B. DEAR SIR—Having used your Compound Syrup for some time in my practice, I have no hesitation in recommending it to my patients who are suffering from general debility, or any disease of the lungs, knowing that even in cases utterly hopeless it affords relief.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

St. John, N. B., January 1868. H. G. ADLY, M. D.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, St. John, N. B. Mr. JAMES I. FELLOWS, St. John, N. B.

Sin-Having, while at your Establishment, carefully examined your prescription, and the method of preparing your Compound Syrup, I felt anxious to give it a fair trial in my practice. For the last twelve months I have done so, and I find that in Incipient Consumption, and other diseases of the Throat and Lungs, it has done wonders. In restoring persons suffering from the effects of Diptheria, and the cough following Typhoid Fever prevalent in this region, it is the best remedial agent I have ever used. But for persons suffering from exhaustion of the powers of the brain and nervous system, from long continued study or teaching, or in those cases of exhaustion from which so many young men suffer, I know of no better medicine for restoration to health than your Compound Syrup.

If you think this letter of any service you are at liberty to use it as you see fit.

o use it as you see fit.
I remain, yours, &c., EDWIN CLAY, M.D. Pugwash, N. S., January 14, 1868.

CAUTION! CAUTION!

THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz.—It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c.; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Clott, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Guns, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspnonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured.

If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose not time in abtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time—saves your clothes—saves your mon'ny; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal, makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but site agethens and improve them—by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flancels

CHICKERING & SONS, Paris Exposition 1867. Valuable Improvement.

PROM this date (October, 1868), we shall introduce in several Styles of our Cabinet Organs a new and very seautiful invention, combining several recent patents. It will be known as The Mason & Hamlin Improved Vox Humana and excels every other attachment of this class in the beauty of its effect, the perfect ease with which it is operated, its durability and freedom from liability to get out of order.

1. In connection with the Automatic Swell, (exclusively used in the M. & H. Cabinet Organs,) it produces the nearest approach to the peculiarly sympathetic, rich and at the contraction of the burner value at the contraction of the peculiarly sympathetic, rich and at the contraction of the burner value at the contraction of the peculiarly sympathetic, rich and at the contraction of the peculiarly sympathetic. tractive quality of a fine human voice yet attained in any read instrument.

2. It is operated by the ordinary action of the bellows of the in trument, and requires no separate pedal, being played by the same motion, and as easily as an instrument 3. It has no clockwork or machinery, and is entirely tree from liability to get out of order, and as durable as the instrument itself. Circulars and Catalogues with full descriptions and il
