The water at Talcahuano had been so hot as to throw up all the nation a cooked state, and great subterraneous rumblings were frequent.

The bloody war so long maintained between The bloody war so long maintained between Brazil and Paraguay appears to be approaching a termination. Repeated successes of the Brazilian troops have left Lopez, the Paraguayan chief, almost powerless. He has been compelled to abandon the principal fortresses one by one and retreat to the interior; and his rule over Paraguay, which is said to equal in territory that of Theodore of Abyssinia, is nearly at an end. Latest advices state that Lopez with the remainder of his forces was at Viletta, and news of a battle was daily expected. This will probably bring the war to a close. It is said that the Portuguese Consul had been forcibly taken from the Portuguese Consul had been forcibly taken from the American Legation at Asuncion and shot. U.S. war steamer had gone up the Paraguay river and a peremptory demand would be made by the American commander for redress.
