The Worsted Stocking.

"Father will have done the great chimney tonight, won't he, mother ?" said little Tom Howard, as he stood waiting for his father's breakfast, which he carried to him at his work every morning. "He said he hoped all the scaffolding would be down to-night," answered his mother: "and that'll be a fine sight: for I never like the ending of those great chimneys, it's so risky. Thy father's to be the last up."

"Eh, then, but I'll go and see him, and help 'em to give a shout afore he comes down," said

"And then," continued his mother, "if all goes right we are to have a frolic to-morrow, and go into the country, and take our dinners, and spend all the day amongst the woods."

"Hurrah!" cried Tom, as he ran off to his father's place of work, with a can of milk in one hand and some bread in the other.

His mother stood at the door watching him as he went merrily whistling down the street; and ther, she thought of the dear father he was going to, and the dangerous work he was engaged in and then her heart songht its sure refuge, and she prayed to God to protect and bless her treasures. Tom, with light heart, pursued his way to his father, and, leaving him his breakfast, went to his own work, which was at some distance. In the evening, on his way home, he went round to see how his father was getting on. James Howard, the father, and a number of other workmen, had been building one of those lofty chimneys, which, in our great manufacturing towns, almost supply the place of architectural beauty. This chimney was one of the highest that had ever been erected; and as Tom, shading his eyes from the slanting rays of the setting sun, looked up to the top in search of his father, his heart almost sunk within him at the appalling sight. The scaffolding was almost all down; the men at the bottom were removing the last beams and poles. Tom's father stood alone on the top. He looked all around to see that everything was right; and then, waving his hat in the air, the men below answered him with a long, loud cheer, little Tom, shouting as heartily as any of them. As their voices died away, however, they heard a very different sound-a cry of alarm and horror, from above,-

"The rope! the rope!" The men looked round, and coiled upon the ground lay the rope, which, before the scaffolding was removed, should have been passed over the top of the chimney for Tom's father to come down by! The scaffolding had been taken down without their remembering to take the rope up There was a dead silence. They all knew it was impossible to throw the rope up high enough or skillfully enough to reach the top of the chimney; or, if it could, it would hardly have been safe. They stood in silent dismay, unable to give any help, or think of any means of safety.

And Tom's father! He walked round and round the little circle on the dizzy height, seeming every moment to grow more fearful, and the solid earth farther and father from bim. In the sudden panic he lost his presence of mind, and his senses almost failed him. He shut his eyes; he felt as if, the next moment, he must be dashed to pieces on the ground below.

The day had passed as industriously and swiftly as usual with Tom's mother at home. She was always busily employed for her husband and children in some way or other; and to-day she had been harder at work than usual, getting ready for the holiday to-morrow. She had just finished all her preparations, and her thoughts were silently thanking God for her happy home, and for all the blessings of life, when Tom ran in. His face was white as ashes, and he could hardly get his words ont,-

"Mother, mother! he canna get down!" said "Who, lad !-thy father ?" asked his mother. "They've forgotten to leave him the rope,' answered Tom, still scarcely able to speak. His mother started up, horror-struck, and stood for a moment as if paralysed; then, pressing her hands over her face as if to shut out the terrible picture, and breathing a prayer to God for help, she rushed out of the house.

When she reached the place where her husband was at work, a crowd had collected round the foot of the chimney, and stood there quite helpless, gazing up with faces full of horror. "He says he'll throw himself down!" exclaimed they as Mrs. Howard came up. "He's going to throw himself down!"

"Thee munns do that lad," cried the wife with a clear, hopeful voice; "thee munna do that. Wait a bit. Tak' off thy stocking lad, and unravel it, and let down the thread with a bit of mortar. Dost hear me, Jem?"

The man made a sign of assent,-for it seemed as if he could not speak; -and, taking off his stocking, unravelled the worsted thread, row after row. The people stood round in breathless silence and suspense, wondering what Tom's mother could be thinking of, and why she sent in such haste for the carpenter's ball of twine.

"Let down one end of the thread with a bit of stone, and keep fast hold of the other?" cried she to her husband.

The little thread came waving down the tall chimney, blown bither and thither by the wind; but at last it reached the outstretched hands that were waiting for it. Tom held the ball of string, while his mother tied one end of it to the wors-

"Now pull it up slowly !" cried she to her husband; and she gradually unwound the string as the worsted drew it gently up. It stopped: the string had reached her husband.

"Now hold the string fast, and pull it up cried she: and the string grew heavy, and hard to pull; for Tom and his mother had fastened the thick rope to it. They watched it gradually and slowly uncoiling from the ground as the string was drawn higher.

There was but one coil left. It had reached "Thank God! thank God!" exclaimed the

She hid her face in her hands in silent prayer, and, trembling, rejoiced. The iron to which it should be fastened was there all right. But would her husband be able to make use of them? Would not the terror of the past hour have so unnerved him as to prevent him from taking the necessary measures for his safety? She did not know the magic influence which her few words had exercised over him. She did not know the strength that the sound of her voice, so calm and steadfast, had filled him with; as if the little thread that carried him the hope of life once more had conveyed to him some portion of that faith in God which nothing ever destroyed or shook in her true heart. She did not know that as he waited there, the words came over

"Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thon lifted up her heart to God for hope and usband; and her heart turned to God and rested on him as on a rock,

There was a great shout.

"He's safe, mother! he's safe?" cried little

Tom. "Thou'st saved me, Mary!" said her husband, folding her in his arms. "But what ails thee? Thou seemest more sorry than glad about

But Mary could not speak; and if the strong reasonable arm of her busband had not held her up, she Feb 6.

would have fallen to the ground; the sudden joy after such great fear had overcome her.

"Tom," said his father, let thy mother lean on thy shoulder, and we will take her home." And in their happy home they poured forth their thanks to God for his great goodness; and their happy life together felt dearer and holier for the peril it had been in, and for the nearness that the danger had brought them unto God. And the holiday next day—was it not, indeed, a thanksgiving day?—Sunday School Magazine.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Hourseness, Asthma, Influenza, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Predisposition to

This great remedy is too well known, and is performing too much good, to make it necessary to go into an elaborate discussion of its merits. Suffice it to say, that it still maintains its supremacy in curing diseases of the most obstinate character, and that all who suffer from the above complaints, after having tested this remedy, seldom have occasion to resort to other appliances to insure a perfect

LETTER FROM ELDER H. L. GILMAN, A Minister of the Gospel in Vermont.

GLOVER, Vt., June 20, 1859. Massers. S. W. Fowle & Son.

Gents.—I hereby certify that I have been troubled for several years with a difficulty of the heart and lungs, have applied to several physicians for belp, and have tried almost every remedy of the numerous ones which have been recommended, without receiving any assistance; but had been growing weaker and weaker, until, hearing of Wistar's Batsam of Wild Cherry about a year since, I commenced using it, with immediate relief. It has not only restored my lungs to a sound state, but I am entirely relieved of the difficulty or disease of the heart. I have no hesitation in saving that it is the zest lung medicine before the public, and I cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it to all persons suffering with pulmonary complaints.

And is being constantly increased.

THIS Society will consist of an indefinite number of Shares of the ultimate value of $200 each. In the issue of this Stock peculiar inducements are offered to capitalists and others seeking a perfectly safe and remunerative rate of Interest free from the anxiety and doubt needed.

ists and others seeking a perfectly safe and remunerative rate of Interest, free from the anxiety and doubt incident to investments requiring constant watchfulness, and to enable every one who can save from their income to invest periodically that portion of their savings which overlaps current charges in a common Fund.

Money is received on Deposit from those who do not wish to invest periodically, for which Interest is paid in January and July, at the rate of Six per Cent. per Annum. Advances are made to members (only) to buy, build, or redeem property, upon the security of approved Real Estate, repayable by easy monthly instalments.

Present amountadvanced to members, $151,300.

Investing Shares may be taked up at any time, to mature in ten years. Bonus profits belong to these Shares.

OBSERVE THE NAME.

IT is well at all times to call things each by their own proper names, otherwise you may not get what you want. When you desire to have the best Coal Oil, that which is made from Albert Coal, and manufactured in this Province, ask for "ALBERTINE OIL." Should you call for it by some other name, where the genuine article is not sold, you may expect to be served with an inferior article. Always call for and be sure you get Albertine Oil.

Albertine Oil has no bad odor, will burn to the last drop in the lamp without depreciation of light, and gives universal satisfaction.

whenever you meet with a bad smelling Oil or a bad burning Oil, you may be sure it is not Albertine.
