BUY MY PRIMBOSES

"Who'll buy my primroses a penny a bunch, only a penny a bunch," resounded through the Lordon streets one fine April day in 1866. "Please, sir, buy a bunch, only a penny! sir," said a voice at my elbow. I looked around. A little girl, with a basket-full of primroses slood by my side. Poor, very poor, she looked, but clean and neat. As I looked at the soft blue eyes and child-like face, I thought, here is an onmortal flower indeed, which must be guarded from the rough winds of tempration. " Please, sir," continued the child, "buy one bunch: I have sold none, and mother is very poor. We are all hungry at home; mother can't get much

" Poor child! where do you live, where's your father ?" I inquired.

"We five in Paradisc Row, sir; and father, poor father ! oh, sir !" she burst into toars. Don't cry, my dear, Here is a shilling you shall leave a dozen bunches of primroses at my house, and I will come and see your mother. As we walk along you shall tell me your story."

We walked away, I and the little primroseseller. For some distance she sobbed bitterly, but at last the little voice said : "Father, sir, has gone away; mother says we shall never see him again. A policeman came to look for him after he was gone." Poor child! I thought—the old tale, drunkenness and desertion. We were now threading our way among dark, dirty lanes. Idle men, smoking short pipes, lonnged at the corners. Low looking women, smartly dressed, passing to and fro, and sounds of laughing and singing came through the open window of the public house. My little guide stopped at the door of a common lodging house, and made her way up stairs. I followed as fast as the darkness would allow. "Mother, mother, here's a kind gontleman has bought twelve bunches of primroses, and he's come to see you."

"God bless you, sir, for your kindness to my child," said a pale, worn woman, in whose face I saw the blue cyes and sweet expression of my little friend. "Sit down, sir."

I need not tell you the whole of the long chat which I had with poor Mrs. Davis. Her husband, though earning good wages, was a confirmed drunkard. Her life was scarcely safe, whon he came home maddened with drink on Saturday night. Tables, chairs, crockery, were smashed; and the poor wife often sat all night on the stairs to avoid his fury. One day he went out as usual, and she saw no more of him; but a boon com-panion of his told her that the police had come into the public house, and he had thrown a pewter pot with such violedce at a policeman, that he lay on the floor as one dead, blood flowing from his head. Jem Davis had fled-where, none knew; but rumors were affoat that he had gone on board a vessel which was on the point of sailing for Australia.

"Buy my primroses who'th buy my primroses ?" again resounded through the London

"Primroses! my little maid," said a bronzed, weather-beaten man, "God bless their innocent faces. I have not seen them these four years. Give me a bunch-quick." He buried his face. in their sweet breath. " Oh! there's not a flower all the world over as can beat the primrose. Why, my little maid, you look like a primro-e yourself; here's sixpence, they're well worth that: why you'd get half a crown apiece for them in Australia. Hey !- what-crying ? What's the matter, my lassie; I'm a rough fellow; what have I done? Did you think that I was laughing at ye, or was it the word 'Australia' that made ye cry!" The bright blue eyes, swimming in tears, were raised to his face.

"Please, sir," said the little primrose seller, "tell me about Australia. Is it very far away ? Do people who go there ever come back?" He looked down on that sweet young face; a something, he scarcely knew what,-a warm, yearning, loving feeling, swept through his heart, and his eyes filled with tears. He clasped the little hand which lay so confidingly in his.

"Where do you live, httle girl? Have you got a father and mother?" said he. I've got a mother, sir, but father -- poor father! I shall never see him again. Do, sir, come and see mother, and tell her about Australia; there's our house." "Mother! mother! here's another gentleman come to see you, all the way from Australia, mother! What's the matter?" "My wife !" cried James Davis, rushing forward to catch bee; "my own wife. Thank God! thou hast guided me home. Fetch me a little water, my child, she's coming to." Mary's eyes opened, and she looked woulderingly in her husband's face.

O. James, it is true; are you really my long. lost husband, whom I never thought to see on this side of the grave?" AB, Mary I here is your wicked, prodigat but repentant husband, come back to ask forgiveness, as he has already asked and obtained God's forgiveness. I hope now to make you a happy wife. Come here, my own little one, my prin rose seller. What was it that drew me to you! It was the primroses first, but afterwards it was your dear face. Yet no, 'twas something more; it was a father's love that I felt which made my heart feel like to burst Bless you, my dailing; and the father's hand rested lovingly on the little head, as he looked down on the blue eyes raised still somewhat wonderingly to his face.

Mand are you my very own father, whom mother used to talk about, and whom she prayed for every day and night?"

"Ah, Mary, you prayed for the runaway Well, God has granted your prayer. I can now pray for myself. You heard that I ran away for fear of the law; I knew that the police were after me. I went aboard of the Black Prince; her blue ponnant was flying, and a few hours afterwards she dropped down the river with the tide. First of all, I was glad to get away from the police; but oh! I can't tell you what I fell as the white cliffs of old England disappeared. Drink, I thought to myself, drink, and nothing else, has brought me here. Drink has driven me from my native country, a fugitive and a vaga bond. Well, to make a long story short, I determined, before I set foot in Australia, that by God's grace, I would never touch liquor again. kept my vow all the voyage. When I landed I met with some old mates. They were delighted to see me, and asked me to spend the evening with them. I went. First of all I didn't very well like it, them I went First of all I didn't very well like it, 'twas in a public house; but, thinks I to myself, I'll show them a good example. O Mary! must I confess it! Instead of showing them a good example, they persuaded me. I broke my pledge, and went to my lodgings as drunk as ever. For some weeks I drank and drank to drown my thoughts and my misery. One night I saw a large placard with 'Temperance Lecture' on it. A gentleman from England spoke. I can't tell you all he said, but I felt it in my heart. After d. 'God bless you, my lads,' said the gen-in. 'Look to him for strength to keep your ise.' I never forgot those words. I went prayed God to bring me to my wife and little ones. Not half an hour after, I met our little primrose-seller here, and you know the rest. How can I thank my Heavedly Father enough, who led me to my wife and child by means of a "bunch of primroses,"

BURNS, SCALDS, AND THEIR TREATMENT .- MIX common kitchen whitening with sweet oil or af sweet oil is not at hand, with water. Plaster the whole of the burn and some inches beyond it, all round, with the above, after mixing it to the consistency of common paste, and lay it on, an eighth, or rather more, of an inch in thickness. It acts like a charm; the most agonizing pain is in a few minutes stilled. Take care to keep the mixture moist by the application, from time to time, of fresh oil or fresh water, and at night wrap the whole part affected in gutta perchaer flannel, to keep the moisture from evaporating. The patient will in all probability, unless the flesh be much injured and the burn a very bad one, sleep sound. ly .- Exchange . To : EMKIHO Aid suitous bus to

THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz.:—It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the fool pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unible other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured.

If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful beauty of its effects, the perfect case with which it is operated, its durability and freedom from liability to get out of order.

1. In connection with the Automatic Swell, (exclusively used in the M. & H. Cabinet Organs,) it produces the nearest approach to the peculiarly sympathetic, rich and attractive quality of a fine human voice yet attained in any reed instrument.

2. It is operated by the ordinary action of the bellows of the in trument, and requires no separate pedal, being play-ed by the same motion, and as easily as an instrument 8. It has no clockwork or machinery, and is entirely free from liability to get out of order, and as durable as the instrument itself.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP

To MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS,

Manufacturing Chemist, Saint John, N. B. We, the undersigned, have much pleasure in recommend-ing your Compound Syrup. After a fair and protracted trial of the same, we consider your preparation a very va-luable nervous tonic, far surpassing many others of consid-erable repute, and well worthy the confidence of the profession generally.

We beg to remain, yours, very truly,

A. H. CHANDLER, M. D. H. A. JACOBS, M. D. Moncton, N. B., November 9,1867.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Manufacturing Chemist. S18.—For several months past I have used your Compound Syrup in the treatment of Incipient Phthisis, Chronic, Bron chitis, and other affections of the Chest, and I have no be sitation in stating that it ranks foremost an ongst the reme dies used in those diseases. Being an excellent nervou tonic, it exerts a direct influence on the nervous system and through it invigorates the body.

It affords me pleasure to recommend a remedy which is really good in cases for which it is intended, when so many advertised are worse than useless.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

S. Z. EABLE, Jr., M. D. St. John, N. B., January 1868. 79 9

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Chemist, St. John, N. B. Dear Sir-Having used your Compound Syrup for some time in my practice, I have no hesitation in recommending it to my patients who are suffering from general debility, or any disease of the lungs, knowing that even in cases utterly hopeless it affords relief.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

H. G. ADLY, M. D.

St. John, N. B., January 1968.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, St. John, N. B. a vine ti-Mr. JAMES I. FELLOWS, St. John, N. B.

Sir.—Having, while at your Establishment, carefully examined your prescription, and the method of preparing your Compound Syrup, I felt anxious to give it a fair trial in my practice. For the last twelve months I have done so, and I find that in Incipient Consumption, and other diseases of the Throat and Lungs, it has done wonders. In restoring persons suffering from the effects of Diptheria, and the cough following Typhoid Fever prevalent in this region, it is the best remedial agent I have ever used. But for persons suffering from exhaustion of the powers of the brain and nervous system, from long continued study or teaching, or in those cases of exhaustion from which so many young men suffer, I know of no better medicine for restoration to health than your Compound Syrup.

If you think this letter of any service you are at liberty to use it as you see fit. to use it as you see fit.
I remain, yours, &c., EDWIN CLAY, M. D.

I can also testify to the high therapeutical value of Feows' Compound Syrup, and consider it deserving of a cention by the profession generally.
