WHAT HARRY'S HEAD WAS WORTH.

"I doa't care. Marshall may be the strongest, and Palmer can certainly run the quickest, but all the fellows say I have the best head in the school. Why, Lewis, you must remember the school. Why, Lewis, you must remember the day I stood on the wash-house chimney, and how the cook came out and screamed, and thought I should fall. And it is just the same at home, and drive mamma and Alice into fits every day by walking on the top of our yard wall-it is only about a foot wide, and twenty feet from the ground-and then-"

But here Harry Forster was interrapted in his "Harry," said he, " what was that you were tel-ling your school-fellow—that you had the best head in the school? I am very glad of it. Now tell me what you have accomplished by means o. that excellent head of yours."

"O, papa," said Harry, blushing a little, I don't mean I have a good head for work—only for climbing, and so on. And you know it had good thing for me, as I am to be a sailor." "Well, but, Harry, even in climbing, and on, what service has your good head done ? Yes, yes, I know all about the poor cook at the washhouse, and mamma with a bad headache yester-day from fright at watching yon, and little Alice crying out in her sleep that Harry would be dashed to pieces on the cold stones -- but what, real use you have put your steady head to, I wait to hear."

Harry looked uncomfortable. But, papa," he urged, "it is something to be able to walk in dangerons places, isn't it ! Why, Jones, our head boy, said I was a plucky fellow when I got the ball off the slippery roof the other day." "Yes, Harry, you are right; it is something to have calm nerves and steady head, and as a sailor boy you may find them of infinite service, but they are terribly misused when they are only bronght into play for the sake of frightening wold men and children. There is nothing to brag of in that, Harry, so don't let me hear more of that good head of yours till it has done some good." Harry looked rather red and uncomfortable a these remarks, and was not sorry when his companion called him off to find a missing book. Harry was a terrible boy for climbing, from the time he could run alone; he was always placing himself in perilous situations, from which, how ever, he generally escaped scathless. As time went on, he daily found more scope for his ex ploits, for which the four storied London house farnished ample room. He had no trees to climb. indeed, but roof and walls in plenty. At school he was applanded for his prowess, but at home he was often called to account for tricks which set riously alarmed his mother and vexed and tor-mented the servants.

Now, however, his father had put a new idea. into his head, that he might turn his climbing powers to good account but how and when ? Harry puzzled a good deal over it, but he could arrive at no result. Still be treasured the idea in. his mind. The day came at last. Harry was sleeping sonnally one hot night in summer, when he was awakened by strange sounds in the street. and almost immediately followed by a shout from his father, " Harry, get up quickly, there is a fire ?" A fire indeed, but happily next door, not in their own house.

Harry was down-stairs almost immediately, and his mother and little sisters were up and hastily to being conveyed to a honse a few doors further down for safety. No fire and Revised every Wednesday, for the Visitor. ongines had as yet arrived, and the fire was steas dily gaining ground next door. Mrs. Forster wished to take Harry with her, but he so eagerly begged to be left with his father, that as there was no real danger to be apprehended, he was permitted to do so.

ears of age, she asked me not to drink, and then made a resolution of total abstinence; and thay I have adhered to it through all time, I owe the my mother,"

Fige.

'Good morning, Mr. Price.'

Ah! good morning,' replied the aged pilgrim, 'I am reading my Father's will as I walk along.' "Well, what has He left you? said his friend "Why, he has bequeathed me a hundred fold in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting. bappy effect on the mind, of his christian friend recital by his father, who had been apparently who was in sorrowful circumstances, and be web on his way rejoicing. hus put and and

AN ASTONISHED CHRISTIAN .- An able brother in a neighboring eitre formerly deemed it quite impossible that he should work in the Sunday School. Force of circumstances, however, compelled him to enter, temporarily, as he supposed. After a goodly probation, he now writes to his former Pastor, has follows : " I am daily more and more astonished, that I should so long have and more astonished, that I should so long have kept out of the great and glorious work." Truby: Charlemagne Modern Europe A. D. 714-812, ..... it is enough to astonish, not men alore, but angets Chapter 2+ Charlemagne, his early life, time and kept ont of the great and glorious work." Truly. even, that so many Christians do keep out of this great and glorious work. To heaven, if not here, many will be astonished at their own neglect in this regard.""Go, work to-day in my vipeyard," saith the Lord AVOJOOMETVI

To MAKE Cows Give Milk .- A writer who says his cow gives all the milk that is wanted in a family of eight persons, and from which was made two hundred and sixty pounds of butter in the year, gives the following as his treatment. He says : " If you desire to get a large yield on rich milk, give your cow three times a day water slightly warm, slightly salted, in which bran has been stirred at the rate of one quart to two galfons of water. You will find, if you have not found this by daily practice, that your cow will gain twenty five per cent. immediately under the effect of it, and she will become so attached to the niet as to refuse to drink clear water, unless very thirsty, but this mess she will drink almost iny time and ask for more. The amount of this drink is an ordinary pailful each time, morning, noon, and night. Your animal will then do her best at discounting the lauteah Four hundred pounds of butter are often obtained from good stock and vinstances are mentioned where the yield was even at a higher figure."

DESICCATED SWEET POTATOES .- A correspondent from Vicksburg writes : "The whole world needs more food. We can raise and dry sweet potatoes at a cost of sixty cents per bushel, and ship them to all parts of the work and Every ship on the acean would soon have them on board, as the best preventive of disease and the most nutritious food in the world. All sorts of mean vegetables are ground up and parched and sold to the poor for coffee. Nothing known will make so good an imitation of coffee as the yellow yam sweet potato. All pails of the Notthern States will soon tearn their use, and find them for sale as we now find dried peaches, apples, etc. The revenue of the South from this source is destined to eventually equal that from the cotton crop. They contain a large amount of saccharine matter, which renders it necessary to keep them from the air, as otherwise they will attract moisture, and become mouldy." -- Scientific American.

 THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND
 CUEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it ins duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and ellotter deady instruces so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy no washing; which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

 It will be foand invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz. — It washes all fine things, such as Muslin ace, Crotelet Work, Haby Linen, &c., It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by discolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and units externed.

 If you have not used this Gleausing Crystal, lose not time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into the easter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth. Teeth, and dualke other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child easting it by mistake, will not be injured.

 If you have not used this Gleausing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever bean introduced into the eaver which has effected such a wonderful which eaver of theor, and then of the preserves are bean introduced into the eaver of kloor, and improves every arusice washed; for Lanens, and heavy washes, it uels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for mouths. Thousands of Families made happy! No misery on a Washing Day, with Pressrovs's Cleansing Crystal.
