The Dying Wife to her Husband. We extract the following exquisitely touching poem from an exchange paper : -I am dying, dearest, dying in the morning of my

Let me lie upon thy bosom ere I leave thee for the tomb,

Press thy lips to mine, beloved, and catch the parting breath, With thy loving arms around me, I shall have no fear of death.

Thou wilt mourn for me, beloved, thou wilt miss thy fair young bride; When thou wakest in the morning thou wilt miss me from thy side, And a pang will rend thy bosom when thou see'st my vacant chair, But thou'lt think, beloved, of Heaven, and wilt know thy wife is there.

Thou'lt be lonely, dearest, for many a lonely day; Thou wilt miss the cheering love-light that brightened once thy way;

Oft thou'lt listen for my footsteps, and my low and loving tone, And forget that I am lying in the church yard cold and low.

Then thou'lt waken from thy dreaming, and the bitter tears will flow

When thou'lt think upon thy lost one in the church yard lying low,

I have thought of this full often, as I lay upon my bed,

How thou'lt weep for me, beloved, when I am numbered with the dead.

Nay, grieve not so, my husband, 'tis a trial sore I know. But kiss the hand that chastens, and early let me

Bow to his will, beloved, who chastens but in love,

And thou wilt shortly meet me in my blissful home above.

Mark Meriden. BY MRS. H. B. STOWE.

'Come, Mark Meriden, don't settle down into an old grandfather before your time; a pretty wife's a pretty thing, Mark, and a pretty house is a pretty thing, but hang it, one must have a little of life.'

Mark Meriden stood at his desk giving a last look at his books, while Ben Sanford, the reguish, the merry, the song singing, the Ben of all Bens, was urging on him the claims of a projected frolic that evening. Now Ben was precisely the messenger for such an embassy—there was fun in the twinkle of his blue eye, and a world of waggery in the turn of his head, and a pair of broad roguish dimples that went merrily dodging in and out of his cheeks every time he spoke, and he had laid hold of Mark's arm to drag him away. But Mark shook off his hand, and summing up a column of figures, put the blotting paper into the book, and the book into its place, wiped his pen with an air of great thoughtfulness, and at last turning to Ben, said-'I think I won't go this time.'

' Now, why not?' said Ben, very eagerly. 'Because-because,' said Mark, smiling; "because I fancy that I should like Mrs. Meriden's company better this evening.'

'Hang Mrs. Meriden—beg your pardon, Mark, hang myself for saying so—but one don't like to see a fine fellow buried alive. Come, take a real wake-up with us.'

'Thank you, Ben, but I haven't been asleep, and don't need it. So I'll go home and see my wife,' and thereat turned a resolute step homeward, as a well trained husband ought.

Now, says one of our readers, 'Who was Mark Meriden?' You would not have asked, good reader, if you had lived in the town ofwhen his name first appeared on the outside of one of its most fashionable shops, 'Mark Meriden.' surrounded by those waving insignia of grace and fashion that young belles need to have their eyes turned off from beholding. Every thing in the tasteful establishment told of the well arranged business, and Mark himself, the mirror of fashion, faultless in every article of costume, quick, attentive, polite, was every day to be seen there, winning 'golden opinions from all sorts of people.' Mark's shop became the resort for high ton-the fashionable exchange, the promenade of beauty and wealth, who came there to be enlightened as to the ways and means of disposing of their surplus revenue-to see and to be

So attentive, polite and considerate was Mark, so profound his bows, so bright his eyes, so unexceptionable his whiskers, that it might have proved a dangerous resort for the ladies, had not a neat, tasteful house going up in the neighbourhood, been currently reported as the future residence of an already elected Mrs. Meriden; and in a few months the house neatly furnished, received a very pretty lady, who called herself to that effect. She was as truly refined and lovely a woman as ever formed the centre flower of a domestic bouquet, and Mark might justly be pardoned for having as good again an opinion of himself for having been fortunate enough to se-

Mark had an extensive circle of business and pleasure acquaintances, for he had been of the social. companionable sort, whose money generally found its way out of his pockets in very fair proportions to the rate it came. In short, he was given to clubs, oyster suppers, and now and then a wine party, and various other social privileges for elevating one's spirits and depressing one's cash, that abound among enlightened communi-

But nevertheless, at the bottom of his head there was a very substantial stratum of a certain quality called common sense, a trait which, though it was never set down in any chart of phrenology, may very justly be called a faculty, and one, too, which makes a very striking difference among people as the world goes.

In consequence of being thus constituted, Mark, when he found himself engaged to a very pretty girl, began to reflect with more than ordinary seriousness on his habits, ways and manner of life. He also took an accurate survey of his business, formed an average estimate of his fucome on the soberest probabilities, and de-ed to live a little even within that. He also provided himself with a small account book, with which he intended to live in habits of very close acquaintance, and in this book he designed to note down all those savings consequent upon the retrenchment of certain little extras, before aladed to, in which he had been in the habit of pretty freely indulging himself.

Upon the present occasion it had cost him something of an effort to say "no," for Mark was one of our easy 'clever fellows,' to whom the enunciation of this little syllable caused as much trouble as the gutturals of the German. However, when he came in sight of his parlor win-dows, through which a bright fire was shining— when he entered and found the clean glowing then he entered and found the clean glowing earth, easy chair drawn up in front, and a pair of embroidered slippers waiting for him quite at heir leisure, and above all, when he read the nick glances of welcome in a pair of very bright yes, Mark forgot all about Bes Sanford, and all sachelor friends, and allurements whatsoever, and hought himself the happiest fellow on earth.

The evening passed rapidly, by the help of nusic, reading, and the little small talk of which arried people generally have a supply, July 18.

and the next morning Mark at early business hours entered his store, with as steady a hand and as cool a head, as if there had been no such things as bachelor's frolics in existence.

Late in the afternoon Ben Sanford lounged in to ogle a few of the ladies, and above all to rally Mark on losing the glorious fun the evening be-

'Upon my word,' he began, 'we must have you put up for Selectman, you are becoming so extremely ancient and venerable in your ways however, you are to be excused, he added, 'circumstances considered-female influence ! ah, well, it's a fine affair, this marriage.'

'Better try it, Mr. Sanford,' said a bright, saucy girl, who with her laughing companions were standing by while Ben was speaking. 'Ab, madam I the wherewithal?' said Ben, rolling up his eyes with a tragic expression. . 'If some clever old fellow would be so obliging as to die now, and leave me a few thousand—then, ladies! you should see.'

"But, speaking of money, said Mark, when the ladies were busy over some laces he had just thrown on to the counter-what did your glorious fun cost you?'

'Pooh! nothing! only a ten dollar bill-nothing in my purse, you know!' 'Nothing in your purse! Not an uncommon ncident after these occasions,' said Mark, laugh-Oh, hang it all!' said Ben, 'too true! I can get no remedy for this consumption of the purse, as old Falstaff says; however, the world owes me a living, so good morning!' Ben Sanford was just one of that class of young men and women, as common report goes, that can do anything they please, and who consider this point so well established, that they do not think it necessary to illustrate it by doing anything at all. He was a lawyer of good talents, and would have had an extensive run of business, had he not been one of the class of people never to be found when wanted. His law books and law office saw far less of him than certain fashionable places of resort, where his handsome person and various social accomplishments always secured to him a welcome reception. Ben had some little property left him by his father, just enough, as he used able young gentleman governing. Conclusion in next Number.

laughingly to quote, " to keep him in gloves and cologne water," and for the rest, he seemed vastly contented with his old maxim, " the world owes me a living," forgetting that the world sometimes proves as poor a paymaster as the most fashion-

THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND TOLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, via.:—It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c., cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured.

If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time—saves your clothes—saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills, For all the purposes of a Laxative

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this filld but efficient purgative Pau. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any son is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessmess, Languer and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Coile and Bilious Tevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Bysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Bropsy and Bropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, othen finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
