Managing Children.

Our children are mirrors. If we would know ourselves we have but to study them. They give back the true reflection. Can there be a sadder sight than the one so often seen-of a worn and anxious mother, scolding and shutting up, whipping, and praying over her bright, wayward child, when, were she but to turn a clear look, unblinded by self-love, inward, she could see that almost if not all which causes her so much anxiety and annoyance, and her child so many punishments, is her own fault. But children are not mere reflections. They have inquisitive little minds and warm little hearts, and if we, through weariness or thoughtlessness, withhold information from the one or sympathy from the other, they are genuine sufferers. I was once visiting a home, of which a dear little girl was the light. One afternoon she was crying quietly. Her mother's conversation was interspersed with, "Hush," Hush, I tell you"—"Stop crying"—"Do hush"—"I'll send you off by yourself;" "Hush"

" Mother, what ails the little girl?" I asked at "Nothing at all; she is just a naughty little girl, and I shall have to punish her. I've let her bring all her playthings into the parlor, and isn't she bad to annoy and mortify me so ?" But that little low, half-suppressed sobbing cry, and those great round tear-drops, told another story, and I asked:

"May I talk to her?"

"Certainly; I wish you would." "Come here, darling," I said, and taking her on my knee and kissing her, "What is the trouble, my little pet ?" "I doesn't means to be bad. I doesn't want to plague mamma, but Dolly is very sick, and I can't get nobody to do nothing for her." "Bring Dolly to me," feeling her pulse. "Why she is in a high fever; bring me some paper, and I'll make her some powders. There are three powders all folded up nicely; now bring me a baby cup and a tiny spoon. I've filled it with air mixture, and you must give her a teaspoonful every time she cries. Now undress her and rub her with a flannel, and then rock her to sleep." The little girl was happy, and singing all the afternoon, occasionally bringing Dolly to me to see how she was, which I enjoyed as much as the child. At night she kissed me again and again with "I does love you."

"But the child was crying for nothing." I beg your pardon! the child was crying for love and sympathy, just what you and I cry for even yet. "But her troubles were only imaginary." So are most of yours and mine, yet we bore all our friends and weary our God with them.

Children not only imitate our faults, suffer by our carelessness, but govern us through our weak nesses. A friend came to visit me, and brought a generous, frank and manly boy of four years old. But he disturbed our whole circle by his constant crying. This habit was not in keeping with the brave, proud and independent character of the child. I, therefore, felt a curiosity to find the cause. My first discovery was, he never shed

His mother wished to take a trip, but could not take her boy.

"Leave him with me."

"He'll torment the life out of you."

I don't think so. "I will, indeed, be most grateful. You may whip him as often as you please. "I should not strike a child except in a most extreme case."

"Then you can do nothing with him."

She was gone. The next morning, after breakfast, Willie asked: "May I go and play in the yard?"

"It rained last night, and it's too damp now. You may go at ten."

"It isn't damp scarcely any a bit."

"I think it is. You may go at ten, not be-

"Boo, whoo, whoo," rest. I kept quietly sewing. "Boo, whoo, whoo," bass. "Boo, whoo, whoo, tenor. I sewed on. "Boo, whoo, whoo," double bass. "Boo, whoo, whoo," falsetto, rest. "Now may I go?" "You may go at ten o'clock."

Concert repeated. I silently sewing the while. "Ain't your head most ready to split ?"

"Mayn't I go out now?" "Not until ten o'clock."

Concert resumed—rest.

"Ain't you most crazy ?" " No, not at all."

Concert resumed, with the addition of throwing himself on the floor and knocking his feet up and down. After a little, "Ain't you most crazy yet? Why don't you shake me and call me the baddest boy ever was, and throw me out doors?" "Because you are not going out until ten o'-

Concert resumed, with the addition of bumping his head as well as toes-rest-a pause. Then picking himself up, he stood erect before me with his hands in his pockets.

"Why don't you whip me, and send me off to get rid of my noise ?"

"Because you are not going out until ten o'clock."

He stood a moment. "If I bump my head ain't you afraid it will kill me ?"

"Not in the least."

"But it does hurt me awfully." "I am happy to hear it."

He drew a long breath. "What can I do next? I'se done all I knows

"See if you cannot think of something else." " May I take my blocks ?"

"Certainly."

At nine he started up. "Now may I go?"

"That's pine." He went back to his blocks without a murmur. At ten he went out.

He had been used to kneel by his mother, say his prayers, and hop into bed. I wished him to kneel with me, by the bed, and say his prayers slowly, and then I would make a short prayer for him. The arrangement did not please him, so the third night he gave battle. Being tired, my head did feel as if it couldn't, or rather, wouldn't bear it. Out of all patience, I determined to give him a good whipping. But never having struck a child, I was not quite hardened enough to take my slipper, and couldn't see anything else. As I looked around, a voice—my God speaking through my conscience—asked: "What! whip, in anger, a little boy, because he cannot govern his spirit, when you cannot govern your own ! Another than the boy needs to be prayed for." And kneeling, I asked my Pather to give me His strength, His grand patience with a disobedient, self-willed child. As I kneeled, Willie crawled under my arm, and commenced to say his prayers very slowly, and kept still while I prayed few words, and then asked:

Gow mayn't I pray my own self?"

And these were his words: "I'se real mean little boy. She won't do nothing ugly a bit, and I knows I'se made her head most split. Oh, God, don't let me be a mean little boy any more." The splendid little fellow had had a fair trial of strength, and was conquered, and surrendered manfully; and I had no farther trouble or annoyance during the seven weeks he stayed with me.

But how nearly I had lost my vantage ground! If we would rule our own spirits, how easy it would be to rule our own children and our servents. But oh! to govern self!

The Kind Shepherd.

Rambling, a few summers ago, in the lake district of England, I came to Washdale Head, where I passed the night in the cottage of a shepherd friend. The next morning I set off to cross the mountains on my way to Buttermere, As I approached the summit of the pass, a little lamb was bleating in tones more sad than I had ever heard before. It seemed to say as plainly as in words, "Pity me! help me! save me!" I stopped, and the lamb ran toward me. It was evident that the lamb had been forsaken by its mother, for it was a mere skeleton, and its loosely hanging skin and sharp features betokened starvation. could not resist its appeals, so I took it in my arms and carried it toward a sheep that was browsing not far off. But the sheep moved away, and the tiny lamb ran back to me, still imploring help. Again I took it in my arms, and carried it toward another sheep farther off, put it down where some bracken would hide it from me as I rapidly stepped back. The lamb did not go toward the retreating sheep, but remained where it had been placed, and still repeated its sad cry-"Pity me! help me! save me!"

I took it in my arms once more, and sat down meditating what I had better do. Should I carry it forward with me till I reached the first house, several miles distant? But might not such an act seem suspicious, if I met the owner of the flock? At any rate, I would not, I could not, leave to perish a helpless creature which had cast itself on my protection. Just then, looking listlessly down into the valley, I saw a small object at the foot of the mountain, moving slowly upward. It came nearer. It was a man. Still pearer. It was my shapherd friend. I at once showed him my lamb, and intrusted it to his care.

" Poor thing," said the shepherd; its mother has forsaken it; they sometimes do when pasture is scarce. It would have died in an bour or two. But I'll take it down and give it some milk, and it will soon get right."

Then the shepherd took in his arms the little trembling lamb, which at once nestled its head in his bosom, and hushed its pitiful cry. And as this great, strong, tender-hearted man stalked down the mountain-side like a giant bearing his tiny burden, I thought of the words of the prophet, "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd : he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom." Isa. xl. 11.

The next year I was again at Washdale, and inquired of the shepherd how the lamb had fared. Said he-"It is now the fattest and the strongest of my flock."

Thus many, even the very chief of sinners, when ready to perish have been taken into the arms of Jesus, and under his fostering care have soon become as holy and useful as any of the

THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz.:—It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c.; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from CAUTION! CAUTION! CAUTION!

Water Soft; and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured.

Musical Dongs.—Since Mr. Waters gave up publishing sheet music, he has devoted all his capital and attention to the manufacture and sale of Pianos and Melodeons. He has just issued a autologue of his near international description. has just issued a catalogue of his new instruments, giving one we scale of prices, which shows a marked reduction om former rates, and his Pianos have recently been orded the First Premium at several Fairs. Many peoof the present day, who are attracted, if not confused, the flaming advertisements of rival piano houses, proverlook a modest manufacturer like Mr. Watters; appen to know that his instruments earned him a station long before Expositions and 'honors' con-one of Waters' Pianos now in our residence, where it has stood for years, of which any manufacturer in the world might well be proud. We have always been delighted with it as a sweet toned and powerful instrument, and there is no doubt of its durability; more than this, some of the best amateur players in the city, as well as several celebrated pianists, have performed on the said piano, and all pronounce it a superior and first class instrument. Ayer's Cathartic Pills, ne is so universally re-ired by everybody as eathartic, nor was ever every country and among all classes, as thus mild but efficient pargative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglectof its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languer and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Billous Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Billous Colic and Billious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Bysentery or Biarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart. Pain in the Side.

dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
