THE CHRISTIAN VISITOR.

The Canary's Story.

I have a little mistress, Her name is Kitty Blair ; She always used to give me The very best of care, But now she has two dollies, She never thinks of me, And I'm just as much neglected As a little bird can be.

When I sing my very sweetest, As I always try to do, She covers up my cage, and says, "Oh, what a great ado ! I'm sure 1 shall be deafened !" Then she starts and runs away, And I see no more of Kitty Through all the weary day.

My bath is always empty now, And I've very little seed ; When I've had a lump of sugar, 'Twould be hard to tell, indeed. My cage is quite untidy, But Kitty heeds it not; And I call her, oh ! how vainly-For, alas, I am forgot.

I love the golden sunlight, And I love the baliny air; And the children's merry voices, So blithe and free from care. I know the trees are blossoming, The flowers are all a-bloom ;

But oh ! I cannot see them In this dull and darkened room.

My prison house is gilded, It is grand and gloomy too; Yet I might be happy, Kitty, If you were kind and true. Oh, put me in the window, As you did in days gone by, And let me feel the sweet spring air, And see the soft blue sky. I've trilled my sweetest melodies ; Alas! 'tis all in vain.

I'll fold my head beneath my wing, And never more complain. My heart is broken, Kitty, But I'll forgive you dear ; I am sure you will be sorry And will shed for me a tear.

When Kitty heard the mournful strain, Her heart was full of grief; She left her dollies then in haste, And ran to his relief. She put fresh paper on the floor, And seed within the cup, And water in the tiny bath, Then took poor birdie up,-

And gently stroked his vellow wings, And whispered words so low : I think he must have understood, For this I surely know: He opened wide his bright, black eye, Then on his perch he flew, And poured such tide of melody As mortal never knew. -Independent. face lengthened as he proceeded, and Mark detected a sort of a whistle of astonishment as he read the sum total.

"Well, 'Mark !" be exclaimed, "what a very old gentlemanly, considerate trick of yours, to sit behind your counter and so coolly note down the cost and come to' of all our little frolics-really, it is most edifying. How much you have enjoyed your superior discretion and forethought," and Ben did laugh, but not with his usual glee.

" Nay, you mistake," said Mark, "I keep this account merely to see what I had been in the habit of spending myzelf, and as you and I have always been hand in glove in everything, it answers equally for you. It was only yesterday that I summed up the account, and I assure you the result surprised myself; and now, Ben, the sum here set down, and as much more as you please, is freely at your disposal, to clear off old scores for the year, provided you will accept with it this little book as a new year's gift, and use it twelve months as I have done, and, if at the end of that time you are not ready to introduce me to Mrs. Sanford, I am much mistaken."

Ben grasped his friend's hand, but just then the entrance of Mrs. Meriden prevented his reply. Mark, however, saw with satisfaction that he put the book carefully in his vest pocket, and buttoned up his coat with the air of a man who is buttoning up a new resolution.

When they parted for the night, Mark said with a smile, "In cases of billious attacks, you know where to send for medicine." Ben answered only by a fervent grasp of the hand, for his throat felt too full for him to answer.

Mark Meriden's book answered the purpose admirably. In less than two years Ben Sauford was the most popular lawyer in ---, and as steady a householder as you might wish to see; and, in conclusion, we will ask our lady readers their opinion on one point, and it is this: If Mrs. Meriden had been a woman who understood what is called "catching a beau," better than securing a husband-if she had never curled her hair except for company, and thought it degradation to know how to keep a house comfortably, would all these things have happened?

C. Sparrow, " ROYAL SALOON,"

BY MRS. H. B. STOWE Concluded.

Mark Meriden.

But to return to Mark. When he had settled his accounts at night, he took from a pigeon hole in his desk the little book afore-named, and entered as follows: "To one real wake up, $10," which being done, he locked his desk, and returned once more to Mrs. Meriden.

Days flew on, and the shop of Mark became increasingly popular, and still from time to time he was assailed by the kind of temptation we have described. Now it was, " Mark, my dear fellow, do join us in a trip to G---'s," and now. "Come, my old boy, let us have a spree at F----'s ;" now it was the club, now the oyster supper, but Mark was invincible ; as one or another gaily recounted the history of the scene, he silently committed the amount of the expense to his little book. Yet Mark was not cynical or unsocial. His refusals, though so firm, were invariably good natured, and though he could not be drawn abroad, yet he was unquestionably openhanded at home. No house had so warm a welcome, no dinner table could be more bountiful or more freely open for the behoof of all gentlemen of the dining out order-no tea table presented more unexceptionable toast, and no evening lounge was more easy, home-like, and cheerful, than on the sofas in the parlors of Mark Meriden. They also gave evening parties, where all was brilliant, tasteful and well-ordered; and, in fine, notwithstanding his short-comings, Mark was set down as a fine, open-handed fellow, after all.

At the end of the year Mark cast up the account in the little book, and was mightily astonished at it, for with all his ideas of the powers of numbers, he had no idea that the twos, and fives, and tens, and ones, which on greater or smaller occasions had found their way into his columns, would amount to a sum so considerable. Mark looked about him-the world was going well, his business machinery moving in exact touch and time-his house, was there a prettier one ? where a place more replete with home drawing comfort ? had he lost anything in pleasure the year past ? Mark thought not, and therefore as he walked homeward, he stepped into a bookseller's and ordered some books of superb engravings for Mrs. Meriden, and spoke to the gardener to send some flowering exotics, for which he had heard her express an admiration some evenings before. That same evening came in Ben Sanford, as he expressed it, " in the very depths of indigo !" for young gentlemen whose worldly matters invariably go on wrong end foremost will sometimes be found in this condition, however exuberant may be their stock of animal spirits.

" Pray, Ben, what is the matter ?" said Mark, kindly, as the latter stretched himself at length in an old arm chair, groaning andibly.

"Oh, a billious attack-Mark! shoemaker's bills ! tailor's bills ! boarding bills ! all sent for new year's presents ! hang 'em all !"

Mark was silent for a few moments, and Ben continued ; " Confound it, Mark ! what's the sense of living, if a fellow is to be so very poor? Here you, Mark, born in the same town with me. and younger than I by some two years, you have a house as snug as man need to ask, a wife like an angel, peace and plenty by the bushel, and all comes of having a good run of luck in the money line," and Ben kicked his papers against the and-"What has become of Emily P----- ?" asked Mark, after a pause. "Pour soul!" said Ben, "there she is yet, with all sweetness and patience, waiting till such a luckless scapegrace as I can give her a home and a husband. I wish to my soul, for her sake, I could afford to be married and have a home of my own; besides, to tell the truth, I am tired of this rambling, scrambling, out at the elbow, slipshod life."

CAUTION! CAUTION! CAUTION! THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it has duty to car-tion the public against spurious imitations of his bighly celebrated Washing Orystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale. It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz.:-It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c.; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Nott, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water ; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and multic other preparations, at the same time preserves the dums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teasponful to a multic other preparations, at the same time preserves the abric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eat-ing it by mistake, will not be injured. It you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful he most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal, lose no into this country which has effected such a wonderful he most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improve disappear. For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to pro-duce the effect of a drastic purge. For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy. As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to pro-mote digestion and relieve the stomach. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often ad-vantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from
