A Temperance Pledge for Little Boys.

A pledge I make No wine to take; Nor brandy red That turns the head: Nor whiskey hot That makes the sot: Nor fiery rum That ruins home By drinking gin: Hard cider too, Will never do; Nor brewer's beer My heart to cheer; Nor sparkling ale My face to pale; To quench my thirst I'll always bring Cold water from the well or spring;

So here I pledge perpetual hate

To all that can intoxicate.

Ans .- Any sin loved, and indulged, in, blinds the mind, hardens the heart, and stupefies the conscience; but besides this the use of any of the narcotic poisons produces a specially marked effect in blinding the moral sensibilities. Some time ago I tarried with a worthy Christian who had served tobacco for thirty years. After the remotest corner or little inlet of the unfolding to him the many phases of the minute blood vessels of the human body sinfullness of the habit, he remarked, "I that does not feel some wavelet from the know it is wrong; but I cannot see it to be convulsion occasioned by good, hearty so very sinful as you do." I said "would laughter. The life principle of the man you expect a man that had been telling is shaken to the innermost depth, sending twenty lies a day for thirty years, to have new tidings of life and strength to the a very tender conscience about the sin of surface, thus materially tending to insure lying? Besides did you ever pray about good health to the person who indulges it?" He said he had never prayed about therein. The blood moves more rapidly it. What? you a child of God and ack and conveys a different impression to all nowledging this great law as binding up- the organs of the body, as it visits them in the following diseases: on you, "Whether you eat or drink or on that particular mystic journey when or whatever you do, do all to the glory of the man is laughing from what it does at God," and yet never asked the blessing of other times. For this reason every good, God upon the use of tobacco, nor yet asked hearty laugh in which a person indulges Him to show you whether it was right to lengthens his life, conveying, as it does, use it at all or not.

A year had passed, and I again received a warm welcome to his home. He soon gave me the joyful news that for ten months he had been cleansed from tobacco, that he had found God's rich promises true. "My grace is sufficient for thee." "Call upon Me in the day of trouble and I will deliver thee." Also he said that thro' his example four of his neighbors had succeeded in conquering the habit. Durwrath and curse. He is new giving evidence of being restored to his right mind. "I will arise and go to my Father." Now he begins to reason correctly. God's Word, and Spirit now are mighty to show him his sin. No peace of conscience nor joy in the Holy Ghost, cannot be obtained till the sin is put away. As he bends the knee in secret or Aples, Rice, Cannot Fruit, Fish, Pork, Beans, and all other articles usually found in a first class Grono sweet joyous nearness of God is possible. Why, because God's verdict, by the mouth of His servant David is "If I regard iniquity in my heart the Lord will not hear me." The effort at prayer is a weariness, for God's verdict cannot be changed. Of how much value then can a self-condemned Christian be in God's vine-

The case is an aggravated one for he not only longs for the tobacco indulgence in his heart, but openly gratifies the degrading passion. God would have obedient, decided wholly consecrated men, who because of their continual conquest over besetting sins, by the grace of God, so fully given

A WARNING FOR THE PEACH SEASON.-A sad case of accidental poisoning from eating peach-kernels is just reported from all having children who can obtain peaches. It seems that a little boy, five In Seventeen Volumes Containing 50,years of age, succeeded in obtaining a number of peach-stones, and, after breaking them, ate the kernels. When found, he was nearly dead from the effects of the contained prussic acid, and aid arrived too AND LITHOGRAPHIC MAPS. late to save him. It is as well, now that the fruit season has arrived, to explain to what extent poisoning properties are possessed by the peach-stone. The writers on texicology state that an ounce of the kernels contain about one grain of pure hydrocyanic acid, and it is known that one grain of the poison will almost to a certainty kill any adult person. Twothirds of a grain has often been fat il, and may be regarded as fatal for a child. the evil, and of there own moral impurity? Should any sickness occur from eating peach or other kernels, it is well to remember that ammonia is one of the best antidotes. The patient should be made to inhale all he can, and a few drops, diluted with four or five times its bulk in water, should be given internally.

LAUGHTER AS MEDICINE.—There is not new and distinct stimulus to the vital forces. Doubtless the time will come when physicians, conceding more importance than they now do to the influence of the mind upon the vital forces of the body, will make up their perscriptions more with reference to the mind and less to drugs for them; and will, in so doing, find the best and most effective method of producing the required effect upon the patient.
