

Temperance.

Passion for the man who drinks; passion for the drunkard maker; passion for the statute breaker. NOT AT THE DECANTER. There is a current story that a man once discovered a thief in his house and taking down his grand old fowling-piece, he quietly and Friend, these had better get the way for I intend to fire in a right where they stand. The same considerate spirit we certain good people that they take the decanter off their table for we intend to aim a Bible-light where that decanter stands. The wrong place. It has no business to be there at all than it had to be in the honest man's house. We are not surprised a decanter of alcoholic poison counter of a dram-shop, whose is "licensed" to sell death by the glass. But we are surprised to see on the table or the sideboard who professes to be guided by the spirit and teaching of God's word, bottle stands right in the range of following inspired utterance of the Lord: "It is neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything that thy brother stumbleth." Next must either go out of the window, or the bottle go off the table. The text will not allow, and the bottle must be removed. It teaches the lofty and benevolent principle that abstinence from that which is necessarily hurtful to the soul is a Christian expediency that is the grip of a moral duty. The things which are not always good are given up for the sake of others. The legal liberty of a man is never to be exercised if it involves a moral evil which will inevitably flow from it. We are never to put stumbling-blocks in the way of others. Goodness is to sacrifice anything and everything that is counter to the glory of God, and destructive of the best interests of humanity. It would be easy to prove unambiguously that alcoholic beverages are poisonous to those who use them. The athlete, Tom Sayers, was once by a gentleman. "Well, Thomas, I suppose that when you are drinking, you use plenty of beefsteak, London porter and pale ale?" The boxer replied: "In my time I drank more than was good for me, but when I have business to do, I have nothing like water and the bells." After retiring from business, he took to drink, and died. Cold water made him a Sam-alcohol laid him in his grave. Matter of personal health and life, "it is good not to drink" as an example to others, total abstinence is a Christian virtue. The inherent wrong of using intoxicating drinks is twofold. It exposes to danger the man tampered with it; for no man was positively assured by his Creator that he could play with the serpent that lies coiled in a winecup without being stung by it. It puts a stumbling-block in the way of him whom we are commanding to lay down, the proposition, that no man has a moral right to do anything the influence of which is likely and inevitably hurtful to his neighbor. I have a legal right to do many things which, as a Christian, I should do. I have a legal right to do a theatre. No policeman would at the door to exclude me, or to eject me while my conduct is orderly and becoming. But I have no moral right to go there; not merely because I may see and hear much that may soil my memory for days or months, but because that who is clothed with its glittering establishments, with its sensuous attractions, many young persons the yawning gulf of prostitution. The dollar that I give at the box office is my contribution toward sustaining an establishment whose dark foundation is on the murdered souls of thousands of my fellow men. Their blood is its walls, and from that "pit" have gone down to that other where no sounds of mirth ever enter. Now, I ask, what right have I to enter a place where the tragedies are played off before me by wicked women and dissolute men are nothing to the tragedies of lost souls that are enacted in some parts of that house every night? What have I to give my money and my presence to sustain that moral theatre house; and by walking into it to sustain those who are deceiving others to follow me? Now, on the same principle (not of preservation merely but of avoidance) what is dangerous to others what have I to sustain those fountains of death from which the drinker is said? What right have I to advocate their license, the whole of drinking alcoholic stimulants at home or abroad? If a glass of wine on the table will entrap some young man or some one who is inclined to stimulants into dissipation, then am I thoughtlessly setting a trap for his life. I am his tempter. I gave the usage my sanction, and to him the direct inducement to partake of the bottled demons that sparkle so seductively before him. If the contents of that sparkling glass makes my brother stumble, he must stumble over me. If he goes away from my table and commits some outrage under the effect of that stimulant, I am to a certain degree guilty of that outrage. I have partnership in every blow he strikes, or in every oath he may utter, or in every bitter wound he may inflict on the hearts of those he loves, while under the spell of my glass of "Cognac" or "Burgundy." I gave him the incentive to do what otherwise he might have left undone. The man who puts the bottle to his neighbor's lips is accountable for what comes from those lips under the influence of the dram, and is accountable, too, for every outrage that the maddened victim of the cup may perpetrate during his temporary insanity. In this view of the case, is it too much to ask every professed Christian, and every lover of his kind, that they will wholly abstain from anything that can intoxicate? For the sake of your children, do it; for the sake of a brother, a husband, a friend; for the sake of those who will plead your example; for the sake of frail, tempted ones who cannot say, No! for your fellow-traveller's sake to God's bar and to the eternal world, teach not the bottled devil under whose shining scales damnation hides its adder-sting! It is old-fashioned total abstinence that we are pleading for. We ask it, as Paul did, for the sake of those who "stumble." Oh, those stumblers, those stumblers! We dare not speak of them. It would touch many of us too tenderly. It would reveal too many wrecks—wrecks that angels have wept over. It would open tombs whose charitable green turf hides out of sight what many a survivor would love to have forgotten. It would recall to me many a college friend who went down at mid-day into blackness of darkness. And to-day I see this social curse coming back into our houses, into our streets, into our daily usages of life, with redoubled power. Would that every parent were a "prohibitory law" to his family! Would that every pulpit and every platform would thunder forth the old warning cry: "Look not on the wine when it is red, when it giveth its color in the cup, for at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." At the last! at the last! Bat oh! who can tell when that "last" shall ever end? When will the victim's last groan be heard? When will the last horror seize upon his wretched soul.—Cuyler.

Mother! Mother! Mother! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately—depend on it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth, who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold every where at 25 cents a bottle.

SPAVIN CURED. ST. JOHN, N. B., January 6th, 1880. DEAR SIR: In regard to your favor of a few days ago, I would say: About one year ago a horse owned by me contracted a large Bone Spavin, for the cure of which I tried a number of the liniments and lotions advertised to cure the same, without any effect, and he became very lame. A friend of mine recommended me to try FELLOWS' LEMING'S ESSENCE. I acted upon his advice, and now I am happy to say the lameness has ceased and the spavin disappeared. I now consider him entirely cured and would cheerfully recommend FELLOWS' LEMING'S ESSENCE as the best remedy in the market for all the lameness that horses are subject to. Yours truly, THOMAS F. FREY.

Ringbone Cured. AUGUSTA, ME., March 8th, 1880. DEAR SIR: I have had occasion to use FELLOWS' LEMING'S ESSENCE on a horse so lame from a Ringbone that I could not use him. I have been using it about three weeks, and find it does all you claim for it, as the lameness is gone, and the enlargement has almost disappeared. I firmly believe a few days more will make an entire cure. Respectfully yours, JAMES T. PARKER.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD. This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia, and Mandrake, with the Iodides of Potash and Iron, makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system, that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhoea, arising from internal ulceration and uterine diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns. PREPARED BY DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass Practical and Analytic Chemists. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS & DEALERS IN MEDICINE. A. CHIPMAN SMITH, ST. JOHN, Wholesale Agent.
