Temperance.

Moral suasion for the man who drinks;
Mental suasion for the man who thinks.
Legal suasion for the drunkard maker,
Prison suasion for the statute breaker.

A Temperance Fanatic.

Kind friend put your glass on the table
Untasted, and listen to me,
You say I'm a temperance fanatic—
Mayhap I have reason to be.
It is years since we parted at college,
Let us talk over times passed away,
And see of companions and classmates
Who's dead, and who's living to-day.

There were ten of us came off together,
Here are two—now what of the eight?
But a few days ago I saw William—
He who beat us all in debate.
He was rich, you know; now he is needy;
I asked where his fortune all went;
He tipped up a glass as he answered,
"I drank it down so—every cent."

Then Ralph, who bore the first honor,
He took to the bar as you know,
But another bar claimed his attention.
And business progressed rather slow.
He died of the tremens, poor fellow!
His talents would rank with the first;
And to think of his dying ere forty—
A prey to the demon of thirst.

Then Bob, irrepressible Robert,
Who always took lead in our fun,
The gayest and wildest of fellows,
Yet the kindest and best hearted one.
Well, he went to prison—life sentence;
He took too much liquor one day,
And a spree that began in good feeling
Ended up with a stabbing affray.

Then there was that young prince of topers,
That high headed Archibald West.
He never was known to be tipsy—
Yet he drank more than all the rest.
He is reaping the crop of his sowing,
His son loves the cup, and has not
A stomach of steel like his father,
And the boy is already a sot.

I made Tom a visit last Summer;
You remember Tom, quiet and mild;
Well, he makes the most fretful of husbands,
I pity his wife and his child.
He's pleasant enough in the evening,
As he sips his hot toddy and ale,
But all the forenoon he's a terror,
Cross, head-achy, snappish and pale.

And George—who was called Claus Adonis,
Who turned women's heads with a smile,
That straight limbed and graceful Apollis
Who took a dram "once in a while."
Oh, Charles, you would scarcely believe it,
But the fellow's a sight to behold;
His nose is as red as a lobster,
He's bloated, and blear-eyed and old.

Then Herbert—he's traveling somewhere;
But one more remains—Henry Lee,
And you know from the deck of a steamer
He fell and was lost out at sea.
A friend who was with him since told me
That Hank was light headed from drink,
And that's how he so lost his balance;
'Twas the general opinion I think.

So, Charles, when I name o'er our classmates,
Who all tipped the glass now and then,
I think what joys might have been theirs,
If they had been temperance men.
You, I own, seem untouched by drink's dangers,
Yet your future we neither can scan,
And I really feel safer for being
A very fanatical man.

A QUAKER was once advising a drunkard to leave off his habit of drinking intoxicating liquors. "Can you tell me how to do it? said the slave of the appetite. "Yes," answered the Quaker, "it is just as easy as to open thy hand, friend." "Convince me of that and I will promise upon my honor to do as you tell me," replied the drunkard. "Well, my friend, when thou findest any vessel of intoxicating liquor in thy hand, open thy hand that contains it before it reaches thy mouth, and thou wilt never be drunk again." The toper was so pleased with the plan advised that he followed it.

When the blood is loaded with impurities, and moves sluggishly in the veins, an alterative is needed, as this condition of the vital fluid cannot last long without serious results. There is nothing better than Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify the blood, and impart energy to the system.

Time and money are both saved by keeping in the house a bottle or two of Baird's Cure-All Liniment. Hundreds can testify to its value for Diphtheria, Rheumatism, obstinate Pains and Lameness.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—How often do you see your children pining away, and their little features pinched, and their whole frame EMACIATED, for the want of some TONIC or FOOD. BUDD'S EMULSION, will at once put flesh on them, and give them relief at once, to those diseases so prevalent in children, and they like BUDD'S CREAM EMULSION. Just try it.

House and Farm.

We very heartily invite correspondence for this department from practical farmers. Send us your suggestions, inquiries, and the result of your experience, and thus at once help others, and call out their knowledge.

Beginning a Garden.

If one proposes to begin gardening, whether to raise vegetables for home use or for sale, commencement should not be put off until spring. The work could have been started a month or two earlier, but much can yet be done in all but very cold localities. It is of little use to try to make a garden on wet land. Unless the soil has a natural drainage, tile or plank drains should be laid the first thing. If sodland be selected, apply a good dressing of manure, break it up, and let it lie until spring, when another manuring and plowing, with thorough harrowing, will be needed. The success in the garden depends largely upon the amount of manure applied to it. Stable manure to the extent of 50 to 80 loads to the acre is needed, or if so much cannot be obtained, the lack should be supplied by the use of ground-bone, fish guano, superphosphate, or other good commercial fertilizer.—American Agriculturist.

Do You Want Window Gardens?

Those who cultivate house plants, usually set them out in the open ground for the summer. Here they are allowed to grow at will, and often increase to several times their former size. When the amateur is warned by the approach of frost, that he must take in his plants, he finds that he has a lot of unmanageable subjects. The roots are many times too large for the pots, while the tops have run wild and made a tangled mass, quite unsuited to window culture. As a rule, geraniums, verbenas, and other soft-wooded plants, when set in open ground, are not worth anything afterwards. It is much better to strike cuttings from the old plants, and depend upon these for the window in winter. With a view to preparing a stock of young plants, we have in earlier months, described easy methods of propagation. If this has been neglected, and old plants must be used, if any, then the work of taking them up should be done this month. If left out until the nights become cool, the growth of the plants is checked. If taken up, they do not readily recover from the shock of removal, and the window garden becomes a hospital for struggling plants. When overgrown, cut the plants back into shape, both at root and top, and pot them. Severe treatment will be needed, but if this be done early, there will be time for them to recover. After a few days in the shade, give them a warm and sheltered place, and they will recuperate and start into new growth before it is time to take them in doors. While it is not advisable to take in house-plants too early, they should be protected during cool nights, and it is well to keep them on a piazza or in some other place, where they will have sufficient protection.—American Agriculturist.

Maxims of Spurgeon.

Judge a daughter by her mother. Do not throw the handle after the hatchet. Hear both sides or none. As is God's majesty, such is his mercy. Too much sail suits not a small boat. Call a fig a fig. Dependence on others is a bad breakfast and a worse supper. Leave it alone, if you cannot improve it. Those who are in the same boat should row together. Learn to hear, and hear to learn. Mind your courting does not end in court. He who is full of care lives a hare. Time enough is little enough. No bees, no honey. He that has no wife is poor. Never meet trouble half way. Before you get a bird, provide a cage.

I have used your Minard's Liniment for diphtheria with perfect success. I believe it will cure diphtheria in every case, if used according to directions.—MRS. REUBEN BAKER, Riversdale.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symtoms are moisture, life perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the parts affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for Tetter, Itch, Salt-Rheum, Scald-Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 10.

Worth A Licking.

Some years ago, in Georgia, that band of Christians known as Ascensionists were having a grand revival. One day when the meeting was in full force a storm came up, and a young gentleman who was out hunting with his servant took refuge in the church door. Being curious to see the service, the two hunters crept up into the gallery, and there hid in a place where they could observe without being observed.

"Come, Lord, come; our robes are ready. Come, Lord; come," cried the preacher, while all present gave a loud "Amen."

"Marsa Gabe," whispered Cuffy, lifting his hunting-horn to his mouth, "let me gib dem jist one toot."

"Put that horn down, or I'll break your head," replied the master, in a whisper.

The horn dropped by Cuffy's side, and again the minister cried: "Come, Lord, come; we are all ready for Thy coming. Come, Lord, come."

"Do, Marsa Gabe—do jist lemme gib 'em jist one little toot," pleaded Cuffy, wetting his lips and raising the horn.

"If you don't drop that horn, Cuffy, I'll whip you within an inch of your life," whispered the exasperated master.

"Blow, Gabriel, blow; we are ready for His coming. Blow, Gabriel, blow," pleaded the minister.

Cuffy could no longer resist the temptation, and sent a wild peal ringing from end to end of the church; but long before its last echo died away his master and himself were the only occupants of the building.

"I's ready fur de licking, Marsa Gabe," said Cuffy, showing every tooth in his head, "for I 'clare to gracious it's worf two lickings to see de way common farm cattle kin git ober de ground wid skeared 'Scensionists behind dem." — EDITOR'S DRAWER, in Harper's Magazine for March.

A WELL-KNOWN American author —we wish we could mention his name—died lately, leaving a large estate to his children. They assembled to hear his will read, all of them being married and heads of families. An adopted daughter, who had offended their father, it was found, was passed over in the will with a trifling legacy. One of the daughters interrupted the reading of the will.

"Father, I am sure, is sorry for that, by this time. A—— should have a child's portion. We must make that right."

The other children assented, eagerly.

A widowed daughter with a large family received an equal share with the other children. One of the sons spoke now. "C—— ought to have more than we men who are in business and are able to earn our living. I will add so much"—stating the sum—"to her portion." The two remaining brothers each agreed to give the same amount.

When the will had been read, one of the elder children said, "There are some of father's old friends to whom he would have given legacies if he had not been ill and forgetful when this paper was written. Shall we not make that right?"

It was done, cordially and promptly.

Now this was only the just action of just and honorable people; but how rare such conduct is in persons to whom legacies are given.—Ex.

A bachelor says if you hand a lady a newspaper with a paragraph cut out of it, not a line of it will be read, but every bit of interest felt in the paper by the lady will centre in finding out what the missing paragraph contained, even if it was only a Minard's Liniment advertisement, stating that it cures rheumatism and all aches and pains of the human race.
