Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
MESSRS. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

CHRISTIAN LOVE.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Love is the fulfilling of the law.—Rom. 13: 10.

1 The tongues of men.—The tongues of men are the languages which men speak. And of angels—The language of angels here seems to be used to denote the highest power of using language, or of the most elevated faculty of eloquence and speech. And have not Charity—Humility, truthfulness, patience, magnanimity, the chasteness of temper that makes the soul white, the spirit of forgiveness that makes the soul Godlike, every excellence that exalts, every trait that adorns, is the child of benevolence. I am become as sounding brass, i. e., the mere want of love has reduced me, notwithstanding the gift in question (of tongues), to a level with sounding brass; not a musical instrument made of brass, which has some dignity about it, but to a piece of clattering brass which makes a senseless noise.

2. The gift of prophecy, i. e., the gift of speaking God's will by inspiration, not confined to predicting future events. This was a higher gift than that of speaking with tongues. And understood all mysteries—The enigmas of the ages which all philosophers had failed to answer. And all knowledge — The truths revealed and known, the whole range of Christian doctrine. And though I have all faith—Not saving faith, but miraculous faith; the faith by which persons were enabled to work miracles. So that I could remove mountains, as promised in Matt. 17: 20; 21: 21. The highest and strongest faith as to miracles. And have not charity—He does not assert that one can have these things without charity, but says "if" he could. I am nothing—A moral cipher.

3. Bestow all my goods.—Here we have the thought of a charity extensive in its diffusion, as well as complete in its self-sacrifice. I give my body to be burned—This is a still higher work of love; namely, self-sacrifice for country or friends. And have not charity—Have the form of good without the right motive. Appear to love, but are false at heart, and hence a hypocrite. It profiteth me nothing—Because the act does not proceed from a right character; and character, real love, and holiness, are the only things that really profit men in this world or the next.

4. Charity suffereth long.—Referring to the injuries and provocations which come from man, a disposition which under long-continued offences holds back anger, and is not hasty to punish or to revenge. And is kind, i. e., inclined to perform good offices, is good-natured. Envieth not—The word in the original means more, "knows neither envy nor jealousy." Both are included under it. Vaunteth not itself—Does not act insolently, with pride and ostentation. Is not puffed up, i. e., conceited. This is the root of the preceding. The man who has a high conceit of himself is apt to be boastful and desirous of praise. Love, on the other hand, is modest and humble, modest because humble.

5. Doth not behave itself unseemly.—With impropriety, discourtesy, out of good taste. Seeketh not her own It is not selfish; it does not seek its own happiness exclusively or mainly; it does not seek its own happiness to the injury of others. True religion, or love to others, will prompt us to seek their welfare with self-denial and personal sacrifice and toil. Thinketh no evil—It is ready to excuse others and put a charitable construction on their actions—to make allowances.

6. Rejoiceth not in iniquity.—Unrighteousness. It includes all forms of moral evil. But rejoiceth in the truth—More correctly with the truth. The truth is here personified, meaning especially the spread among men of the truth of the Gospel, and indeed of the truth in general.

7. Beareth all things. — Love, silently endures what it has to suffer. Believeth all things—Shows a trustful disposition, which, instead of suspiciously and malignantly surmising and exposing faults, is ever inclined to suppose the existence of a good not seen, and, in failures, to presume the existence of a right intention. Hopeth all things—What is good of another, even when others have ceased to hope. Endureth all things—Charity is not fickle, unsteady, and easily discouraged; not soon disheartened, or induced to relinquish its object; but is persevering, patient, and self-denying in the pursuance of its design to relieve the wants, assuage the sorrows, reform the vices, and allay the animosities of those whose good it seeks.

8. Charity never faileth.—It is eternal. Whether there be prophecies, i. e., the gift of prophecy in all its varied forms. They shall fail, i. e., be done away with. Tongues . . . shall cease, i. e., the gift of tongues shall cease, because the occasion of them, the many languages of the world, the want of power to express all we feel, shall cease. Knowledge, it shall vanish away—We shall have knowledge in the hereafter, but the imperfect knowledge of the present will be absorbed in, or give place to, the perfect truth.

9. For we know in part.—Here we have the reason why knowledge and prophecy were to cease. The stress is on these words "in part." Only partial glimpses of the truth are revealed in prophecy; only partial glimpses of the truth are received in the intuitions of knowledge.

10. But when that which is perfect is come.—In the future world, after the resurrection, when our entire redemption begins. That which is in part shall be done away—Because the perfect includes the part, and vastly more.

11. When I was a child, etc. Paul now gives an illustration of how our present knowledge will vanish away. In our future life we will be as far beyond our present state, as our manhood here is beyond our early childhood.

12. For now, in this earthly life, we see through (in, by means of) a glass, or rather in a mirror. The contrast is between the inadequate knowledge of an object gained by seeing it reflected in a dim mirror (such as ancient mirrors were), compared with the perfect idea we have of it by seeing itself directly. Darkly, obscurely, literally, in an enigma. It is possible the apostle meant, "We look through a vague medium on a dark enigma." The enigma itself may be God's deep counsel of redemption, the contents of the gospel, which is a central mystery revealed, yet environed by a margin of mysteries unrevealed. Then—In the life to come. Face to face—Without the intervention of any distorting media, or imperfect comparisons. Then shall I know even as also I am known, i. e., perfectly. All the mysteries of God's providence to us, all the mysteries of His Word, of sin and redemption and election and the Trinity, will be solved as soon as we see things in all their relations and in the light of heaven. This view does not exclude the idea of future progression in knowledge, whether intellectual or moral. In the state of perfection even there are degrees of ascension; in eternity when shall the summit of Perfection be attained?

13. And now, in conclusion, abideth faith, hope, charity.—These three graces—faith, hope, love,—remain imperishable and immortal. We shall never cease to trust in God, for our souls can no more live in heaven than they can here, without divine help and influence which come from trusting him as Governor, Helper, and Friend. But the greatest of these is charity—Because it contains in itself the root of the other two. We believe only one whom we love, we hope only for that which we love.
