Novelties in Dresses.

STYLES NOW WORN IN NEW YORK—NEW TRIMMINGS.

Nothing is more fashionable on a lady's wool dress than the soft outline of a rooster's profile the saddened face of an owl, or the familiar physiognomy of a dog.
Tray Such domestic pictures are rivalled by curious wools, where evidently some mathematician's brain has been at work, and the result is a plentiful shower of parallelograms, triangles, octagons, pentagons and such like, for an accurate nomenclature of which the hunting up of a geometry would be obligatory. None is at hand, so I leave it to your imagination, and you can choose between the heads of birds, or beasts, or those more learned figures. Again, you may have a "sunflower dress"—that is, a costume where three or four large sunflowers embroidered on a solid wool surface constitutes the sole ornamentation. Most of these peculiar outfits show the sunflower in some modified tints, at all events an effect of "loudness" is carefully avoided, since they are intended for wealthy purchasers, while a choice is given by similar wools adorned with three or four large bouquets of embroidered flowers—roses, chrysanthemums, etc. Of course the style of making must correspond, and one or more is made to show in front, and another at the back; especial care being taken to have one at the left side of the corsage, the chosen spot where repose the mammoth bunches of flowers which are such a feature of the day. As can be supposed, these classes of goods are intended to please such butterfly buyers as can sport with one thing or another with little thought of expense. More conservative people will select from the checks, stripes, modest brocades, plain goods, and goods where all are united in ever-varying diversity. Very stylish will be suits of plain wool, illumined by braids and buttons. This is because very small bullet-shaped buttons have become a popular rage. Large ones are defunct (except for jackets and redingotes) and a grand rush is made in an opposite direction for substitutes which glow on solid surfaces, either harmonizing or contrasting. Chiefly of metal, they are colored to suit the times, and flash green, red, yellowish, bluish and other fashionable lights, while the fitness of things had suggested a combination of brands that had produced a set of military costumes adapted to satisfy the strongest aspirant. Those braided appear in rows up fronts, around edges, in epulettes on shoulders, etc., while the bullet button comes in as a termination.
Medium sized, flat buttons are, however, well nigh a necessity for fastening corsages, and so we have them. Lace is very popular trimming; not black alone, but colored to suit costumes. Parasols are edged with it, and of laces in millinery there are endless combinations. Spanish patterns lead, and now those in silk and wool are wrought throughout in Spanish designs. They will be very pretty for over dresses, parts of costumes, etc., and many will be the partly worn silk and satin that can be transformed and imposed upon one's acquaintances as a recent purchase. Grenadines are so heavily laden with brocaded figures that they scarce seem grenadines, but the rather brocaded silks.

are on the ground floor of the City Hall.
