The Municipal Contest

The York municipal election takes place on Tuesday next, and is arousing considerable interest in several of the parishes. There are five candidates in the field in Bright, and each one is making a vigorous canvas. In St. Marys, Frank Densmore of Gibson, has retired from the field and the fight is now between Coun. Rowley and Ludlow Young on the one side and Norman Hanson. A sharp fight is going on in the parish of Stanley, and at this stage it is difficult to say who will come out on top. The four candidates nominated in Kingsclear, are making a sharp canvass, but the odds seem to be in favor of the old Councilors, J. C. Murray and A. E. Cliff.

F. E. Benjamin of Malden and J. H. Hewitt of Cambridge, Mass., also returned today from a very successful trip on Cain's River. They had Arthur and Dick Evans as guides and secured two fine moose and a caribou. The moose shot by Mr. Benjamin had antlers measuring 52 inches. The other moose and caribou were knocked over by Mr. Hewitt.

SWALLOWED STRYCHNINE.

Edward Fraser, a Well Known Citizen,
Has a Close Call.

Quite a sensation was created about town last evening by a report to the effect that Edward Fraser, an employee of James S. Neill's hardware establishment, had swallowed a dose of strychnine at his home on King street. Mr. Fraser has been suffering from asthma for some years, his ailments being of such a serious nature as to necessitate his giving up work for weeks at a time. He has not been working now for a fortnight, and has naturally been feeling somewhat dispondent over his hard lot.

Yesterday afternoon about two o'clock, he went up stairs, remarking to his wife that he intended to lie down for a nap, and at the same time cautioned her not to allow him to sleep too long. At 4.30 o'clock Mrs. Fraser sent her youngest son up to call his father, but he returned in a moment with the information that she was wanted by him. On reaching her husband's bedside, in response to the summons, Mrs. Fraser was greatly shocked to hear him say, "I have taken strychnine." Mrs. Fraser did not stop to hear more, but hastening down stairs, she ran to the Queen hotel stable, and requested one of the employees to telephone for a physician. Her request was complied with, and in a remarkable short space of time, Drs. Atherton and Wiley were at the bedside of the unfortunate man. They administered an emetic, and remained with the patient for some time. He seemed to be suffering a great deal, and for a time the doctors did not hold out much hope for his recovery. During the night, however, he rallied somewhat, and has since been improving steadily. It is believed now that he will recover unless complications set in.

Some of Mr. Fraser's friends seem to be of opinion that he took the strychnine in mistake for medicine, which he has been in the habit of using, and others declare that he has been taking strychnine in small quantities for some time, and yesterday got an over dose.

A SUNBURY HERO

Dennis Sewell, Formerly of Lincoln,

GAVE UP HIS LIFE TO SAVE
THAT OF A BOY.Story of Attempted Heroic
Rescue Told by a Minneapolis Paper.

(Minneapolis Journal Sept. 21.)

Dennis Sewell, a boom hand, gave up his life shortly before noon to-day in an unsuccessful attempt to save Emil Irmen, 14 years old, who had fallen into the river while fishing. The accident occurred near the Eighteenth avenue N "gap" where Sewell and twenty other men were working.

Sewell saw the lad tumble into the water from the walk that leads from the east shore to the boom, and plunged in after him. Being an excellent swimmer, he did not expect any difficulty in rescuing the little fellow. The drowning boy, however, as soon as Sewell reached him, grasped the strong man about the neck convulsively and clung with an iron grasp which the would-be rescuer was unable to break. With the lad's arms wrapped tightly around his neck, making it impossible for him to use his arms in swimming and at the same time strangling him, the brave man went down to a hero's death. Other men at work on the boom, who saw their companion's attempt to rescue the boy, were unable to save either. The bodies were recovered late this afternoon.

The boom crew was working at the gap some fifty feet away. Sewell was the first to see the accident and ran along the walk to the point where the lad had fallen in. When he across Sewell dove and caught him. The drowning boy was waving his arms frantically, in an effort to fix his grasp on some object that might save him. The little fellow's arms circled the strong man's neck like tentacles and made it impossible for him to swim or keep his head above water.

Clinging to each other, the two were seen to sink and rise once, twice and a third time. Other men were hastening towards the struggling pair, but though two or three dove into the water, Sewell and the boy sank for the last time and were seen no more.

The entire crew, under the order of the foreman, Mose Green, quit work and manning a scow they commenced the search for the bodies, using their pick poles. A few minutes later another crew from down-river rowed to the scene of the drowning and joined in the search, while an officer telephoned the police. The North Side patrol wagon with grappling irons arrived a few minutes later and the police, assisted by the boom employees dragged the stream for the bodies.

"Denny" Sewell's fate is indeed sad. His bravery and quick action in going after the boy are highly praised by those who saw him. His home is at 325 Twenty-fourth avenue N, and he leaves a wife and four small children. He had been an employee of the boom company for several years.

The place where Emil Irmen and Sewell were drowned has long been known as a dangerous "hole" where a large number of boys in Northeast Minneapolis bathe every summer. No less than a dozen persons have been drowned there in as many years.

[Mr. Sewell is a son of the late James Sewell, of Lincoln, and a nephew of Emery Sewell. After his father's death, his mother married Robert Burnett and now resides in this city with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Hayward. Mrs. Isaac Burden, of Springhill, is a sister of the deceased young man.—Herald.]

W. H. Murray of St John, is among the guests at the Barker.
