

A CHICAGO MAN.

He Left the Windy City, but Sadly Missed Its Noise.

"Hello! Thought you'd left us?" "I thought so too." The brisk looking business man was half ashamed and half laughing. "Come in here, and I'll tell you about it." Over the glasses of buttermilk he went into particulars.

"I came to Chicago from Vermont more than 20 years ago, and I never went home once during all that time. Didn't have to, because all my near relations were dead before I came out here. But I always had a fondness for my birthplace and a hankering to see the village again, and I was always promising myself to go back there and settle. So a year ago when I had a chance to sell out my business at a big profit I jumped at it and went back to Vermont to be a gentleman for the rest of my life.

"I told myself what a relief it would be to never hear any more street noises or see any fights or be bothered with uproar and confusion and vice and all that, and I really believed that I never wanted to hear about Chicago again. However, I bought a Chicago paper at the first stopping place and kept on buying them. Force of habit, I suppose.

"Well, anyhow, I got to Vermont and the dear old village that nestled among the hills and did all the other things that villages ought to do and settled down to have the time of my life. And I will say that I enjoyed myself for about three months. I met the schoolmaster that used to lick me and the pastor that scared me with his sermons, the village idiot that remembered me and the old man that didn't and about two dozen old maids that thought I ought to have married them when I was young and believed I had come back for that express purpose. Every day I heard stories about my past life until I began to think that the village had been doing nothing for 20 years but treasuring my memory.

"I also found out that I was looked upon as a wicked man because I had lived in Chicago and the west, and I am sure that at least half the people thought I had got my money by train robbery. This made me quite a favorite among the young girls, who looked at me with shuddering admiration when they were not trying to convert me. Of course I was set down as depraved, and they smiled in a pitying way when I told them how many churches there were in Chicago.

"I rather enjoyed all this for awhile, but then it began to pall. I wasn't used to being regarded as a museum freak for one thing, and then the awful smallness of the life began to grind me. Everything and everybody was so slow and back numbered that they seemed to belong to the last century. They wagged their heads and smiled in a supercilious way when I spoke of ordinary happenings outside of their little world until I felt inclined to bump their heads together in one big bump. And as I didn't care to grow like them, one day I picked up my duds and lit out without bidding any one goodbye."

"And where have you been the other nine months?"

"Knocking around looking for a quiet place without any moth eaten residents, and I haven't found any. Perhaps it's my fault, but at any rate here I am back again in the noise and vice and all that which I heartily despise and can't live without."

BRITON AND BOER.

Sir Alfred Milner graphically describes the situation in South Africa as having "all the horror with none of the dignity of war."—New York World.

Lord Roberts ended the war before sailing for home, and now Kitchener is to be allowed to end it. This will there be glory enough to go around.

True sympathy will counsel the Boers to surrender. Every life that is lost, every fourth that is destroyed henceforward is a pitiful unavailing sacrifice.—Chicago Times Herald.

ASTHMA
FOR SIXTEEN YEARS

Well-known Orangeville Farmer spent hundreds of dollars in search of a cure. At last cured by Clarke's Kola Compound.

It seems foolish to pay several hundred dollars for something which will buy, don't it? Yet that is just what thousands of asthmatics are doing every year, besides losing their health. They are trying to get free from the tortures of asthma, but unless they take Clarke's Kola Compound they will keep on trying. It is the only permanent cure. Mr. Allan Faulkner, one of the best known farmers in Dufferin Co. writes:—"For sixteen long years I have been almost a constant martyr to asthma. Only an asthmatic could realize what I have suffered. Many days and weeks I could not leave the house, and night after night could not lie down. I spent many hundred dollars in search of a cure and tried nearly all our local doctors and some in Toronto but became worse each year. My doctor, Mr. Stevenson, of Orangeville, recommended Clarke's Kola Compound about two years ago. I took, in all, eighteen bottles of this grand medicine during nine months; each week I gradually improved and am now completely cured. It is now over a year since being cured and I have not had a single attack since, and I have gained much of my old-time strength and weight. No amount of money nor anything else could estimate its value to me."

(Signed) ALLAN FAULKNER. I have for years been personally acquainted with Mr. Faulkner and can certify to the absolute truth of the above statements. (Signed) THOS. STEVENSON, Druggist, Orangeville. Clarke's Kola Compound is sold by Chemists everywhere. $2.00 per bottle, three for $5.00 or from the Griffiths & Macpherson Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

For sale by John M. Wiley, druggist.

Couldn't Stand the Strain.

"Yes, this is the worst case in the institution—complete nervous breakdown. Two weeks ago he weighed 200. Now look at him."

"Who is he?" "He's a Kansas saloon keeper."

The Disagreeable Man.

"Do you think the face an index to the mind?" asked the prosy boarder.

"Well," said the savage bachelor, "when a woman makes up her mind that she has lived single too long she is apt to make up her face."

Where Respect Is Due.

Young love may laugh at locksmiths; true, But though its scorn sublime, You'll find it takes its hit off to The goldsmith every time.

Boker—I took the precaution to try some of the medicines on him that were recommended to me for the grip.

In the Midst of Life We Are In Debt.

McSwatters—What happiness! I'm all out of debt!

McSwitters—That's good.

McSwatters—And thrice happy day! I can go in debt again.

A Shrewd Guess.

"I wonder how long 'Unleavened Bread' will hold the stage?"

"Just as long as there's plenty of dough in the box office."

Not From This Town.

"He says he is from New York," said one young woman.

"Yes," answered the other.

"I can't believe it."

"Why not?"

"He talked with me for five minutes without saying anything was 'ferce' or characterizing anybody as a 'lobster'."—Washington Star.

Still Unconvinced.

Benedick—It is said that most of the people who commit suicide are unmarried. How are you going to get around that?

O'Barth—Oh, well, I s'pose after a fellow has been married awhile he gets so he can put up with almost anything.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Comfort.

"What makes you keep harping on the statement that a man can't do anything without capital nowadays?"

"Well," answered the indolent friend, "it's my one comfort in life. It's so much easier than hustling around and trying to do things."—Washington Star.

The Meditative Girl.

Her eyes were dreamy, and it gave His jealous heart a shock, But she mused not on other men; Her thoughts were of a frock.
