MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

Mr. Black's Accounts Not as Satisfactory as at First Supposed.

BONDSMEN TO BE ASKED TO MAKE GOOD A SHORTAGE OF NEARLY $300.

How the Council Divided on the Secretary Treasurer Question.

MR. BLISS OWES HIS ELECTION TO THE EFFORTS PUT FORTH BY COUN. SCOTT.

At the special meeting of the Municipal Council on Tuesday afternoon, when the question of appointing a secretary-treasurer in succession to John Black was taken up, Coun Cropley moved, seconded by Coun Hillman, that the selection be made by ballot.

Coun Mowatt moved, seconded by Coun Cliff, that the question be settled by a standing vote.

Coun Fawcett said he was in favor of having the matter settled over and above board.

Coun McManiman said he would go in for a standing vote on each ballot.

After remarks by other councillors, the warden ruled Coun Mowatt's motion out of order, and announced that the names of all three applicants would be voted upon at once.

Coun Cropley's motion that the voting be by ballot, was then put to the meeting and carried by a vote of 15 to 11. Those who voted for the motion were Couns. Jewett, Simmons, Graham, Murray, Scott, Masten, Hillman, Grosjean, Cropley, Veysey, Moffatt, Seymour, McNally, Morgan and Haining. Those who voted against it were Couns. Cliff, Fawcett, Goodspeed, Mowatt, Robinson, Green, Rowley, Brewer, Merrill, McManiman and Burden. The warden did not vote on this occasion.

After the result of the voting for a secretary-treasurer had been announced, Coun McManiman submitted an order from H. A. Cropley on the county for $100 in favor of Owen Sharkey, and asked that the same be paid.

Auditor McCready said it was customary for people doing business for the county to give orders on the secretary-treasurer to creditors during the year, but the latter had to wait for their money until it was earned. He would advise that the same rule be followed in this case. While on his feet he wished to say that he thought the county auditor should be given enlarged powers. In future he would like to be empowered by the council to go into the office of the secretary-treasurer at uncertain intervals and count over the cash. He did not think that Mr. Bliss would object to his coming in at the present time and counting the cash, though he might at the end of five years. He wished to thank those who had so kindly supported his application for the office of secretary-treasurer.

On motion of Coun Cliff a committee composed of Couns. Seymour and Murray was appointed to act with the warden in looking after the secretary-treasurer's securities.

The warden said that he had instructed W. E. Farrell, who held the insurance policy on the county safe, to renew the same.

A motion by Coun Cropley, that the warden be reimbursed for any expense he had gone to in connection with filling the vacant office, was carried.

On motion of Coun Morgan the two reporters present were voted the sum of two dollars each for reporting the proceedings of the meeting.

On motion of Coun Fawcett, seconded by Coun Hillman, a vote of thanks was tendered Judge Wilson for administering the oath of allegiance to the members of the council.

A bill from Auditor McCready amounting to $34.04, for examining the county accounts and issuing notices for the meeting, was ordered to be paid.

Coun Masten submitted a report on the item of $477.08, being the amount paid Black, Jordan & Bliss for costs in the suit of Parvis vs. Johnson, referred to the councillors from Southampton, and recommended that the same be charged to John Black.

The warden ruled that the matter lay over until the July meeting.

Coun Mowatt said he noticed that the county had paid out the sum of $11 last year as discount on American money. This amount represented the interest on nearly $300, and he thought it a shame that it should be expended in that way. He did not think the secretary treasurer should accept American money from the collectors, as the latter could easily exchange it without losing the discount. He moved that the motion passed some years ago in regard to this matter be rescinded and that in future the secretary treasurer accept no American money.

After some little discussion Coun Mowatt consented to have the motion lay over until July.

Coun Fawcett urged that some action be taken on the report of the councillors for Southampton regarding the amount Mr. Black had drawn without authority from the council. He said his constituents were deeply interested in this matter, and would not submit to the shelving of the report.

The warden said that he had ruled that the report lay on the table until the July meeting.

Coun McManiman said the report had been referred to the councillors from Southampton, and it was only fair that the council should accept their report.

Coun Cliff agreed with Coun McManiman that it was only fair to the councillors from Southampton that some action should be taken.

Coun Fawcett said that the money had been taken out of the county funds by Mr.

Black without authority, and he thought it was the duty of the council to act upon the report of himself and colleague.

The warden could not see the wisdom of charging the amount to John Black. Coun Cliff explained that by charging it to John Black it was meant to implicate his securities.

Coun McManiman moved, seconded by Coun Fawcett, that the account be thrown out and that the bondsmen be notified to make good the shortage to the county.

Coun Merrill stated that $130 of the sum drawn by Mr. Black had been money advanced out of his own pocket. He did not think the bondsmen should be required to make that good.

Coun Fawcett—The council never asked him to advance the money.

The motion that the bondsmen make good the whole amount was then put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

At 4.30 o'clock the council adjourned sine die with the National Anthem.

Notes and Incidents.

As the question of appointing a new secretary-treasurer was settled by ballot, of course there is no way of positively identifying the fifteen councillors who supported the successful applicant. It is rather a striking coincidence, however, that fifteen councillors voted to have the question decided by ballot, and just that number voted for Mr. Bliss. The names will be found above; look them over.

Eleven of the councillors voted to have the secretary-treasurer appointed by a standing vote, and twelve voted against Mr. Bliss. It is generally supposed that Warden Morehouse, who cast a vote, is responsible for the twelfth ballot, as though there is doubt on the subject. The only absentee was Coun McMullin of Prince William.

Harry F. McLeod, who was an unsuccessful applicant for the vacant office, spent the greater part of the day lobbying about the council chamber, but just before the vote was taken, placed his case in the hands of Coun McManiman and Harry Blair and left for Campbellton to attend the meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge. He was let down gently with three votes, or just half the number he had pledged.

Major Howe, ex-M. P. P., of Stanley, did quite a stroke of lobbying during the day. His great influence with the councillors was thrown in the interests of McLeod.

Our esteemed co-laborer Simonds performed the hardest day's work of his life on Tuesday. He was at the council chamber as soon as the door was opened, and remained there all day. He button-holed every councillor, and actually deceived himself into believing that some of them would support him. It is said that ten different councillors promised to nominate him, but excused themselves at the last moment. When Brother Simonds saw at last that the jig was up he went into the registry office and hid himself in the vault. It is said that he has about made up his mind to apply for the office of city clerk.

Mr. Oswald S. Crockett, barrister, displayed more wisdom than several of the other unsuccessful applicants. He began operations at Harvey Station bright and early on Monday morning, and after canvassing hard all day wisely decided to drop out of the contest and did so. He did not put in an appearance at the council meeting, being afraid that his presence there might prejudice the chances of his friend Mr. Simonds.

Mr. Bliss owes his success to the activity taken in his candidature by General Scott of Dumfries. Mr. Scott is recognized as the "boss" of the council, and what he says generally goes at the board. He had some trouble this time, however, getting his followers all whipped into line. Several of the old timers, including Couns. McNally, Seymour and Murray, who it is said trusted the late secretary-treasurer more wisely but too well, were inclined to be stubborn at first, but they were finally pacified.

The councillors who gave their support to Mr. McCready were Rowley, Goodspeed, Green, Mowatt, Robinson, Burden, Brewer, Fawcett and Cliff. Couns. McManiman and Merrill acknowledged that they voted for McLeod, and they had one other with them whose identity is a little uncertain.

Coun McNally, who claims to be an undisputed authority on constitutional law and parliamentary usage, made the absurd proposition that Mr. McCready should resign the office of auditor, before applying for the Secretary-Treasurership. He quoted from an alleged opinion given away back in the sixties in support of his contention, and argued that if Mr. McCready was appointed to the vacancy, he would not be able to hold both offices.

Coun Scott, who knew how things were going, was able to announce the result of the vote to the councillors sitting near him, at least two minutes before the scrutineers had finished counting the ballots.

The shortage in Mr. Black's accounts will have to be made good by the estate of the late Geo. E. Fenety of this city and Andrew Douglas of Stanley.
