

A Peerless Spring Health Builder

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The Wonderful Curing Medicine.

Wherever men and women work strive and battle with life's duties and responsibilities, Paine's Celery Compound is regarded as a true friend and helper. In shop, office, factory, and among the weary wives and mothers who bear the burden of domestic work, Paine's Celery Compound is prolonging life by strengthening every bodily function and driving out disease.

Paine's Celery Compound is a peerless Spring medicine in all cases of enfeebled nerves, foul blood, kidney disease, rheumatism, neuralgia and dyspepsia. The virtues of the great medicine subdue and banish the most obstinate cases of disease.

Mr. R. W. Daniels, Lawrencetown, N. S., writes thus:

"I feel constrained, for the benefit of suffering humanity, to add my testimony to the wonderful effects of your Paine's Celery Compound. I was induced to try your compound through its effects upon a Mr. Parke. I had previously used a vast quantity of patent and doctors' medicines, only to find myself growing weaker. After using your Paine's Celery Compound, to the number of five bottles, I gained forty-three and a half pounds, and I am able to work hard all day as a mason with comfort to myself. I feel like a new man, which condition I owe to the blessing of God and your Paine's Celery Compound.

JOBSON WAS OBEYED.

HIS REMARKS MADE A BIG CHANGE IN MRS. JOBSON.

But Even Then He Did Not Appear to Be Perfectly Satisfied and Had Something More to Say Regarding the Matter.

Mrs. Jobson had put in such a busy day at housekeeping that she hadn't time to dress before Mr. Jobson's arrival home the other evening. Mr. Jobson surveyed her disapprovingly as he hung his hat and overcoat on the rack.

"By the way," he inquired, scrutinizing her from head to foot, "what have you been doing, sifting ashes or plowing the back yard to put in a crop of winter wheat?"

"This is my housecleaning day," replied Mrs. Jobson, "and the clock is slow, so that I didn't have time to change my."

"Oh, that's it, is it? You didn't have time."

"I was just about to go up stairs to dress for dinner when you came in, and."

"That's all right what you were just about to do. The point is that I come in and find you looking like you'd been caught in a Jackson City dust storm. There's no reason why you shouldn't look attractive around the house all the time. What's the reason that that little Mrs. Questreet, who isn't so much behind you in the matter of years, always looks plucked up and diked out in frilly wrappers and things every time we happen to call there, and?"

"Not much behind me in the matter of years!" ejaculated Mrs. Jobson. "Mrs. Questreet is eight years older than I am, if she's a day! And we never happen to call upon her at a time of day when she's cleaning house, and, furthermore, she dings at Questreet so that he lets her have all the money she wants to shop, and those pretty wrappers that you're talking about."

"If Questreet gives his wife any more money to buy these dinky things that make women look nice than I give you, then I'd just like to know it, that's all," interrupted Mr. Jobson. "If you haven't got house duds like Mrs. Questreet's, why don't you go and get 'em? What's more, there's no reason why you should do any work whatsoever around this house. Just you let the servant girl do the jumping up and gallivanting around when you want anything or I want anything and devote your time to keeping yourself looking neat and pleasing."

Mrs. Jobson didn't make any reply, but went up stairs and made herself ready for dinner.

When Mr. Jobson got home on the following afternoon, Mrs. Jobson, looking very splendid indeed, met him at the door. She wore a new and handsome baby blue tea gown, with a lot of cream colored lace scattered over it. Her hair looked as if it had been done up by a hairdresser. Her feet were incased in neat red morocco slippers, with gilt cord sewed on them.

"Well, what are you all rigged out that way for?" asked Mr. Jobson.

"Why, don't you remember what you said last evening?"

Mr. Jobson did remember all of a sudden, as she saw by his expression, and he didn't say anything more.

"How do you like my new tea gown?" inquired Mrs. Jobson cheerily, holding out the skirt in her hands. "I got it today for almost nothing—$34—at a sale."

"It's great," replied Mr. Jobson in a husky sort of tone.

"And I got half a dozen pairs of those lovely silk stockings, different colors, for only $2 a pair," went on Mrs. Jobson. "I am so fond of silk stockings for house wear, and I know how you like silk stockings."

"Like 'em? I love 'em!" gulped Mr. Jobson.

"I got these red slippers because you seemed to like Mrs. Questreet's pair, that are just like these, so much," continued Mrs. Jobson. "Do you like them?"

"They're orientally magnificent!" said Mr. Jobson in a weak sort of tone. "Now let's have dinner. I'm hungry."

Instead of tripping down the stairs, as she usually did, to superintend the placing of the dinner on the table, Mrs. Jobson walked over to the sitting room table and rang a brand new gong which she had purchased that day, while Mr. Jobson looked on wonderingly. The servant girl wheezed up the stairs half a moment later.

"Gertrude, you may serve dinner," said Mrs. Jobson, sinking back in an easy chair. Mr. Jobson blew his nose rather fiercely, but didn't say anything.

He wasn't particularly chipper during the meal, which Mrs. Jobson sat through without once getting up, as usual, to see about the coffee or the dessert or something or other, and she went right up stairs with Mr. Jobson when the dinner was finished.

"My slippers?" said Mr. Jobson, looking at Mrs. Jobson expectantly when they reached the sitting room. Mrs. Jobson smiled amiably and sounded the gong. The servant made her appearance presently. "Gertrude, Mr. Jobson's slippers—you'll find them beneath the bed in our sleeping room," said she. Mr. Jobson was about to say something when the girl had gone up stairs, but he scratched his head instead.

"Er—where's that long stemmed brier pipe of mine?" inquired Mr. Jobson after he had settled himself for reading. Mrs. Jobson, looking up from the magazine she had picked up, reached over and rang the gong again.

When the servant appeared again, grinning—for the girl was in the play—"Gertrude, you'll find Mr. Jobson's long stemmed pipe on the window sill up stairs," said she.

Mr. Jobson looked at Mrs. Jobson with open mouth, but apparently thought better of it and scratched his head again. Mrs. Jobson pulled her easy chair closer to the grate fire and leaned back luxuriously. About half an hour later Mr. Jobson said, throwing down his paper:

"Let's have a look at that account book of mine. I want to run up the figures."

Mrs. Jobson was just about to reach over to ring the gong again, when Mr. Jobson stopped her with a gesture.

"Just suppose you cut out this Empress Eugenie, queen of Sheba business," said he. "I don't know what this new game is called, but I know that I don't want to play it any more. You don't want to get haughty with me, Mrs. Jobson. This isn't the British legation of the Peking palace we are living in, you know, and we haven't got any more than 18,000 servants, and there's no particular sense in rubbing it in."—Washington Star.

Her Fifty Dollar Purchase.

"Goodness knows," said a Detroit woman who lived several years in New York city, "how many mistakes are made here every day in the sale and delivery of goods, but it was just awful in New York. In my own experience there I cannot number all of them, and I suppose other people could tell stories of carelessness not much different or fewer than mine.

"On one occasion I bought a $50 rug from a big department store where I was known, and the bill was to be sent in on the 1st of the month. It was not sent, however, and I waited for another month. Still no bill, and at the end of four months I called to see about it. It had not even been charged, and the result of my call was that some one was dismissed for negligence and I paid the $50. I was told afterward by several persons that I should never have said anything about it, and I was sorry I had, because my $50 did not add greatly to the profits of the store and lost some poor fellow his place."

Some Justification.

"So you want to marry my daughter, do you?" thundered the stern father.

"Y-yes, sir," stammered the terrified young man, "but not any worse than she wants to marry me."—Chicago Tribune.

Sign of Spring.

"Have you heard a robin yet?"

"No, but I've seen a woman with her head tied up in a towel beating a carpet in the back yard."—Chicago Record.

Salves and Ointments.

There is a wide difference between salves and ointments, especially Milburn's Burdock Salve and Milburn's Burdock Ointment.

A salve draws and heals while an ointment soothes and heals.

Below will be found, in two columns, the different classes of diseases or complaints for which they are recommended, so that the casual observer may see at a glance which kind to purchase in case he should require either:

MILBURN'S BURDOCK SALVE.

Has a wide range of usefulness in drawing and healing old Sores, Boils, Abscesses, Ulcers, Scrofula, and all running sores where pus has gathered. Draws and heals as no other salve has ever done before.

It removes pain from a felon in a few hours, and cures in a few days.

Price, Sample Box 10c.; Large Box 25c.

MILBURN'S BURDOCK OINTMENT.

This Ointment is indicated for curing all Itching Skin Diseases such as Scald Head, Eczema or Salt Rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, Shingles, Ringworm, Piles, Itching Piles, Internal and Bleeding Piles, Granulated Eye-Lids, and all kinds of Itching Skin Diseases.

Price, Sample Box 10c.; Large Box 25c.

In most cases eruptions of the skin are evidences of blood impurity, and while it is necessary to apply Milburn's Burdock Ointment or Milburn's Burdock Salve to relieve the local irritation, it is also of prime importance that the source of the disease in the blood should be reached and the poison completely eliminated from the system.

For this purpose there is no remedy equal to BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, which has cured the very worst cases of impure blood completely and permanently after all other means failed.

A sample of ointment or salve will be sent free on receipt of 2c. stamp for postage. Address, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
