GUNNER EVERETT

Heartily Welcomed Home by the People Kingsclear.

GRAND DEMONSTRATION IN HIS HONOR.

Presented With an Address, Gold Watch, and Ring.

SPEECHES BY REV. H. MONTGOMERY, COL. LOGGIE, SERGT. MAJOR COX AND OTHERS.

The Temperance Hall at Lower French Village was the scene of a patriotic demonstration last evening, in honor of Gunner Fred H. Everett, Kingsclear's gallant soldier boy, who returned from South Africa by the steamer Royley Castle on Wednesday. The large hall was packed to the doors with people from all parts of the parish, and the enthusiastic nature of the welcome tendered the Kingsclear hero, should leave no doubt in his mind as the appreciation felt by his relatives and friends for the service he has rendered Queen and country in far off South Africa. Sergt. Major W. J. Cox, the brave Sanbury boy who distinguished himself in the Natal campaign, favored the gathering with his presence, and shared with Gunner Everett the honors of the evening.

Although the demonstration in honor of the heroes was hastily gotten up it was an unqualified success, and will long be remembered by the people of Kingsclear.

The hall was artistically decorated with flags and bunting, and a large portrait of the Queen was conspicuously displayed on the wall in rear of the platform.

John A. Campbell, M. P. P., occupied the chair very acceptably, and in opening the proceedings extended a cordial welcome to Gunner Everett on behalf of the people of Kingsclear. An excellent program consisting of vocal selections, readings, and patriotic addresses, was carried out, those taking part being W. A. Adams, Frank L. Cooper, Col. Loggie, and Z. R. Everett of this city; Rev. H. Montgomery, and Capt. G. A. Murray of Kingsclear, Rev. H. E. Dibblee of Oromocto, and Alex. W. Baird, the popular and versatile barter of St. John.

Mr. Adams led off with Soldiers of the Queen, the audience joining heartily in the chorus. Mr. Cooper came next with a patriotic song rendered in his usual finished style, after which Mr. Baird was introduced and treated the gathering to a reading. Mr. Baird is right in his element on the public platform and as an entertainer has few superiors in the province. His selection was greeted with enthusiastic applause and he gracefully acceded to the demand of the audience for an encore.

Rev. H. Montgomery, the popular rector of the parish, was introduced as the first speaker and made an exceedingly able and patriotic address, holding the rapid attention of the large audience throughout. He congratulated Gunner Everett upon his safe return and declared that Kingsclear could not have had a more worthy representative at the front.

As a descendant of an old and respected loyalist family Gunner Everett had proved himself worthy of his noble ancestors, the pioneers of Kingsclear, and the people of the parish were justly proud of him. The reverend gentleman then dealt in eloquent terms with the war in South Africa, and the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion shown by the colonies in the cause of the empire, and concluded with a stirring reference to the old flag which roused the patriotic ire of the audience to the highest pitch.

Mr. Adams rendered a patriotic song with splendid effect, and in response to an encore gave a comic ditty which took the audience by storm.

Rev. H. E. Dibblee being called upon by the chairman, spoke briefly. He expressed his pleasure at being present to assist in honoring Gunner Everett, and in conclusion extended an invitation to all to attend the demonstration to be held in Sergt. Major Cox's honor at Burton on the 30th inst.

Capt. G. A. Murray then mounted the platform, and on behalf of a number of Kingsclear friends, read and presented to Gunner Everett a complimentary address. Accompanying the address was a beautiful gold ring, suitably engraved, which was presented to the hero by little Nellie Cliff, amidst great applause.

Z. R. Everett, an uncle of the returned hero, then arose and after a brief address in which he made a stirring reference to the war and gallantry shown by the Canadian contingents, presented Gunner Everett with a beautiful gold watch, with his monogram and the words "Second Contingent, South Africa, 1900, C. F. A." engraved thereon. He explained that the gift was made on behalf of Gunner Everett's immediate relatives, who had adopted this means of expressing their appreciation of his heroism and devotion to the empire's cause.

When Gunner Everett, who was taken completely by surprise, rose to reply he was greeted with vociferous applause, followed by three cheers and a tiger. In a neat speech he returned thanks to the people of Kingsclear and to his relatives for their kindness to him. He considered it an honor to have been privileged to represent the parish of Kingsclear in South Africa, and the hearty reception accorded him by the people on his return, amply repaid him for his sacrifice he had made. He was particularly pleased at the action of his relatives and could assure them that the watch would come in very handy, as he had had the misfortune to lose his at DeArr. It flew away while he was in the act of mounting a horse and all he could find was the ring. After again returning thanks he resumed his seat amidst applause.

After another selection by Mr. Baird and an encore number, which is invariably demanded from him, Col. Loggie was introduced to the audience and responded with a capital address. He referred in eloquent terms to the part taken in the South African war by Canadians, particularly by our New Brunswick boys. The representation from his own regiment was as large as that of any rural corps in Canada, and would have been much larger than it was had they been able to find a place for all who were anxious to enlist. It was a great enthusiasm by a reference to the march of the old 104th regiment from Fredericton to the Upper Canada during the war of 1812, and reminded the audience that it was led by a Kingsclear man. He was pleased to be present to assist in honoring Gunner Everett and he was also pleased to note the presence of so many pretty girls. His advice to Gunner Everett was to commandeer one and settle down in Kingsclear. (Laughter and applause.)

At the conclusion of Col. Loggie's remarks there were loud calls for Sergt. Major Cox, who took the platform amidst cheers. He made a very interesting and eloquent address, in the course of which he related incidents thrilling and amusing, in connection with General Buller's campaign in Natal. He also at the request of Rev. Mr. Montgomery, gave a brief but graphic account of the Tugela river incident in which he was one of the chief actors. He spoke with great ease, fluency and becoming modesty, and his thrilling story was listened to with breathless interest. As a lecturer, the gallant Sergt. Major would soon take a place in the front rank.

The evening's entertainment was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

During a short intermission in the program light refreshments, consisting of coffee, cake, sandwiches, ice cream etc., were charmingly served by an energetic staff of young ladies.

The great success of the demonstration was largely due to the efforts put forth by Capt. G. A. Murray of the 71st regiment, and others who acted with him.
