During the heavy thunder storm Sunday night a barn owned by Capt. Geo. Long at Richibucto, was struck by lightning and burned. His residence and the rectory of St. Mary's church were in great danger for a while. The fire engine did splendid service. The barn contained about one hundred dollars' worth of fuel.

One of the most extraordinary incidents of the hot-weather season occurred in New York. Two Italian children fell from the third story window of a tenement house. In their descent they struck a countrywoman who was looking out of a first-floor window. The three descended into the yard, but none of them was seriously hurt.

From the London Times of July 4, 1891: An experiment took place on Wednesday on the River Thames, for the purpose of working a barge or any other heavy craft, against tide, by means of a steam engine, on a very simple construction. The moment the engine was set to work the barge was brought about, answering her helm quickly, and she made way against a strong current, at the rate of two miles and a half per hour.

At Three Rivers, Quebec, a step just from the last volunteer camp, near a pathway frequented by many flower-pickers, and merely some yards from the new well-patronized cricket ground, was found Sunday, the skeleton of Mr. Robichon, nicknamed "petit ponce." A cricket ball strayed off the field to gather some hazel nuts, and finding this gruesome thing, soon spread the alarm. The hot weather had hastened decomposition, and the bare bones only were left. Robichon was somewhat demented, and had been missing about a month or so.

The New York Daily News prints the following despatch from Queenstown: A non-commissioned officer of the Munster Fusiliers, just invalided home from South Africa, declares that the soldiers in the field believe it an utter impossibility to catch Generals Botha and DeWet due to the fact that the leading British officers are Free Masons. "Several times," he said, "I have been among DeWet's pursuers when, just as we thought we had him, a halt was ordered, permitting him to escape. Boers may surrender, but the leader will never be caught while Kitchener and other Masons lead the British."

What does it profit a woman if she gain the whole world of knowledge and lose her own health? Young women students, and school teachers, eager, ambitious, and full of energy, very often neglect their health in the struggle to gain education. They eat insufficient food, and at irregular hours, they allow irregularity of the womanly functions to be established, and the result is that they become chronic invalids with all their education practically worthless. There is a plain road back to health for such as these, marked by the feet of thousands. It is the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive organs, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the delicate organs womanhood. A cure so certainly follows the use of these remedies that out of hundreds of thousands who have tried the treatment, ninety-eight in every hundred have been perfectly and permanently cured. Constipation, with its calamitous consequences, which is a common ailment of students, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

James McDevitt, of Philadelphia, drank eleven glasses of ice water Saturday and was stricken dumb. He went to work at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and by 3 o'clock he had drunk eleven tall glasses of the coldest ice water he could find. When he had finished swallowing the last glassful he felt a choking sensation. He tried to tell his fellow employees about it, and found he was unable to speak. His companions accompanied him to the hospital and spoke to the doctors for him. McDevitt was able to hear what was said, but his power of speech was gone. The physicians said that the vocal chords had evidently been affected by the cold water, but think his power of speech will return.

Farmers are very busy haying, they find the hay crop a good one. The weather so far has been very good, though rather too hot, the thermometer being up to 95 degrees in the shade.

We have had some very heavy thunder, lightning striking in several places. Tuesday last it struck a chimney on Murch's woodshed, knocking off some bricks, but doing no other damage to the building. The same storm struck Albert Jordan's grainary, setting it on fire, then passed along the ground, making a furrow twenty-five feet long, to the horse barn.

The door of the stable being open it passed through striking a neckyoke, splitting it into kindling wood and sent one piece 100 feet away, knocked the horses down, one horse being unable to walk without falling down, neither can he hear yet and his ears lop down, having no power to hold them up. Mr. Jordan saw the blaze soon after it started and put the fire out, otherwise he might have had his buildings burnt as they were close together.

FATHER AND SON

Sank Together in Death
When Help Was Near.

TWO NOVA SCOTIANS DROWNED

On the Newfoundland Banks.

Gloucester, Mass. July 23.—The schooner Josie M. Calderwood, Capt Diehlz, which arrived from a dory hand-lining trip this afternoon, had her flag at half mast.

The sequel is a very pathetic tale, even in this city, used to stories of this kind. It will carry sadness to the little village of Sand Point, N. S., where a mother is bowed down with the great grief of husband and son lost on the banks.

George McKay, aged 47, and his son, Leslie McKay, aged 17, came to this city early in the spring and shipped on board the schooner Josie M. Calderwood for the season. The lad was an exceedingly athletic young fellow, with a fondness for the water, and a fine swimmer.

On May 17 the schooner was off Sable Island under way. A good breeze was blowing, although there was not much of a sea running. The day was young McKay's birthday. He felt that although but 17 he had arrived at man's estate with all the dignity of a man.

Accordingly when the skipper from aft called forward to take in and furl the flying jib, he was one of the first to spring outboard over the foot ropes to the edge of the flying jibboom to tie the sail securely on the boom. This was accomplished all right. Those with him came inboard, and young McKay followed.

He was just stepping over the bow when the vessel gave a nasty lurch. Young McKay lost his balance and fell overboard to leeward. The accident was observed as quickly as it happened.

"Leslie McKay is overboard," called out a voice astern and at the same time the shrill cry of the boy in the water reached the quick ear of his father, who was below in the cabin.

The situation revealed itself to the father like a flash. When he left home the solemn injunction of his wife had been to take good care of Leslie. He could never return and face her minus the boy, lost on his birthday.

With one bound he reached the deck of the vessel. Clad as he was in big fishing boots and weighty clothing, he jumped into the water in the direction of the boy being left rapidly astern. At the same time the vessel was brought about.

The father was a strong man, and an excellent swimmer. Despite his heavy weight which would bear down an ordinary man, he reached his boy with great rapidity, evidently making a supreme effort. He reached him and clasped him in his arms. This seemed strange to those aboard the vessel who were anxiously watching.

Meanwhile a dory was speeding to their rescue. Before it reached them they sank, and nothing but bubbles of air indicated their whereabouts.

It is supposed that, in his eagerness to have his boy, the father would not relax his clasp, and that the boy tried to push him away.

Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson landed at Southampton Friday afternoon from Cape Colony. They were met by Alfred Beit, the financier, and B. A. Hawksley, counsel for the British Chartered South Africa Company, and other friends. Messrs. Rhodes and Jameson declined to discuss South Africa, saying they were no longer public men.

Stop Thief!

would be a justifiable cry directed against the countless humbugs that offer a cure for Catarrh. There is only one scientific method of treatment for Catarrh. Make the air you breathe the carrier of healing, balsamic, curative agents. It bathes every inch of mucous membranes with its healing, soothing properties. That's Catarrhazone. Your druggist or doctor will tell you its the only effective method of treatment and that it is sure—prompt—permanent. [Remember the name Catarrhazone. All dealers, 25c. and 1.00.
