ROYAL STABLE.

King Edward's Racing Establishment L kely to be Sold.

EXPECTED TO GIVE UP TURF.

FOR FORTY YEARS HE HAS BEEN A PATRON OF THE SPORT AND HAS TWICE WON THE DERBY.

Following promptly on the accession of King Edward VII. to the English throne, the report has gone out that King Edward has already determined to retire from any active participation in racing affairs and that the royal breeding establishment, at Sandringham, which had only come into prominence with the late few years, together with the royal racing stable, soon will be broken up, though whether at private sale or by public auction rumor is silent as yet.

In this connection it is stated as a fact that Lord Sheffield, who managed the racing interests of the Prince of Wales, has begun preparations for the dispersal of the now famous Sandringham Stud, which has been one of the most prominent in England since the Prince of Wales won the Derby and the St. Leger with Persimmon, a horse of his own breeding.

England's present sovereign has been an ardent sportsman since boyhood, and for forty years has taken a keen interest in horse racing, his connection with the turf actually having extended over that length of time, with a few short interruptions. His first racing ventures were in cross-country sport, and he kept and raced steep-chasers until about a dozen years ago, when through friends who acted for him he engaged in flat racing.

So keen a sportsman was the heir to the throne in his early manhood, that he actually rode in a steeplechase under an assumed name, when he first took up cross-country sport. This exploit was in 1861, at the military races in Carragh, Ireland, then one of the most important racing points in Ireland. The Prince of Wales then owned a fair steeplechaser in a six-year-old horse named Rupee who ran in the name and in the race in question, was ridden by "Captain Melville," who was, in fact, the Prince of Wales himself. To avoid a tangle, the identity of the royal jockey was kept a secret at the time. Rupee won, and "Captain Melville" was the recipient of many congratulations for the courage and coolness with which he took his mount over a stiff and rather dangerous course.

The colors then worn were all white. The Prince of Wales then not having adopted the purple jacket, gold braid, scarlet sleeves, and black velvet cap with gold braid, which have become famous on the English turf since. For several years, Albert Edward raced as "Captain Melville," retaining the same colors. Then, with less cause for concealing his identity, became a patron of steeplechasing under his own name.

His racing counselors at different times have been Sir Frederick Johnston, Lord Arlington, Sir George Chetwynd, and a Mr. McKenzie, the latest being Lord Sheffield, who for several years has acted in the capacity of manager of the royal racing and breeding establishments. In his steeplechasing he depended largely upon Lord Marcus Beresford.

His open connection with flat racing began in 1880, when he had but indifferent success, winning only a few small races, and capturing the first of these under circumstances that caused much comment. This race was won by Countess, a son of Hermit, at Sandown Park, Countess starting a favorite at 7 to 4 on in a very ordinary field, and ridden by the celebrated jockey Fred Archer, winning in a canter.

The betting on the contest was so light and one-sided and the opposition to Countess so weak that gossip would have it that everything had been arranged beforehand, and that the field made no effort to beat the royal favorite; but this has always been denied vigorously by the gentlemen who were then associated with the Prince's racing stable.

Continuing an active patron of racing from that time until the end of last season, the Prince of Wales won races every year, but did not really have a conspicuous place on the turf, aside from the prestige that belonged to him by birth, until

It Hurt To Eat.

The pain, nausea and distress that Dyspeptics suffer after every meal can all be permanently removed by Burdock Blood Bitters.

It tones up and restores the stomach to normal condition so that it digests food without causing discomfort.

Here's proof positive: Miss Maggie Splide, Dalhousie, N.B., wrote the following: "I have been a sufferer from Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for the past two years and felt very miserable. I could not take much food as it hurt me to eat. My friends said, 'Why don't you try B.B.B.' I did so, using two bottles, which made such a complete cure that I can now eat anything I like without it causing me discomfort."

in 1885 be produced from his own stud the colt Persimmon, two years old, by St Simon-Pe-dits.

Persimmon was a fair performer at two, and his owner had hope of him for the Epsom Derby the next year, 1896; but this was shared by few, as Leopold de Rothschild's St. Frasier was a warm favorite. The Prince's hopes were realized, however, for Persimmon did win the Derby, beating St. Frasier in a splendid finish, and this victory did much to increase the popularity of the owner, destined to become King of England.

Persimmon continued his victorious career and later won the St. Leger, taking a high place in the history of English racing and fully justifying, on the score of performance and breeding, the fee of 300 guineas ($1,500) which was fixed on his service when he went to the stud at Sandringham. Among other victories won that year by Persimmon was the fifty-thousand-dollar Jockey Club Stakes.

At four years Persimmon won the Gold Cup at Ascot and the Epsom Stakes of $50,000 at Sandown Park. Other good horses owned by the Prince of Wales were Flareze and Cortier.

From his first venture in flat racing until the advent of Persimmon, the largest winning made by the Prince's stable was £3,400, in 1894. In 1895, with Persimmon and Flareze as his best horses, he won about £8,000, in 1896 £26,819, and in 1897 about £18,000.

Since then his stable's earnings were less than in the years of Persimmon. Until the Prince repeated his Derby victory by winning that race again with Diamond Jubilee. The encouragement he received by these great horses has caused him to breed on a larger scale, and his stud at Sandringham includes about as choice a collection of mares as can be found in the world.

The Prince of Wales was one of the patrons of "Tot" Sloan, the American jockey, Sloan having ridden a few horses for him, the first a filly called Little Dorrit. Sloan's riding so pleased Wales that last year a verbal agreement for the American jockey to ride for him this year was made, but later Sloan's conduct caused the agreement to be broken, and Sloan was re-leased.

The present royal stable contains a number of promising horses, which are extremely well engaged, and had the King wished to continue racing the King's stable probably would have been one of the most conspicuous of the year.

That King Edward VII. will retire from the turf is generally conceded to be due to kindly old age in the present age. Other kings of England have raced, but they lived when customs were very different from those of 1901.

Of the Kings of England who have been patrons of racing were Henry VIII., Charles II., William III., and George IV., while both Queen Elizabeth and Queen Anne took more than a passing interest in horseracing. Even in the days of the Protectorate racing flourished in England, and history has it that Cromwell himself bred and raced horses before he became Protector.

UPPER BEAR ISLAND.

(Special Correspondence to the Herald.)

Jan 28th—Ciflard Lint, Sterling Lint, and Wood Moores returned last week from the Maine lumber woods, they report four feet of snow in that locality.

Next to the sad news regarding our late beloved Sovereign the chief topic of conversation in this and neighboring district at present is post office.

Miss Annie McLean, came home last Saturday from St. Stephen.

Last Friday's mail from Woodstock failed to reach Bear Island till Saturday, for the first time this season.

The crystal thaw which began on Tuesday last, has done considerable damage to fruit and ornamental trees, though fortunately there has not been much wind.

Woods men say the forest is in a terrible state, men have to go with axes ahead of teams to clear the lumber roads, bougas that bend under their load of ice obstruct the way, and everywhere there is danger from falling timber and trees that can no longer stand the enormous strain, the spectacle is grand to look upon, but not pleasant to contemplate for should a gale of wind come up the destruction would be immense, as it is there are fears that next season's fruit crops will show the effects of the coating of ice the trees now wear, and that partridges in the ice covered section will be almost annihilated. At this writing the weather is very mild and it is hoped it will continue so till the ice is melted from the trees and even that it may develop into a good old fashioned January thaw.

It is said that the exhibition and lectures in Bear Island hall last Tuesday evening by Rev. Mr. Kersey, the dusky orator, was amusing and instructive.

Wollington Moores called on several families in the upper end of this district as Saturday, collecting money to pay a bill due the mail carrier for bringing our mail from Bear Island post office to his store last summer and fall.

Mr. Rainsford of the Herald, passed up through here last Wednesday. It is understood he secured many subscribers. The improvement in the Herald of late is having its effect. Sterling Lint says it is read with great interest in the Maine lumber camp from which he has just come.

Peddlers and agents are quite thick considering the state of roads and weather.

The Misses Annie and Ella Moores drove down from Nackawick today and called on friends in the place; it is said one of them expects soon to take up a residence here in the employ of one of our business men.

Dame rumor has it that one of our most beautiful and popular young ladies is soon to be joined in the bonds of matrimony to the man of her choice.

GRIPPE

is infectious, not contagious.

This very condition makes SCOTT'S EMULSION the more valuable. If taken at this time, when the ailment is so prevalent, it will often ward off the attack. SCOTT'S EMULSION is successful in this respect because it nourishes the blood and supplies strength to the tissues of the throat and lungs. Weakness and low condition breed grippe. SCOTT'S EMULSION furnishes strength and vitality.

"Just as good as SCOTT'S" is something entirely different.

LOWER SOUTHAMPTON.

(Special Correspondence to the Herald.)

January 28th.—Thomas Trail and Percy Quigg are home out of the lumber woods.

Their is a little stranger at Mr. Nelson Stairs—a boy.

Dr. Bull has started quite a practice at Hawkeshaw, special attention given to fractured limbs—Office at the Hawkeshaw store. Office hours from 8 a. m. to 12 and from 2 p. m. to 6.

The many friends of Miss Alma Quigg will be pleased to hear that she is able to be out again.

Dr. Bull and Mr. Buller of Hawkeshaw made a flying visit to the Celestial city last week.

E A Woodman expects to move in his new home this week.

Dr. Prescott is kept busy all the time. He is attending Mrs. Dickenson of Campbell settlement, who has been very low.

Solomon McFarlane and William Trail were down to Fredericton last week. Mr. Trail was down to see his sister, Mrs. Charles Pickard.

Jacob Allan is falling very fast.

Thomas Rainsford agent for the Herald passed through here last week.

We are pleased to hear that Mrs. Charles Pickard, who is at the Victoria Hospital is improving.

Orarion Cronkite was down to Fredericton one day last week.

Their must be some attraction for Miles Tabor of Southampton down this way as he comes down quite often.

The Farmer's Wife

is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are exactly akin to the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach churn is "sour" it sours all which is put into it? The evil of a foul stomach is not the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of the blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant and no narcotic.

Carefully selected by their own buyers at the places of production in India, Ceylon and China, George S. de Forest & Sons are assured that their UNION BLEND Teas are what the public want and will not willingly do without. This assurance is made a certainty by the approval of a quarter of a million of consumers.

WEAK LUNGS NEED CONSTANT CARE.

The Slightest Cough or Cold should be Promptly Treated by Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

There are many people who have weak lungs and need to be constantly on their guard. The arch enemy of the race—consumption—is ever ready to pounce upon those who neglect coughs and colds, and claim them as its victims. Those who catch cold easily should never put off treating a cough in its first stages by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It will not only cure the cough quickly, but the healing balsamic properties of the pine it contains will strengthen the lungs and help them to resist cold.

Miss Grace Lynch, Blackville, N. B., writes: "I have been troubled with coughs, colds and weakness of the lungs for a long time and could get no relief until I took Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup which soon made a complete cure in my case."

THE FORESTERS WON.

American Attacks Upon I. O. F. Have Failed.

New York, Jan. 29.—The application by Dr. Charles L. Coulter for an injunction restraining the supreme court of the Independent Order of Foresters from continuing certain extravagant practices, and from interfering by threats or otherwise, with the plaintiff and his attorney and witnesses in prosecuting certain actions brought by him, was today denied by Justice Blanchard in the supreme court. Dr. Coulter also claimed the organization was practically insolvent, and had expended over $400,000 in collecting an income of $2,500,000 last year.

The defendants denied all the allegations of mismanagement and showed that the order had now 170,000 members in the United States and Canada, and a surplus of $4,000,000.

Another of Dr. Coulter's charges was that the association declined to accept black or yellow men as members, while it had elected as its supreme chief ranger a Mohawk Indian. The defendants in reply to this said that Dr. Oronhyatekha was a full-blooded Mohawk Indian, who was a licentiate of the Ontario Medical Council, an undergraduate of Oxford University, England, a graduate of Toronto University, and was last year the president of the National Fraternal Congress of America.

He has been at the head of the order since 1881 when it had only 369 members, and had since been engaged in building up the association, while Dr. Coulter now seemed to be employed in an endeavor to destroy it if he possibly could do so.

Justice Blanchard, in denying the motion for the injunction said that all the allegations charging maladministration of the defendant, and the doubtful solvency of the order been fully met. He denied the motion without costs.

Hay Fever, Catarrh, Bronchitis.

Any one of them enough, some unfortunately bear the burden of two, for Bronchitic Asthma is all too prevalent. The miseries these maladies inflict is terrible and the practice of recommending snuffs, washes and ointments ought to be stopped. They prove useless, often increase the maladies and are disgusting to use. Catarrh of the nose, the new treatment, is cured by the air you breathe to the throat, nasal passages, and the utermost ramifications of the bronchial tubes. It kills germs that excite and maintain disease, heals sore spots, soothes the mucous surface, and the irritating Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh disappear as if by magic. Two thousand citizens of Canada have voluntarily testified that there is no other remedy in the world for these diseases like Catarrh, and we back it up with a guarantee on every dollar outfit to return the money if it fails to cure. Small size, 25c.; complete outfit $1.00. A trial sent by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Canada, or Hartford, Conn., U. S.

MILL SETTLEMENT, SUNBURY CO.

(Special Correspondence to the Herald.)

Jan. 29.—S. E. Crawford of Saxeck, held an illuminated concert here Saturday evening and in spite of the storm quite a large number were present.

Miss Mabel Gras of Rusagornish, has charge of the school here and is much liked by scholars and residents.

Miss Louise Knox is quite ill and little hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Mrs. J. McCrackin of Boyne Road, is visiting at Mr. Alex. Muir's.

"The Twentieth Century."

There is a great deal of talk and fuss about the twentieth century. This may be all very well, but Lucy & Co. have still very warm feelings for the nineteenth century, and they are not going to express an opinion on the twentieth until they have seen more of it, and learn what it is going to do for them. Their watches are all gone, and now they are engaged in
