THE CONSERVATIVE MIX-UP.

Really it acquires most acute observation to keep track of our Conservative friends in these days of factional disorders. What is known as the executive of the York County Conservative Association, is performing the most agile feats of executing and destroying; is presenting to the public a kaleidoscope exhibition of the rarest kind, and the members themselves scarcely know from one day to another what is going to happen within their ranks. Within the past ten days the executive has held four or five meetings each successive gathering undoing the work of its predecessor. First they were going to call a convention, then they decided not to do so, and now they have redecided that a convention is the proper thing.

The last meeting of the executive appears to have been held Monday evening, and the resolution for a convention was moved by Dr. McLeod's son, and carried, so that the faction that dominated at the meeting of Thursday last seems to have been overruled. However the gentlemen who do not want a convention or a candidate, but have to submit to the former at least, are throwing out dark hints that an effort will be made to pack the convention in the interests of the other faction who claim to desire a fight much against the will of the responsible leaders of the party. The organ of the anti-conventioners suggests: "The best results would not be attained by the attendance only of those who may be most powerfully influenced for or against any course now in contemplation. Extreme men on any side should pause before attempting to accomplish their purpose by any packing of convention or stampeding of delegates."

"But over representation may prove a bone of contention, for it would deprive the gathering of its representative and constitutional character, and would free party men from the necessity of strictly observing the lines of action laid down and adopted. There is no more ground for some parishes swamping others than there would be for the town to swamp the country. We throw this out as a precaution."

Having thus instructed the Conservatives as to how the convention should be constituted, the anti-convention organ proceeds to warn the prospective delegation against getting into a row, pulling hair and calling names. The following from the organ is a gem in its way:

"What is desired above all by all good party men is a harmonious convention. Perfect unanimity cannot always be attained, but it is certain that the convention will not consist of a majority of violent or self-willed men. The majority will therefore have to exert a silent pressure of disapproval upon all speeches having an inflammatory tendency. Whatever course may be adopted, let moderation of argument and toleration of contrary opinions be the prevailing characteristics of the coming convention."

It is quite evident that the organ expects a lively time at the convention, and those eminent men of the party who are preparing "speeches having an inflammatory tendency" are warned that "the majority will have to exert a silent pressure of disapproval." This is a distinct hint to The Smasher and his friends that Editor Simonds and the more peaceful and harmless members of the other faction will not submit to violence at the convention, and may go along way toward ridding the gathering of the necessity of calling in the police. However in the present ferocious attitude of the factions towards each other, the Herald suggests to the police magistrate that a few special policemen should be sworn in to act on the day of the convention. If The Smasher should sharpen his hatchet for the occasion, and should come into conflict with the editor of the anti-conventioners, there is no telling where the conflict might end. A gala night at Checkerboard avenue or Whitechapel, or a Kentucky feud would not be able to hold a candle to what might occur if the Conservative factional forces led by The Smasher and The Editor get at each other. Horrid, bloody, fratricidal war is a most lamentable condition, and on the prospective occasion of the meeting of the Conservative factions the police authorities will be justified in taking all possible precautions against the possibility of this city streaming with the blood of Tory saints. The anti convention organ, backed up by the Herald, has raised the danger signal, and the authorities will be held responsible if a sanguinary life.sacrificing riot should occur.

Mr Pinder of Nackarwick, it may be assumed, is the gentleman who has brought order out of chaos in the Conservative executive. He was present at the meeting Monday evening, at which it was decided to hold a party convention. Whether Mr Pinder desires a candidate to oppose Mr Gibson, is a matter upon which we have no information, but remembering that on a recent occasion through the pressure of snowdrifts and other impediments Mr Pinder permitted an election by acclamation, it is reasonable to suppose that he is of the faction that is endeavoring to hold the more violent members in check.

The parliament of the Australian Commonwealth has a labor representative who was expelled for publishing in a newspaper that he controls the Irish People's disgraceful attack on King Edward, and he was properly served.

The Fredericton exhibition management has again changed the dates for the show, possibly to meet the wishes of the Sussex people.

AGRICULTURAL MEETINGS.

Local Farmers Institute to be Established in Every County.

The Department of Agriculture is arranging to establish local Farmers' Institutes in connection with every agricultural society in the province. Three different delegations started out this morning to commence the work. Mr Abram Alward, of the agricultural department, has been assigned to the up river district and will meet with the officers of agricultural societies at the following places on the dates named: Douglas 26th June, Millville 27th June, Woodstock 28th June, Jacksonville 29th June, Debec 1st July, Glassville 2nd July, Kincardine 3rd July, Arthutette 4th July, Andover 5th July, Grand Falls 6th July, Salmonhurst 8th July, St Basil 9th July, Edmundston 10th July, St Hilaire 11th July, Centreville 13th July. At Salmonhurst on the 8th July and Centreville 13th July public meetings will be held, to be addressed by T G Raynor, B S A, of Rose Hall, Ontario. At these two points organization meetings will be held in the afternoon.

Mr W S Tompkins started up the Nashwaak this morning and will address agricultural meetings as follows: Stanley 26th June, Blissfield 27th June, Blackville, 28th June, Millerton, 29th June, St. Louis, 2nd July, Kingston, 3rd July, Rogersville, 4th July, Chatham public meeting in the evening 5th July, Dalhousie 6th July, Campbellton, 8th July, Petit Rocher 9th July, Bathurst 10th July, Stonehaven 11th July, Grand Anse 12th July, Caraquet 15th July.

Mr W W Hubbard and Mr Raynor will address a public meeting at Sussex this evening. Tomorrow evening Mr Hubbard will be at Petitcodiac, Friday at Fox Creek, and Saturday at Shediac. On 3rd July, Messrs Raynor and Hubbard will speak at Sackville, and on the following day Mr Hubbard will be at Memrancook. Other meetings in this section of the province have yet to be arranged.

Mr T A Peters, deputy commissioner for agriculture, and Mr Raynor will address a public meeting at Jemseg, Queens Co., on Friday 28th of June, and will speak at Gagetown the following evening.

Farewell Dinner.

A farewell dinner to Capt Nagle, will be given at the Officers' mess this evening. The Capt and Mrs Nagle leave this week for their new home at London, Ont., and their departure will be regretted by a local circle of friends.

ANOTHER WRECK.

The Steamship Lusatania Ashore on Newfoundland Coast.

ON PASSAGE FROM LIVERPOOL TO MONTREAL.

Passengers and Crew All Safely Landed.

(Special to Daily Herald.)

St Johns Nfld., June 26.—The steamer Lusatania with 500 passengers on board was wrecked last night off Cape Bollard.

Montreal, June 26,—A special despatch from Cape Race states that all the passengers of the Lusitania were landed in safety.

There are no details yet to hand as to how the accident happened.

Another special from St John's states that the Lusitania went ashore at Seal Cove at the identical spot where the Scottish King was wrecked a few months ago.

Relief steamers have been sent from St John's, and it is hoped to save the cargo.

Heavy fog and unknown currents are given as the cause of disaster.

The Lusitania left Liverpool on Thursday last for Montreal with 16 cabin, 14 second cabin and 344 steerage passengers.

This was to have been her last trip with the Elder-Dempster line, but she had been chartered by the new Franco-Canadian line to run between Montreal and Havre, under the terms of the new subsidy voted at the last session of Parliament at Ottawa.
