MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Popular American Novelist Shot Dead by His Brother Who Suicided.

New York, May 9.—Paul Leicester Ford, the novelist, was shot and killed yesterday by his brother, Malcolm Webster Ford, writer and athlete, who immediately sent a bullet into his own breast, dying instantly.

The shooting occurred at 10.20 a. m., in the handsome new mansion which Paul Leicester Ford had built at 37 East 77th street, and had occupied for about a year.

There were in the house besides the two brothers, Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford and Elizabeth R. Hall. The novelist's was sitting at his desk in one corner of his library. Miss Hall was at her desk in another corner of the room. Mrs. Ford was in her own room on the third floor. Malcolm W. Ford called, as he often had done, and went to his brother at his desk. Words were exchanged in a tone so low that Miss Hall could not hear.

Suddenly there was a revolver shot and Miss Hall darted from the room. Then, according to the police, she said to herself she must act more bravely and re-enter the library.

Meanwhile Malcolm Ford had called her. As she turned he placed his revolver to his heart, fired and fell, dying instantly. When Miss Hall turned to look at Paul he was still standing at his desk but rapidly losing strength. She helped him to a sofa and then ran next door for his physician, Dr. Emanuel Baruch. In less than five minutes Dr. Baruch arrived and the dying man, still conscious, was carried to a room beside his wife's and placed on his bed. He spoke to his wife and asked the doctor for his opinion, showing that he expected death. A few moments later, about 20 minutes after he was shot, Mr. Ford died.

Information to hand makes it appear that Malcolm Ford called to get money from his brother and meeting with a refusal, shot him. Dr. Baruch said the murder was a result of temporary mental aberration on the part of Malcolm Ford, due to nervous exhaustion.

It is said that there was enmity between the two brothers, said to have been brought about by the fact that the father of the boys disinherited Malcolm.

Paul Leicester Ford was 37 years old, a novelist of much note, "Janice Meredith" being perhaps his most popular novel. He was married about a year ago to Miss Grace Kidder. He was the son of Gordon Lester Ford of Brooklyn, who died 11 years ago and left an estate of some $2,000,000, divided among his children, with the exception of Malcolm W. who was disinherited. Mr. Ford was also the author of The Hon. Peter Stirling, The Great K. & A. T. in Robberies, The True George Washington, The Many Sided Franklin, and Tattle Tales of Cupid.

MARYSVILLE NEWS.

(Special Correspondence to the Herald.)

May 8.—One of the most home-like, popular and best conducted boarding houses in New Brunswick, is that kept by Mrs. Joseph Robinson of Brick Hill, which is known the province over for its well set table and lodging accommodations. This house is run on the up-to-date system and is always well patronized by the best class of boarders, while the traveling public who get their meals there pronounce it first class in every particular. The landlady never tires of making everybody as comfortable as possible and spares neither time or money in having everything in season for the welfare of her guests. One feature which proves the merit of the house, is that when persons once go there, they always return and generally bring a friend with them. This spring Mrs. Robinson is having the house papered, painted and whitened throughout, and when finished will present a very attractive appearance, as the taste displayed in decorating and coloring is very artistic.

Congressman Brownlow of Tennessee has a smart granddaughter, whose clever sayings are the delight of her parents. The other day she came to her grandfather with her face all smiles. "Grandpa," she said, "I saw something this morning running across the kitchen floor without any legs. What do you think it was?" Mr. Brownlow studied for a while and gave up. "What was it?" he asked. "Water," said the youngster triumphantly.
