

FOSTER'S NOMINATION.

Ex-New Brunswick Politician Chosen by North Ontario Tories.

OPENED THE CAMPAIGN THE SAME EVENING.

Beaverton, Ont., Jan. 7.—The Conservatives of North Ontario met here this afternoon in convention and mass meeting to nominate a candidate for the Commons. Dr. Donald Gillespie, Cannington, President of the Conservative Association, presided. The convention was called at 1 o'clock, and after nearly three hours' discussion a ballot was taken, and Hon. Geo. E. Foster was declared the choice of the convention. A telegram was sent to him shortly after 4 o'clock, and he replied, accepting the nomination, and started on the 5 o'clock train for Cannington, where he will address a meeting tonight. Some sixteen names were placed in nomination, but only six other than that of the candidate finally selected were seriously entertained. They were Dr. Gillespie, Chairman, who was tendered the nomination, but declined it for private reasons; Mr. Hugh Wilson, Cannington; Mr. O. M. Arnold, Bracebridge; Mr. T. E. Godson, Bracebridge; Mr. Thomas Cooper, postmaster at Cooper's Falls, and Mr. Jesse Cook.

The situation had been pretty well canvassed beforehand, and there was a strong undercurrent in favor of nominating a local man, but the need in which the party stood of Mr. Foster's services was strongly presented by Lieut. Col. McGillivray.

Dr. Gillespie having declined the honor and the others having also expressed their disinclination to accept the responsibility under the circumstances, the contest narrowed itself down to Mr. Cooper and Hon. Geo. E. Foster, with the result stated above, the nomination being ultimately unanimous.

MR. FOSTER AT CANNINGTON.

Cannington, Jan. 7.—Hon. George E. Foster addressed a hurriedly summoned meeting in the Town Hall here this evening. Reeve Shier Brock presided in the absence, through illness, of Dr. Gillespie. The speaker was met at the station on his arrival and escorted to the hall by County Councillor W. J. Gibbs and Mr. Hugh Wilson. About a hundred and fifty persons were present in the hall.

Mr. R. A. Sinclair, secretary of the Conservative Association of the riding, read a resolution passed at the convention at Beaverton, tendering the nomination to Mr. Foster, who on rising to respond was greeted with cheers. He regretted the absence of Dr. Gillespie from the meeting and referred in touching terms to the loss the Conservative party incurred in the death of the late Angus McLeod, M. P. Coming to the resolution read by the secretary, Mr. Foster said he desired to thank the members of the convention and of the Conservative party for their action. He wanted to thank them, not in a personal sense, but in behalf of the party, for the nomination, which he appreciated highly as a compliment to himself, an outsider and a stranger. He accepted it as a mark of their esteem and confidence, but he recognized that the action of the convention had a higher and wider significance than any personal compliment. It was not because they had not in their own riding men who were worthy to represent them, but because of their party loyalty and their unselfish consideration of interests wider than their own personal ambitions, and in order that the party at Ottawa might have the benefit of his services. He recognized also that there were men in the party who had unselfishly laid aside their proper legitimate ambitions for the time being in the interests of the party of Canada. He accepted the nomination, and, on behalf of the party, thanked the convention for the action it had taken.

He impressed upon his supporters that they must make up their minds that the contest upon which they were entering was not going to be any dress parade or summer picnic. They must recollect that as they had the goodness, the kindness and the unselfishness to ask him to be their standardbearer, they had drawn upon themselves a contest which in some respects will be more hardly fought than if they had selected some one from the constituency.

The Liberals sometimes claimed credit for the prosperity which exists, but they had built upon the foundations laid by the Conservatives, and found nothing in it rotten. Was it not true that if ever a party had played in luck it was the Liberal party since it got into power? And one sometimes speculated as to what they would have done if they had met hard luck.

Everything has brought luck to them. Was it war? It helped them after they got a little push in the right direction. Was it the Jubilee? There they went and shone and glittered. Was it the death of a beloved Queen and the coronation of the new King? It all helped into prominence and into position the Liberals. Nothing seemed to have taken place but what has been as wind that filled their sails and impelled them forward. The Conservatives did not begrudge them that good luck, but there came a time when they thought their opponents had pretty nearly enough of that luck, and that it was their turn again, and when they thought they saw where things might be made better than they are.

Mr. Foster spoke of the paramount importance of the representative system of government of having pure elections, and appealed for a pure and honestly-conducted election in North Ontario. He pledged his time and his ability to the work of the campaign, although recognizing that he would be unable to cover the whole of the riding, twenty-five miles in length, and call on the voters personally. He assured the meeting that he did not know a man in the Opposition who was his enemy. Politically they would fight him, but outside of that he said there were no feuds between himself and any public man in this country, on one side or the other. Organization, he pointed out, was essential to success, and he asked all to join in making it complete.

Mr. Foster was frequently applauded during his address, which occupied upwards of an hour in delivery.

Short addresses were made by Mr. Arnold, Lieut.-Colonel J. A. McGillivray and others in support of Mr. Foster's candidature.

The Story of Morning Tiredness

Is told by impure blood, poor digestion, sluggish liver and tired nerves. It is a warning of very serious trouble ahead, and should prompt sensible people to take a bracing tonic like Ferrozone, an energetic invigorant and rebuilder. Ferrozone will give you a sharp appetite, promote good digestion and sound sleep; it will feed and energize the enfeebled organs, strengthen the nerve and vital forces and regulate the heart. Ferrozone changes that tired feeling into vigor, strength and ambition, and does it quickly. Remember the name, and insist on having only Ferrozone; it's the best tonic made. Price 50¢ per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50, at Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

OLDEST MARRIED COUPLE.

The record for the oldest married couple in the United States is claimed by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gunn of Harrington, Kan. They celebrated their diamond wedding in 1890, and they have 77 years of married life to their credit. The husband claims to be 114 years old, while his wife was also past the century mark.

The most unique record in this line, however, probably belongs to Mr. and Mrs. John Jams Washington County, Ia., who a few weeks ago, told their friends that after 74 years of married life they could look back and find that they never had a dispute—much less a quarrel. They have 10 children, 36 grandchildren and 65 great-grandchildren.

ABOUT LOVE-MAKING.

For several reasons there is less romance in and more holding back from love making than formerly. Not that youth is less susceptible. Here there is no change. But young men have grown more anxious concerning ways and means than their fathers were, more solicitous to have an income that will warrant their marrying and beginning home life, and more doubtful to make a wife happy on small means than men used to be. Many young men are so agreeably established in pleasant bachelor quarters, where they have home comfort in addition to independence, that they do not know the forlorn estate of the man who is encamped in the dreary waste of a boarding house.

Girls, on the other hand, have become self-supporting to an extent hitherto undreamed of. Those who go to college are fitted for a professional career, and often, having spent four years in college study and two or three years more in direct training for medical work or teaching or journalism, they prefer spinsterhood. Great is the delight a woman has in earning money, in finding that her talents are of value and her services worth an honorable sum, almost equal to the amount man can earn, in the world's market. Thousands of young women, too, who never go to college, earn their bread and assist their families. Sometimes these girls know that they cannot easily be spared from home, sometimes they have grown indifferent to marriage, and sometimes they feel above the men who would naturally seek them, while they are not the social equals of men whom they admire.

Life has taken on too manifest a complexity in many places. Artificial wants are multiplied. A man might make a very comfortable livelihood for a girl who would live very simply within his means, but he cannot afford much hired help, or much entertaining or many chignons. Feeling this acutely, he often does very scant justice to the sensible girl, who, if asked, would accept him and cheerfully accommodate herself to his day of small things.

The Ontario Bye Elections.

Toronto advises regarding the three striking victories won by the Ross Liberal government in Ontario Wednesday, declare that no party ever made such desperate efforts as did the Conservatives to carry these counties. They had men in all the ridings for weeks, all their organizing force was engaged, and finally above all, they depended upon the use of Sam Blake's open letter to J. J. Foy, Mr. Whitney's Lieutenant, bitterly denouncing the Liberal party and praising Foy's desire to purify the politics of the province, etc. Thousands of copies of this letter were distributed throughout the constituencies as an example of the reformation which the highest type of Liberals in Ontario were undergoing.

To the letter Premier Ross and his colleagues retorted that Blake had been refused a valuable concession which he was anxious to get for U. S. steel trust in New Ontario, that had he received but a moiety last year of the sum paid him in previous years as counsel for the Government, and that he was grinding a purely personal axe.

Premier Ross personally made a magnificent campaign after having previously decided not to go on the stump. The result is therefore also a personal tribute to him.

The Liberal Association of North Perth sent the following message to Mr. Blake Wednesday night: "Eight thousand copies of your letter distributed in this riding. Result. Liberal majority over 200. Please inform Foy."

Why Sam Blake Jumped.

(Toronto Globe.)

The full significance of the dispute between Hon. S. H. Blake and the Ontario Government is beginning to appear. Mr. Blake desired that his clients be confirmed in the disputed ownership of part of what is known as the Helen iron mine, from which the ore supplies are drawn for the great steel manufacturing industries at Saint Ste. Marie. The government decided, on strictly legal grounds, that the property should go to the Algoma Steel Company. Eminent counsel engaged on the case expressed the belief that this decision was one that could have been enforced from a legal point of view before any competent court. Apart, however, from the legal aspect of the case, Hon. Mr. Davis, Commissioner of Crown Lands, within whose jurisdiction the case was, decided that the paramount interest of the people of Ontario required that this property should go to the company that was prepared to use the ores within the Province of Ontario in a great iron and steel industry. The Government thus had behind it not only what it believed to be the law, but also that larger law upon which public policy must be based—"the greatest good to the greatest number."

Domestic Hints.

Eggs with very thin shells are not so likely to crack in boiling if they are put on in cold water and brought slowly to a boil.

A basin of cold water placed upon the table in a room which smells of tobacco will soon absorb the odour, and purify the air of the room.

If hot meats and soups are covered before they are practically cold they will surely spoil. The hot air must have a place to escape or the meat will be affected.

In making gingerbread, to avoid the dark spots usually scattered through it, mix molasses and spices together and then add the other ingredients. A little salt added to gingerbread greatly improves it.

To obtain a good polish on boots mix the blacking with boiling water; it must be boiling or they will be a dull brown. If the boots are damp sprinkle a little moist sugar on the blacking, and apply with brush in the ordinary manner.

A mother whose little daughter is inclined to stoop is gradually breaking the habit by the revival of an old custom. She makes the child wear a book on her head during some hours in the house each day. The woman's own mother was brought by like treatment to possess a most majestic and beautiful bearing, which also counteracted a narrowness of the chest, which expanded under the rigidly enforced rule.

The proper care of the eyes is an important matter, and should never be neglected. "Do not use hot applications. They are positively injurious and may bring about serious trouble" says a noted eye doctor. Consult a reliable oculist when your eyes pain you and you can assign no reason for it. Rest them as much as possible, and always sleep in a dark room. Try always to sit with your back to the light, and never read when you are lying down. The head should always be elevated, so the fluid of the eyes will not be strained away from them.

A Sure Cure for Constipation.

Some remedies cure this distressing complaint in a day, some in a month, but Nerviline never fails to cure in a few minutes. Just ten drops of Nerviline in a little sweetened water—that enough, and away goes the dysentery, cured to stay cured. Nerviline also cures Cramps, Colic, Pain in the Stomach and Sick Headache. It has five times the strength and curative properties of ordinary remedies, and should be in every household. Better buy a 25c. bottle and try it. Nerviline is all right.

A party of young people from here drove to Fredericton to the home of Mrs. J. Cunningham. Music, games and dancing were indulged in until a late hour. A sumptuous luncheon was served after which the parties dispersed to their homes, all having thoroughly enjoyed a good time.

Our school opened on Monday, Jan. 5, under the management of Miss Foye, our former teacher.

Mrs. H. Nesbitt and Arthur Cunningham of Harvey, spent Christmas here with Mrs. Nesbitt's mother, Mrs. D. Cunningham.

Miss Gertie Burke has charge of the school in Upper Hanwell. She has successfully taught the school for several terms.

Mr. Albert Gallop has gone to Sunbury Co., where he is employed in a saw mill.

Messrs J. Boreland and D. Cameron, having spent Xmas at home at home returned to Deer Lake, where they are employed by W. J. Scott, the well known lumberman.

What does it profit a woman if she gain the whole world of knowledge and lose her own health? Young women students, and school teachers, eager, ambitious, and full of energy, very often neglect their health in the struggle to gain education. They eat insufficient food and at irregular hours, they allow irregularity of the womanly functions to be established, and the result is that they become chronic invalids with all their education practically worthless. There is a plain road back to health for such as these, marked by the feet of thousands. It is the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive organs, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the delicate organs of womanhood. A cure so certainly follows the use of these remedies that out of hundreds of thousands who have tried the treatment, ninety-eight in every hundred have been perfectly and permanently cured. Constipation, with its calamitous consequences, which is a common ailment of students, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

"When that boy threw stones at you, why didn't you come and tell me, instead of throwing them back?" "Tell you! Why you couldn't hit a barn door!" (And mother went back to her washing.)

IT'S THE TRUTH

Tell a man it's a food and he doesn't want to pay for it. Tell him it's a medicine and he says it doesn't look like it. Then tell him it's both a food and a medicine and he thinks you're playing some game on him.

Yet these are the facts about Scott's Emulsion of pure cod-liver oil. It is the cream of cod-liver oil, the richest and most digestible of foods. The food for weak stomachs. The food for thin bodies and thin blood.

But that's only half the story. Scott's Emulsion is also a good medicine. It gives new life and vigor to the whole system and especially to the lungs.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like, SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto.
