GOING IN TO DINNER.

How the Methods Differ in France, England and America.

In France they walk into the dining room abreast, the lady and her lord, like two chums, equal one to the other. In England John Bull goes first, she following meek and demure. In America Mrs. Jonathan enters triumphantly, leading the way, while her dear old spouse follows.

In France men and women walk with equal assurance. When they meet on the street the men pay their respect to the women and the latter show their deference to the men by the way in which they salute one another. Your natural conclusion is that such men and women go through life on the same equal footing.

On the contrary, John Bull has the air of a lord of creation. He leads the way a little haughtily perhaps and not overpleasant looking. He is duly sensible of the fact that he is a master—the master. He is of course polite and deferential to women, but it is with a slightly patronizing air, a condescension of his lofty lordship. He feels his supposed superiority, and he cannot help showing it. Among the middle and lower class people the man is master and enters his house before his wife, mother or daughter.

In the United States the woman walks like a duchess. She is mistress of all she surveys. She stands erect and queenly, and her eyes are frank. For her, man exists. He pays her court. She is indeed a queen.

The Price of Slaves.

The prices of slaves varied very greatly in different parts of the south in antebellum days. In states like South Carolina or Louisiana, where slaves were always in demand, much more was paid for them than in the border states like Kentucky and Missouri, where they could easily run away. In New Orleans $1,800 to $2,500 was often paid for a good carpenter or blacksmith, who in Kentucky or Missouri would not have brought more than half as much. Many slave traders made a regular business of buying in the border states and selling in Mobile, New Orleans or Charleston, and there was always a handsome profit in the transaction. The most risky part of the business was the guarantee demanded that the slave would not run away. The time limit was commonly thirty days, and the matter was usually arranged with the slave himself by taking his promise and giving him $5 or $10 to stay until the guarantee had expired.—Exchange.

Buttermilk a Liquor Cure.

A buyer for one of the largest liquor houses in Philadelphia who is compelled to sample enough wine and spirits every day to put an ordinary man out of business says that buttermilk is his salvation. "I not only buy five or six glasses a day at the dairy restaurants or street stands," he says, "but I drink it all the time at home instead of tea or coffee. I never touch beer or anything like that. I keep a stone crock of buttermilk in the cellar and let it get just a little stale. It is better than if taken fresh. A man who insists on drinking liquor will find very little trouble if he takes plenty of buttermilk. If he wants to swear off, buttermilk will help him. It is a splendid stomachic. Two quarts of good buttermilk a day will cure any case of nervous indigestion."

The Ass and the Ladder.

"I came into possession of a Hebrew library the other day," said a student, "and in several of my new books is the sentence, 'May this volume not be damaged, neither this day nor forever, until the ass ascends the ladder.' What does that mean—'till the ass ascends the ladder'? Do you know?" "Yes, I know," answered the student's preceptor. "The phrase is like that of Petronius, 'asinus in tegulis' (an ass on the house top). It signifies impossibility, a thing that will never take place. Books preserved, therefore, until the ass ascends the ladder are books forever preserved."

The House Spider.

While the common house spider is harmless and renders a positive service to mankind by killing flies and other insects, it is generally regarded with aversion if not with fright. The ordinary spider does not deserve its bad reputation. From time immemorial it has been called crafty and murderous, luring the poor fly to its death and then greedily devouring it, but really it only punishes trespassers.

REMINISCENCES.

Do you remember where the little boys indulged in innocent and harmless joys? It is yon desolate and parching spot. There on the rank weed ridden vacant lot, where once their laughter echoed to the sky As they threw snowballs at the passer by.

Do you remember where the snow man stood, With eyes of coal and skeleton of wood? That is the place—that patch of blistered lawn Neglected even by the dew of dawn; There where industrious ants with prudent haste Are burrowing to shun the arid waste.

And do you see that man, that sweltering wretch, Whose suffering Dante might delight to sketch, Whose collar wilts, who gazes hollow eyed Adown the street where once he walked with pride? 'Tis he who wrote in wintry days much rhyme About the gentle joys of summer time.

Owes His Life to a Neighbor's Kindness.

Mr. D. P. Dargherty, well known throughout Mercer and Summer counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any, relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. For sale by all druggists.

SHOT GUN - PRESCRIPTION -

We suppose we are not revealing any trade secrets when we say that many medicines are made up on the principle of the so-called "Shot Gun" Prescriptions, which were formerly somewhat in vogue. The idea of the Shot Gun Prescriptions was to put into a medicine a large number of different drugs, each useful for different purposes, in the hope that some of them might hit the case.

The most successful physicians we know use a more direct method. The medicine we sell over our own name, and guarantee, does the same. This medicine is called Staples' Dyspepsia Remedy.

It is the best remedy we know of for Dyspepsia in all forms, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Water Brach, Sick Headache and all the terrible diseases caused by Dyspepsia. It is not a scattering "Shot Gun" Prescription but it goes straight to the mark, and has cured so many people right here in town, that it gives us confidence to sell it on an absolute guarantee, as follows: If you use a bottle and it does not help you, we will give you your money back without a word of complaint. We could not afford to guarantee it so boldly if we had not seen it succeed ninety-eight out of every one hundred cases.
